

Mass Of Recovery For Woman Injured In Car Crash Will Be Sunday

A mass of recovery will be held on Sunday for Sandra Smyly, a 1982 Winchester High School graduate who has been in a coma since she was injured in a 12-car collision on Route 93 in January.

freshman year at Pine Manor College and had been attending Northeastern University, is visited daily by her friends and family at Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children in Brighton.

said that her family is "hopeful that with constant prayers and wonderful support, 'Si Si' will come out of the coma."

Conley visits her friend regularly. "She's improving very nicely," Conley said. "I just know she'll come out of it. We (Conley and several other of Smyly's close friends) sense that she is reacting when we all go in and see her, and we really believe that she knows we are nearby." Conley describes Smyly as "a great friend. She is always thoughtful, always doing things for other people. And I want her to know that we haven't forgotten her."

Mary's idea to hold the mass of recovery. All of Smyly's friends and relatives are invited to come to St. Mary's Church on Sunday, Sept. 9, at 10:15.

Fire In Fells Burns 10 Acres

Winchester firefighters spent last week battling an underground fire in the Fells that damaged 10 acres of the Metropolitan District Commission reserve.

The cause of the fire is still not known.

"We've been up there for more than a week, from 8 in the morning until about 7:30 at night," said Fire Chief Robert McElhinney. "It was a very warm week."

It took thousands of gallons of water, more than 2,000 feet of hose, hours of efforts by the firefighters and the rain to quench the fires, McElhinney said.

The fire was in the area just opposite 74 Hillcrest parkway, around Long Pond and the white dot trail, McElhinney said.

"It may have been set at the beginning by a campfire or one of those bottle rockets the kids play with," he explained. "There were three different fires up there."

The firefighting occupied seven to 10 men a day from the regular staff and on-call firefighters. Five state employees from the Dept. of Natural Resources in Hopkinton pitched in on Sunday, McElhinney added.

"They helped quite a bit, and so did the rain we got Monday night and Tuesday morning," McElhinney said.

The firefighting was complicated by the type of blaze, McElhinney said. "Most of it burned underground. There's a lot of peat up there," he explained. "It gets in there and burns down, and then it takes thousands of gallons of water to get down to it and extinguish it."

"And if you don't get it all, it crops up again," McElhinney added. "It can be dangerous to walk on."

The underground fires can also destroy tree roots, killing the trees up to two years after the fire, McElhinney said.

"That's a concern, because those trees are important; that's a very valuable watershed for Winchester," (The Fells protect and supply the reservoirs which provide much of the town's drinking water.)

Town Gets More Downtown Money In Ceremony...

At a ceremony scheduled for 4 p.m. today the town is scheduled to receive a $740,000 Public Works Economic Development Grant which will be used to continue the downtown reconstruction.

Economic Development Coordinator John Connelly, who called the grant "a good piece of change," said the new money will "allow us to do some special things and come close to finishing the job downtown."

The money will be used for additional brick sidewalks in areas that do not have them yet — including the sidewalks in front of Town Hall and on north Main st., in front of Henderson's Stationery.

The awarding of the grant is conditional — Winchester must submit a detailed plan for subsidized housing to state officials before they will release the funds, according to the state's Executive Office of Communities and Development. (See related story.)

If the town does not comply within a reasonable time, according to EOCED officials, the grant could be rescinded.

But town officials, who have already begun work on the required housing proposals, feel confident the downtown grant is not in jeopardy.

"If the state is looking to punish us, they will punish us. If not, they will help us to provide the housing that we need," said Connelly. "The problem of housing can be overcome, but there is a tremendous time crunch."

The $740,000 grant, received under a program designed to help cities and towns revitalize their downtown areas, will also help the town to "focus on the Aberjona River," according to Connelly.

"We hope to really improve the

...But Housing May Hold Up Funds

BY ANNE MARIE REIDY

Winchester's Selectmen, Housing Authority and Planning Board have been told to come up with a first draft of a plan for low- and moderate-income housing scattered around town by Sept. 15 — or risk giving up state grant money like the $740,000 downtown improvement grant that will be awarded this afternoon. (See related story.)

Some members of those boards, which are the town's Housing Subcommittee, while meeting Tuesday night questioned the tone and timing of the draft deadline letter, sent Aug. 21 — just after an initial meeting with

Learn English

Adult Ed To Offer ESL Class

The Winchester Adult Education Program is offering a course in English As a Second Language on Tuesday evenings, 7:30-9:30, beginning Sept. 25 for 10 weeks at the Winchester High School.

For beginners and intermediates, the course will cover reading, writing and speaking English. A phonics-based approach with sight words to facilitate learning will be used. Grammar, common idioms, and pronunciation will be taught by analyzing personal conversations, by reading aloud articles from newspapers and magazines, and by listening to taped portions of the news.

Students will learn to sing famous, classical American folk songs to the accompaniment of the guitar. All grammar, phonics, and music materials will be provided at no extra fee. Students should bring to first class a 3-hole loose leaf notebook (to keep hand-outs) with lined paper and a pencil. Class size limited to 10 students for individual instruction.

To register, contact the Winchester Adult Education Program, Winchester High School, Skillings rd.

Pre-Retirement Program To Begin

The Pre-Retirement Program sponsored by the Winchester Council on Aging through a grant from the Department of Elder Affairs will take place at the The Jenks Senior Center. The panel forum is the first in the series scheduled for Sept. 19 at 8 p.m.

The forum will present an overview of issues or subjects of interest to people in their mid-years as they think about preparing for retirement. Subsequent workshops will take place on Oct. 10, 17, 24, and 31 at 8 p.m.

Registration has been completed with a full capacity response. Late registrants will be placed on a waiting list. The workshop sessions following the panel forum will address the following concerns: Financial Security in Retirement, Legal Readiness, Estate Planning, Retirement Housing Needs, and Health and Health Economics in the Later Years. An impressive group of speakers will be presented as participants in these informative seminars.

The Council on Aging Pre-Retirement Planning Committee has dedicated many hours in the preparation of the program that will be presented to Winchester residents between the ages of 50 and 67 who are employed. Chairman Lawrence Beckley has worked for several months with a committee consisting of Vincent Berger, Barbara Ciampa, Helen Dame, and William Keith, to give seniors an over-view

Toastmistress Club To Meet At Library

The Winchester Toastmistress Club will hold its first meeting of the 1984-85 season on Monday, Sept. 10, at 7 p.m. at the Winchester Public Library, 20 Washington st.

Visitors are invited to learn how Toastmistress can help them gain confidence by developing more effective communications and leadership skills.

Toastmistress is the largest non-profit educational organization in the world with more than 25,000 members, 1400 clubs, in 27 countries. The Winchester club meets every second and fourth Monday of the month at the Winchester Library.

Music Program To Begin
Fall Semester On Oct. 24

The Winchester Music Program begins its fall semester Sept. 24. New registrations are now being accepted by coordinator Corie Nichols.

The program, which offers instrumental and voice lessons after school at McCall Junior High School, has been developed in cooperation with the Belmont Music School, and is sponsored by the McCall Parent Assn.

Over the last three years, the program has expanded. It now offers lessons in cello, clarinet, flute, French horn, guitar, banjo, percussion, recorder, saxophone, trumpet, trombone and lower brass, viola, violin and voice. Musicianship classes will begin later in the fall, and ensembles coached by members of the faculty are encouraged.

"Music for all ages" is the Music Program's theme and students range in age from 3 to adult. "We want people to feel that they can start an instrument at any time," says Nichols.

"We encourage students to take advantage of the instrumental lessons offered in the elementary schools and for them our program offers the opportunity to continue instruction through junior high and high school. For those who want to start or perhaps try something different there are many options available."

For information on the program, call Nichols at 10 Oxford st. or Sandy Thompson, 48 Samoset rd.

Boy Scout Troop 503 To Begin Activities Sept. 11

Boy Scout Troop 503 will start its 1984-85 season of scouting activities by meeting at the First Congregational Church of Winchester in Chidley Hall on Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m.

During this meeting, members of the Troop Committee will describe the scouting program particularly as it is exercised by Troop 503. Photographic slides, taken during previous campouts, will be shown to illustrate the various outdoor activities that the boys participate in during the season.

The troop will also award merit badges and advancement in rank in signia to those scouts who have completed the necessary requirements.

This meeting is open to all boys who are interested in joining Boy Scouts this year. Family members are also invited. For further information, contact Lawrence Keats, Scout master, at 729-9317.

Cancer Screening
Clinic At Hospital

Winchester Hospital and the American Cancer Society will offer a free male genitourinary cancer screening clinic in the oncology department of Winchester Hospital on Tuesday, Sept. 25, from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. No appointment is necessary, and men of all ages are invited to attend the free screening.

According to the American Cancer Society approximately 119,000 American men will develop genitourinary cancer. This includes cancer of the kidney, bladder, prostate, testes and penis. Approximately 45,000 men will die of these cancers. Most experts agree that survival rates can be significantly improved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

The entire screening, including questionnaire, film and exam, takes less than 15 minutes. Physicians will give instruction in self-examination of the testes.

The high rate group for testicular cancer, according to the American Cancer Society's statistics, are men between 15 and 35 years of age. Prostate cancer is the third highest cause of male cancer deaths between the ages of 55 to 74. Men between the ages of 50 and 70 are at high risk for bladder and kidney cancer.

Keith Bonn Makes Military Life A Career

Pond St. Resident Completes Korean Assignment

A long history of family involvement in the military, along with some of his own ideas about making improvements in the Army, led Keith Bonn, a Pond St. resident, to choose a military career that began at West Point.

Bonn, who was recently in town after serving in Korea, has since spent 10 years in the Army — and recently received a Meritorious Service Medal as a junior officer.

According to Bonn, a life in the military requires "determination, persistence, and self-discipline. Nothing is handed to you, no matter who you are."

"It takes a core of discipline, springing from a desire to achieve in a number of areas to make it through West Point," he continues. "It is something that no one can be prepared for. It can be a real shock."

But Bonn made it through West Point, although he admits that he often wondered if he would during the first two years.

The desire to be an officer was a strong motivating force, however. Bonn worked hard at West Point. And when he graduated in 1978, he was assigned to his first choice — the 82nd Airborne Division in N.C., where he served for four years.

Bonn has completed infantry training in Georgia and Korea, where he was in charge of a combat unit — a position he truly loved.

"Leading soldiers was a true privilege," he says. "Few people realize that they are very selfless people, most of whom do what they do because they harbor a deep personal commitment to America — they are real team players."

Bonn will be beginning a master's program in modern European history at the University of Chicago this fall. He will teach history for three years at West Point afterwards.

Bonn is the son of Keith and Ruth Bonn.

Bear Hill Construction Begins

Metropolitan District Commissioner William J. Geary announced the beginning of construction of the Bear Hill water project has begun in a ground-breaking ceremony Friday morning.

The project, which includes the construction of a 6,000 gallon pre-stressed concrete water storage tank, is slated for completion in February 1986.

"There are no residential homes in the work area," Geary said. "We do not expect any adverse traffic flow problems; however, street resurfacing will occur on Fallon rd. in Stoneham."

The 18-month long project is expected to upgrade water pressure and distribution services affecting the residents of Stoneham, Wakefield, Woburn and Winchester by the furnishing and installation of service connectors, valves and 2,100 linear feet of drain pipe.

Key legislative support from Sen. John A. Brennan Jr. and Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. was instrumental in the procurement of the necessary funds for the construction, Geary said. The $3.8 million contract was awarded to Natgun Corporation of Wakefield.

Yanoff hopes to open a new restaurant, Winchester Crossing, in the old Filene's quarters in Winchester Terrace off Thompson st. (No hearing has been scheduled yet.)

The public hearing on Maxmillian's license application is open to all. Under state law, any school, church or hospital within a 500-foot radius of the proposed licensee must object to the granting of the license in writing.

Liquor License Hearing Is Sept. 10

Selectmen will hold a public hearing on the granting of a liquor license to the owners of a proposed new restaurant, "Maxmillian's of Winchester Inc." on Monday night at 8 in Town Hall.

The license would permit the restaurant to occupy the old Wilson's upholstery shop building (11-27 Converse pl.), to serve alcoholic beverages along with meals in its proposed street-floor level dining room which will overlook the Mill Pond.

The license is being sought by Louis Manzone of 43 Oakland ave. in Needham. Manzone also operates a Needham restaurant called Maxmillian's.

If granted, the license would be the second of three liquor licenses the Selectmen can issue. The first is already held by Randall's Restaurant on Mount Vernon st.

There is another potential applicant for a liquor license — Steven Yanoff, the owner of Lincoln Crossing and Wellesley Crossing restaurants.

Absentee Voting Procedures Explained

Town Clerk Carolyn Ward advises residents of the procedure for obtaining an absentee ballot for the State Primaries Sept. 18.

"If a voter plans to be out of town or will be unable, due to illness or physical disability, to get to the polls on September 18 he or she may vote by absentee ballot," said Ward. "The voter must apply for a ballot, either in writing or in person, by noon on Monday, Sept. 17, the day before the primaries."

If the application is made by mail, the voter should indicate whether the ballot should be mailed to him or if he would prefer to vote in person at the town clerk's office. If the ballot is mailed to the voter, it must be notarized and returned by mail," said Ward, "so voters must be sure that time will permit the process by mail."

Voters who know they will be unable to get to the polls on primary day may go to the Town Clerk's office, apply and vote at the same time. For additional information on the absentee ballot process, voters should call the Town Clerk's office.

Alliance For Mentally Ill To Meet On Sept. 10

The Alliance for the Mentally Ill will meet Monday, Sept. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in St. John's Church, 74 Pleasant st., Arlington Center. The guest speaker will be Richard F. Mollica, M.D., a psychiatrist at Massachusetts General Hospital and assistant professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School.

He will discuss the social role of psychiatric patients and the family. Dr. Mollica is known here and abroad for his work in psychiatric epidemiology. In 1979-80 he was a Fulbright lecturer in England, and he formerly served as a consultant to the Italian government on deinstitutionalization.

The Alliance for the Mentally Ill is a family advocacy and support group with members in Arlington, Belmont, Cambridge, Lexington, Somerville, Waltham, Watertown, and Winchester. Admission to the meeting is free.

CLOSING OF WARRANT 1984 FALL ANNUAL TOWN MEETING

The Board of Selectmen of the Town of Winchester wish to remind residents that the Warrant for the Fall Annual Town Meeting will officially close September 17, 1984. Voters wishing to place an article on the Warrant by petition must submit the petition, signed by at least ten (10) voters, by that date. Earlier submission is encouraged. Petitions and background material on the subject may be filed with the Board of Selectmen's Office at the Town Hall.

The Harriet Hootor Ballet School is not a "dance recital" school which spends students' class time and money on preparation and expensive costumes. Class time is spent learning and improving technique and skill. We are a "training" school with efforts directed toward the goal of giving our students a secure foundation in classical ballet technique while developing coordination, rhythm, poise, and self-discipline, which is so important to the beginning and intermediate student. We also give the individual guidance and attention to those students who wish to go on and pursue a career as a professional ballet dancer.

Three Winchester women, all of them active members of the Women's Republican Club of Winchester, recently attended the Republican National Convention in Dallas, Texas. Ann Blackham attended this, her third National Convention, as a member of the Massachusetts delegation. Irene Caldwell, an alternate delegate who recently moved to Winchester from Boston, was attending her sixth convention since 1960.

Peg Perenick had an especially busy week as she was both an alternate delegate and in charge of transportation in Dallas for the whole Massachusetts delegation and the family members and guests who accompanied them.

The Winchester delegates were impressed by the friendliness and efficiency of their Texas hosts. The Massachusetts delegation was housed at the Sheraton Mockingbird hotel. Local Republican volunteers took turns to be at the hotel in order to answer questions and help the visitors. Several gave parties and barbecues, to which the delegates were taken by the busload.

Perenick was in charge of all the ground transportation for the delegation. Wherever the group traveled, she could be seen holding up her sign "Mass. Bus" while her charges gathered around her. Later on in the week she was enthusiastically waving an "Italians for Reagan" sign, feeling entitled to hold the sign as the wife of an Italian and as the president of the Women's Lodge of the Winchester Sons of Italy.

The other members of the Women's Republican Club of Winchester and of the Republican Town Committee are looking forward to hearing more about the Dallas convention when they attend their annual Cocktail Party on Sept. 14.

Alliance For Mentally Ill To Have Speaker

Alzheimer's Support Group Has Monthly Meetings in Woburn

The Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Assn. Inc. is sponsoring a free support group for families of patients with Alzheimer's Disease. The next monthly meeting will take place on Thursday, Sept. 20, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., at the Woburn Branch of the Center, 441 Main st., Woburn, and will be led by Esther Gruber, M.A. The group is open to residents of Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, irreversible brain disease which produces intellectual impairment in approximately 1 million American adults. The problem families face in dealing with the long-term care of the patient, and the emotional, financial and social stresses are immense and all too often devastating.

The support group meetings are being offered to provide a forum for the exchange of information, experiences, and feelings as well as mutual help.

For further information, call Esther Gruber at Mystic Valley Mental Health Center.

ARE ALL FUEL OIL DEALERS THE SAME?

There's a lot more to being a fuel oil dealer than just putting oil in your tank.

At Federal Heating we know our customers — and their heating systems. We've been taking care of many of them for well over twenty-five years.

We're a family business. That's important because our future depends on the service we give our customers.

To put it simply, we work hard at making sure our customers are completely satisfied.

All this may sound a little old-fashioned. Maybe so. But it's not. It's the only way we know how to do business.

If you want to discover for yourself the difference in oil dealers, now is a good time to get acquainted with us at Federal Heating. Call us at 623-1515.

Bill Gustus Middlesex County Treasurer

He's gained the experience to do the job right!

He's fought to earn your trust!

• As Executive Assistant to the Middlesex County Commissioners, Bill Gustus stopped irresponsible financial maneuvers in order to save taxpayers' money. He saved $250,000 in health insurance costs for each of the past three years, and prevented the sale of the vacant Third District Courthouse, valued at over $1 million, to a private developer for $175,000. County budgets prepared by Bill Gustus lowered taxes for cities and towns from $23 million in 1981 to $17 million in 1984.

• During his first nine months, Bill Gustus has restored stability and integrity to the office of Middlesex County Treasurer. He has earned nearly a half-million dollars in interest from the investment of county funds, while his predecessor, and chief opponent in this election, earned only slightly more than $5,000 during his first nine months. As Chairman of the Middlesex County Retirement Board, Bill Gustus has upgraded the system's $80 million portfolio with a professional management program.

• Bill Gustus has brought strong character and commitment to public service. He served in the Peace Corps in Malaysia for two years, and is a graduate of Wilmington High School, Wesleyan University and the New England School of Law. Bill Gustus resides in Wilmington with his wife, Terry, and their three children.

Rec. Dept. Reviews A Wacky, Wild, Summer

Now that school has started for another year and the summer days are winding down, the Winchester Recreation Dept. would like to review the activities of its summer program.

The Mini Camp Program ended its summer with a bang. The last week of camp, "Wacky Wars," boasted fun, excitement, enthusiasm and good sportsmanship. The week began with the unburying of the hatchet ceremony. At the conclusion of this ceremony, the camp was divided into two enemy camps — the Blue Dragons and the White Falcons. During this week, these two teams competed in various activities such as flag football, softball, and soccer.

In addition, participants tied dyed shirts and drew pictures on them that were symbolic of their team. Midway through the week, the Mini Campers loosened the competitive spirit and enjoyed an afternoon swim at Leonards.

Thursday consisted of a morning relay. The two teams competed in fun and outrageous activities. Some of the events included drinking from a baby bottle, finding jelly beans in whipped cream, pie eating contest, whistling through peanut butter and the burlap sack race. This day was one of the most enjoyable days of the summer.

To conclude this week, the Mini Campers put on their own Gong Show.

Prizes were awarded for originality, best act and most creative act. One skit consisted of the campers initiating and becoming counselors. This skit provoked many laughs from the audience. The show concluded with all the Mini Campers and counselors getting on the stage and dancing to the last vestiges of music.

To conclude the Adventure Connection program, the last week was a Fitness Universal Week. Participants that registered for this week were able to get a flavoring of the different ways to get into top physical condition. To start the week, the campers rode their bikes to the Woburn Y and the CMK Nautilus. At the Y, participants became familiar with the Nautilus equipment and learned the basic principles behind Nautilus.

As the week continued, the campers learned how to ride a unicycle and they were also involved in a fitness obstacle course. Also, they visited the Winchester Racquetball Club for a mini lesson and demonstration.

The highlight of the week was when Master Suk Chung of Cambridge gave his karate demonstration and his lesson on the underlying principles of karate. Participants learned that karate is not to be used to harm people, but it is used to feel self confident within oneself. In addition, Lorraine Sereno, of Woburn Jazzerise gave the participants a demonstration their muscles will never forget. This week concluded with participants going rollerskating on the Charles.

On Thursday, Adventure Connection day trips ended the summer with the best trip yet — a visit to the Aquaboggon Water Park in Old Orchard, Maine. The participants and counselors had a great time riding the bumper boats, going down the seven different types of water slides, swimming in both the wave pools and the olympic sized pool. This trip was a wonderful way to end the program.

William Gustas Hopes To Retain Position As County Treasurer; Cites Budget Experience

(The Star allows candidates for county office a press release before the primary. This was submitted by William Gustas.)

Middlesex County Treasurer, William J. Gustas is seeking to retain his position as County Treasurer in the upcoming Sept. 18 Democratic primary.

In announcing his candidacy, Gustas stated, "As long as there is county government there will be a need for responsible, professional management among its elected officials. I offer that type of performance to the people of this county."

Gustas said his words need not be taken as an idle boast. He has been responsible for preparing the last four county budgets. These budgets have presented Middlesex County taxpayers with a decrease in the property tax assessments of over $6 million.

"It is extremely important," Gustas observed, "that all layers of government show extreme fiscal responsibility, by reducing our assessments, without reducing our level of services. We have been able to make it easier for our constituent communities to respond to the Proposition 2 1/2 tax cap."

Gustas was also responsible for investigating the county health insurance contract and, through negotiations, was able to save the county $250,000 each year for the past three years. Utilizing his legal skills, Gustas prevented the sale of the vacant Third District courthouse to a private developer for $175,000 when the property had been appraised at over $1 million.

Gustas was appointed County Treasurer by the Board of Commissioners when former County Treasurer, Rocco Antonelli, resigned, rather than face trial for conflict of interest in November.

"The Treasurer's office is a key position in county government," Gustas said. "It gives me the opportunity to tie together all of the things that I have been working on thus far.

"I have begun to restructure the Treasurer's office, and am in the process of developing new programs to improve the fiscal stability of the county," he added.

During Gustas' first seven months in office, he said he netted over $440,000 in earned interest from investment of county funds. The previous treasurer had earned only $3,359,000 in interest during his first seven months.

"I am confident that as this campaign progresses and begins to focus on the accomplishments and goals of the various candidates that I shall be successful in September," Gustas said.

"I am a firm believer in the democratic process," he concluded. "It's the only appointment process I really care about and one I am looking forward to participating in."

The Treasurer is a native of Wilmington and graduated from Wilmington High School. Subsequently, he took just three years to earn his B.A. from Wesleyan University, and another three years to earn a law degree from New England School of Law. He is a member of the Mass. Bar Assn.

Gustas and his wife, Terry, are also veterans of the United States Peace Corps, having served in Malaysia. While there, Gustas was responsible for working with Malay businesses in dealing with the free enterprise systems.

The Gustas's have three children. Their oldest two, a son, Casey Ryan, and a daughter, Kelly Ann, are both two years old. The youngest, another son, John Patrick, just turned 1.

In summation, Gustas had this to say: "It has been a very active three years for me. I have been able to use my knowledge and ability to improve the efficiency and operation of Middlesex County Government. I look forward to using the next six years to finish the job I have begun."

A WARM WINTER WILL GET YOU $500.
Carrier
HEATING & COOLING

HERE'S HOW:

1. Buy a Carrier high-efficiency furnace or residential heat pump between September 1, 1984 and January 1, 1985. Combined with your forced air furnace, it'll get you the most heat for your dollar this winter. And next summer, your heat pump gets twice the cooling efficiency of older air conditioners.
2. We'll guarantee a cold winter or else. If the average outdoor temperature is more than 4 degrees above normal from September 1, 1984 thru April 1, 1985, we'll pay you $500.
3. We'll even buy up your dead or dying central air conditioner. Talk to us about our COLD WEATHER GUARANTEE. We have the complete details. And we'll talk to you about a great deal.

*Normal temperature will be determined by data recorded by the National Weather Service in the county where the equipment is installed. The program is designed by Good Weather, Jericho, NY. Offers available from participating dealers to single-family homeowners until Jan. 1, 1985. Void where prohibited.

WE BUY-UP OLD, INEFFICIENT FURNACES.
WHEN YOU BUY CARRIER.

Officials: School, Safety Should Go Hand-In-Hand

As the summer rolls toward the end we must think of school reopening, advises the Winchester Police Dept. Children's pedestrian routes and crossings will be changing, and an emphasis should be upon care and caution wherever cars and children travel.

Prior to the school renewal will be the buying of school clothing and supplies and extra caution must be shown in business districts and shopping areas. Extra care and alertness is in order on the part of drivers, parents and children, who in the excitement of the day may throw common sense and caution to the wind.

New routes to bus stops and numerous crossings to and from schools will continue to require the attention of the driver.

According to Safety Officer Kevin

Mawn, school children will be receiving continual instruction in where and how to cross any street. Officer Mawn suggests parents travel the school routes with their young children pointing out potential dangers.

Chief John McHugh and Mawn suggest parents discuss with their children the following:

1. Look all ways before crossing any street, including driveways. Explain that cars back out of driveways and that drivers have limited vision — therefore, the child has a responsibility to look.
2. Cross, wherever possible, with a school traffic officer, police officer, at a crosswalk, or at a corner.
3. Use signal lights and cross only on the pedestrian cycle.
4. On any street, with or without signal lights, watch for turning cars.

Know the corners with control lights and where right turns are allowed.

5. Eliminate any use of Walkman type radios or other radios which could minimize attention or alertness.

6. Insist children walk the same route every day with a sense of purpose — to get to school or home. The time involved should be the same every day. Past experience shows that the child that lacks a sense of purpose or destination is usually the one involved in accidents.

7. Check with the safety officer and teacher as to the safety rules or approaches which may vary due to local conditions.

We all have the same interest in the safety of our children and teaching them at an early age to protect themselves is a lesson that will carry a lifetime, says Chief McHugh.

Archival Center Expands Its Hours

The Henry E. Simonds Archival Center of the town of Winchester will reopen for the year in September. The center will have expanded hours this fall.

The schedule for the year is as follows: Tuesday, 9 - noon, Wednesday, 7 - 9:30 p.m.

This represents an additional 4 1/2

Markey's Shown Himself To Be Unqualified, Say Area Newspapers

The Winchester Star endorses Sam Rotondi in the Democratic Primary nomination race for the Seventh Congressional District.

This shouldn't come as a surprise. Rotondi is a Winchester resident and served us well for three terms as State Senator. And we have been highly critical of incumbent Cong. Ed Markey from time to time.

Markey usually is regarded as a super-liberal, although his flip-flop on a number of issues brings into question just where he does stand. This newspaper is considered conservative by some, although we consider ourselves just a little closer to mainstream America than many Massachusetts politicians.

So for us to just list our reasons for endorsing Sam Rotondi might be passed off as so much rhetoric. Instead, we choose to reprint what some of the other newspapers in the Seventh Congressional District are saying about Ed Markey. These papers certainly range the liberal-conservative spectrum and none have been complimentary about Congressman Markey, his performance in office, or his apparent qualifications for reelection.

Ed Markey was the first candidate to jump into the race for Paul Tsongas' U.S. Senate seat when Tsongas chose not to run. He was also the first to get out of that race. Three of the four people running for Markey's congressional seat were incumbent state representatives.

Markey announced his change of mind and switched back to run for reelection with less than three hours left before the filing deadline for nomination papers for state rep. This tactic was obviously designed to keep these reps in the congressional race, giving Markey an easy walk to his old seat by splitting the vote five ways.

The Boston Herald said: "Rarely in Massachusetts politics has there been an act of such unmitigated selfishness as that committed by U.S. Rep. Edward Markey... in timing his announcement on the very day that certain nomination papers... has to be filed... he threw a number of other contests in chaos and jeopardized the political careers of quite a few promising young Democrats."

"Markey's decision and its disastrous timing seriously call into question not only the qualifications of the man to win a seat in the Senate, but also his ability to hold on to his own U.S. House seat."

"Politics, for all its rough and tumble outward appearance, used to be a gentleman's game, a game with certain unwritten, but nonetheless understood rules. Ed Markey broke those rules. His constituents and his political opponents should not allow him to forget that."

The Boston Globe also criticized Markey's sudden decision and called for him to return money raised for the Senate campaign. The Globe said: "In the end, of course, Markey's constituents in his House district will be the arbiters of all of this. It is to the electorate that he must answer for his wavering. But he should be judged in a fair fight against his opponents."

"Much has been made in the Senate campaign about the undue influence of money in politics. Markey raised more than $270,000 in the first three months of this year for his Senate fight... Markey should begin his new campaign by returning the funds contributed to his Senate race and starting fresh. That is the least he can do for a political process he has done so much to ensnarl."

The Lynn Item said of Markey's switch, "The political process was the ultimate loser this week with the announcement by Cong. Ed Markey of Malden that he is dropping out of the race for the U.S. Senate... With what appeared to be a profound lack of courtesy and respect to other public officials whose careers he instantly changed, Markey said he would seek reelection to his congressional seat. Five months of planning and campaigning by others... were turned upside down. The anger of those who are dedicating their lives to public service is understandable."

The Revere Journal, commenting on Markey's actions said: "However, the manner in which he acted in this situation has raised doubts of the credibility of his word and whether or not he has a self-seeking individual."

"He has always appeared to be a man of compassion and consideration but the manner in which he handled this situation showed no tact but gave the impression he is a relentless politician caring only for himself and his own welfare."

"We know from where we sit that politics is a strange game and you should never be surprised by what any elected official does — however, Markey has shaken our faith and left us very disappointed — we expected more."

The political columnists in both the Globe and the Herald didn't let Markey off as easily as the editorial page comments.

Peter Lucas in The Boston Herald said:

"The fact of the matter is that Markey looked into the awful abyss of defeat (in the Senate race) and panicked. Nothing frightens a politician like Markey more than being out of office. After all, he's done nothing else in his life but run and hold public office."

"Fast Eddie, the first one in the fight to succeed outgoing Sen. Paul Tsongas, and the first one out, was in over his head from the very beginning... But if character is the issue — Markey's character — then Fast Eddie, who has waffled on major issues in the past, has a problem."

And in The Boston Globe, a liberal and ordinarily pro-Markey paper, columnist David Farrell said:

"The timing of Markey's pullout suggests that he is a selfish politician who will go to extraordinary lengths to stay in the plush surroundings of the Capitol. His expedient flip-flop — only 160 minutes before the signature deadline for state legislative seats — was an arrogant political act."

"There's little doubt it was designed to improve his reelection prospects..."

"The most reprehensible feature of Markey's switch (on certain campaign issues for the Senate fight) wasn't the timing that was designed to benefit his Senate campaign. It was his public pronouncement that as a product of a Catholic upbringing, he had had a narrow view of what was involved (in the pro-choice issue)."

"Beyond that argument's appeal to anti-Catholic elements in our society, Markey's interviews and the position paper he issued in January raise more questions about whether he's on the level."

"During the days following his headlong rush into the Senate contest... Markey groveled to NOW and other liberal groups that had previously castigated him in his effort to disassociate himself from his past votes on abortion, busing and school prayer."

Markey has somehow managed to take all sides in these issues depending on which office he is campaigning for and to which group he is speaking.

Even The Boston Phoenix, the liberal weekly alternative paper, has pointed out these inconsistencies and Markey's two-faced approach to key issues.

In an article entitled "Markey's Retreat, A Low Profile In Courage," The Boston Phoenix said:

"Many liberals declined to accept Markey's offering that he had 'grown' beyond his lifelong opposition to abortion rights (and his six-year record of support for school prayer and tuition tax credits), especially since Markey's aides offended them by attempting to salve their concerns by insisting that Markey was '90 percent on everything else.'"

"In January, when Markey was trying to convince pro-choice skeptics that his new position on abortion was sincere, he said that his political ambitions and horizons had broadened over the years, so too had his opinions... he had grown to adopt a more expansive, cosmopolitan vision of the world. But the style in which Markey left the race for Senate suggests that he had serious second thoughts about just how much he's grown. No doubt the voters will also think twice."

The Phoenix also pointed out: "Already Markey's vacillation has become a campaign issue, an issue with some currency since it reinforces the image Markey already has of being a political flyweight... Even Markey supporters consider his loss of nerve unbecoming a major political figure..."

"Markey failed to live up to the standards he set for himself and told the voters to judge him by..."

Ed Markey's main claim to fame has been his leadership of the so-called nuclear freeze movement. The Phoenix and other papers chastized him for letting down the pro-freeze supporters by dropping out of the Senate race. (But this is a non-issue; nobody is in favor of nuclear war. The freeze zealots really want a unilateral freeze but are afraid to state that explicitly because it is politically unacceptable. Instead they attack anything with the word "nuclear" attached.)

The Lowell Sun said of Markey:

"In spite of his nuclear obsession — or perhaps because of it — he has not been a distinguished Congressman. His concentration on that issue is misplaced. His unreasonable opposition to all things nuclear extends to nuclear power plants. If Seabrook up there in New Hampshire is in difficult straits today, it's because of shortsighted people like Mr. Markey. What he has contributed to solving the nation's power problem has been entirely negative."

And as to his qualifications for election to either the Senate or the House of Representatives, the Lowell Sun said, "He would be best placed of all outside both of them."

As to Ed Markey's contributions to this Congressional District, The Everett Leader Herald summed up the situation in an editorial entitled "Ed Markey Is Out Of Touch." The Leader Herald noted that over 2,500 people in Massachusetts now work on the MX missile in Massachusetts and if the program is fully funded it will mean 9,000 jobs and $2.6 billion in contracts for local companies.

The Everett Leader Herald said: "The greatest concentration of MX work in Massachusetts is being done in the 7th Congressional District which is represented by Edward Markey. Markey and his colleagues from Massachusetts voted as a block 10-0 to kill the MX program."

"Once again Markey is Markey. The hell with the workers in the 7th Congressional District."

"Could you possibly imagine a Southern Congressman in a tobacco state voting to add to the burden of the tobacco industry? Or, the Congressman from the farm states voting to cut subsidies for the farmers?"

"Ed Markey is out of touch with his constituents in the 7th Congressional District and should be retired."

Finally, The Malden Evening News, Ed Markey's own hometown newspaper says:

"If Congressman Markey now finds himself in uncomfortable reelection circumstances, he has no one to blame but himself."

"Clearly, from where we stand, Sam Rotondi deserves the congressional nomination as a citizen whose service in public life in the State Senate has been exceptional, and who, as a family man well aware of people's needs and problems, can respond to them as only a man and a candidate who is one of them."

As far as we are concerned, The Winchester Star can say no more. The Boston Globe, The Boston Herald, The Boston Phoenix, The Lowell Sun, The Revere Journal, The Everett Leader Herald and The Malden Evening News have said enough.

Ed Markey does not have the personal character of a man deserving reelection to Congress.

Ed Markey does not have the interests of his district at heart in his representation of us. His positions are shaped by his need to build a national image and his own ego-feeding, not by the needs and concerns of his constituents.

Sam Rotondi is our choice for Congress. And he should be yours.

Parenthood Makes Life A Challenge

By TERRY MAROTTA

F. Scott Fitzgerald once said that there were no distinctions between peoples, distinctions of race or class or education, as sharp and clear as the distinction between the sick and the healthy.

I'd take it one step further. What I would say is that there's no sharper distinction among people than the one created by the state of parenthood.

People who have children are branded for life; you can spot them a mile away, and I'm not just talking about the women. This goes beyond the Purple Heart of stretchmarks, way beyond the wider pelvis, broadened irretrievably by Nature to act as studio apartment for small and rent-exempt tenants.

What I'm talking about here goes beyond the physical exigencies of reproducing yourself. People who have raised children simply have a certain look about them, around the eyes, especially. They look like the cantaloupes put out at half-price for quick sale: dented, slightly, and no longer shining with taut roundness.

They look like automobiles that have seen serious car accidents, accidents with much clashing and fender folding, accidents that have left them repaired, perhaps, hammered out and painted anew, but accidents that have left them slightly unaligned and distinctly off plumb. Most parents have a certain involuntary shimmy at the higher speeds.

People without children keep houses stocked with lengthy novels and games like Trivial Pursuit. People with them keep houses stocked with moth collections and games like Chutes and Ladders.

When we were childless, we always had fresh candles around for romantic evenings. The last time I saw a candle, it was half-eaten, with toothmarks around its remaining circumference that told the gruesome tale.

Then, we kept fresh lemons on ice and ground our own coffee. An assortment of ripe cheeses awaited us in the refrigerator.

Now the lemons are moldy, and we drink instant coffee. An assortment of ripe overalls awaits us in the basement.

Then, we kept six-packs of beer ready for the casual drop-in.

Now we keep six-packs of formula, and there are no drop-ins, unless you count Sniffles, the school bunny who came to spend last Easter vacation.

People without children have fig trees in the living room; people with them have crutches in the basement, and enough slings and Ace bandages to fit out the Spirit of 76 ten times over.

People with children keep Ipecac in the medicine cabinet against the day when the 10-year-old eats a Roach Motel on a dare. People without children don't know what Ipecac even is, and it's a good bet the Roach Motel is a mystery to them too.

The childless sleep long and dreamlessly at night. The childful sleep hardly at all. Parents of older children lie awake worrying that their offspring, out for the evening, are even then being lured into opium dens by sly and long-fingered foreigners.

Parents of younger children find themselves wakened almost hourly by the nocturnal hijinks: if it isn't a bad dream, it's a wetting; if it isn't either of these, it's the eerie sound, odd but unmistakable, of a hundred flesh-padded bones clattering to the floor as somebody falls out of bed.

Before we had children, I rose in the morning refreshed, and floated about my early tasks in flimsy chemises and dressing gowns.

Now I rise like the smog over Los Angeles, and sprint from chore to chore in gym shorts and a Roadrunner T-shirt.

Then, my husband and I smelled of perfume and aftershave. Now it's Bactine and magic markers.

A final illustration will serve to summarize my meaning here. In the days Before Children, their father-to-be went to work wearing a gold watch, and the vests of the corporate helpful. He drew the Harvard Business School Bulletin fourth from his briefcase, to glance at in odd moments.

More recently, with those years B.C. a distant memory, he went to work one day as usual. The gold watch had been lost some six years ago; fed to a teddy as likely as not. He arrived at his meeting and called it to order. Businesslike, he stood and drew forth the contents of his briefcase: a Ranger Rick magazine, four dot-to-dot books, and the underpants, frilly and undeniable, of Baby Crawl-Away.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dog Training Praised

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am currently training my dogs in the Winchester Recreation Dog Training class taught by Kathy Cullen. It is a wonderful program. All dog owners should try it out.

Those of us already in class are very grateful for the excellent articles and pictures produced by your paper. The publicity keeps people aware of this great opportunity to improve the quality of their lives with that of their dogs.

We hope the Recreation Dept. will find an indoor location so that this program can continue through the fall and winter.

Sincerely yours,

Robert Mirak:

He Writes To Keep Armenian History Alive

BY LIZ WILLEN

The memory of being an outsider still haunts him at times, but Robert Mirak, the author of the first comprehensive account of Armenian American history, says he will never again be ashamed of who he is.

When Mirak was growing up in Winchester, he was the son of an Armenian immigrant, once a penniless orphan, who had forged an empire for himself in the automobile industry. Yet, despite his father John's financial success in America, Mirak was acutely aware of the differences between himself and his classmates.

His was one of no more than four Armenian families in Winchester. His skin was darker than that of his peers. As a second-grader at the Wyman School, he was embarrassed by his last name — so much so that he recalls pretending that he was Robert Smith, not Mirak.

Bringing friends home, at that early age, was slightly uncomfortable for him — his parents spoke Armenian, and his friends would wonder, "What is that funny language?"

Some of those tensions eased as he grew older. At Winchester High School, Mirak was elected president of his senior class. And he attended Williams College, where he remembers feeling far more relaxed, despite the fact that the overwhelming majority of the student body were "Yankees."

Today, Robert Mirak, intensely proud of his heritage, lives with his wife Alice, and daughters Jill and Jennifer, on Plato terr., and is one of at least 60 Armenian families in town.

He is an adjunct professor of history at Boston University, a popular lecturer on Armenian history, and, when he is not managing his father's real estate holdings, he maintains active social and cultural ties to the large Armenian community in this area — particularly Watertown and Belmont.

Not only has he regained a sense of pride in his own heritage, but, by publishing "Torn Between Two Lands" this year, he has left a legacy he hopes will long be remembered.

"To me, the most important thing about publishing this book is that both non-Armenians and the Armenian community are going to be reading it," he says. "I didn't write it for scholars — I wrote it to make a long-lasting contribution."

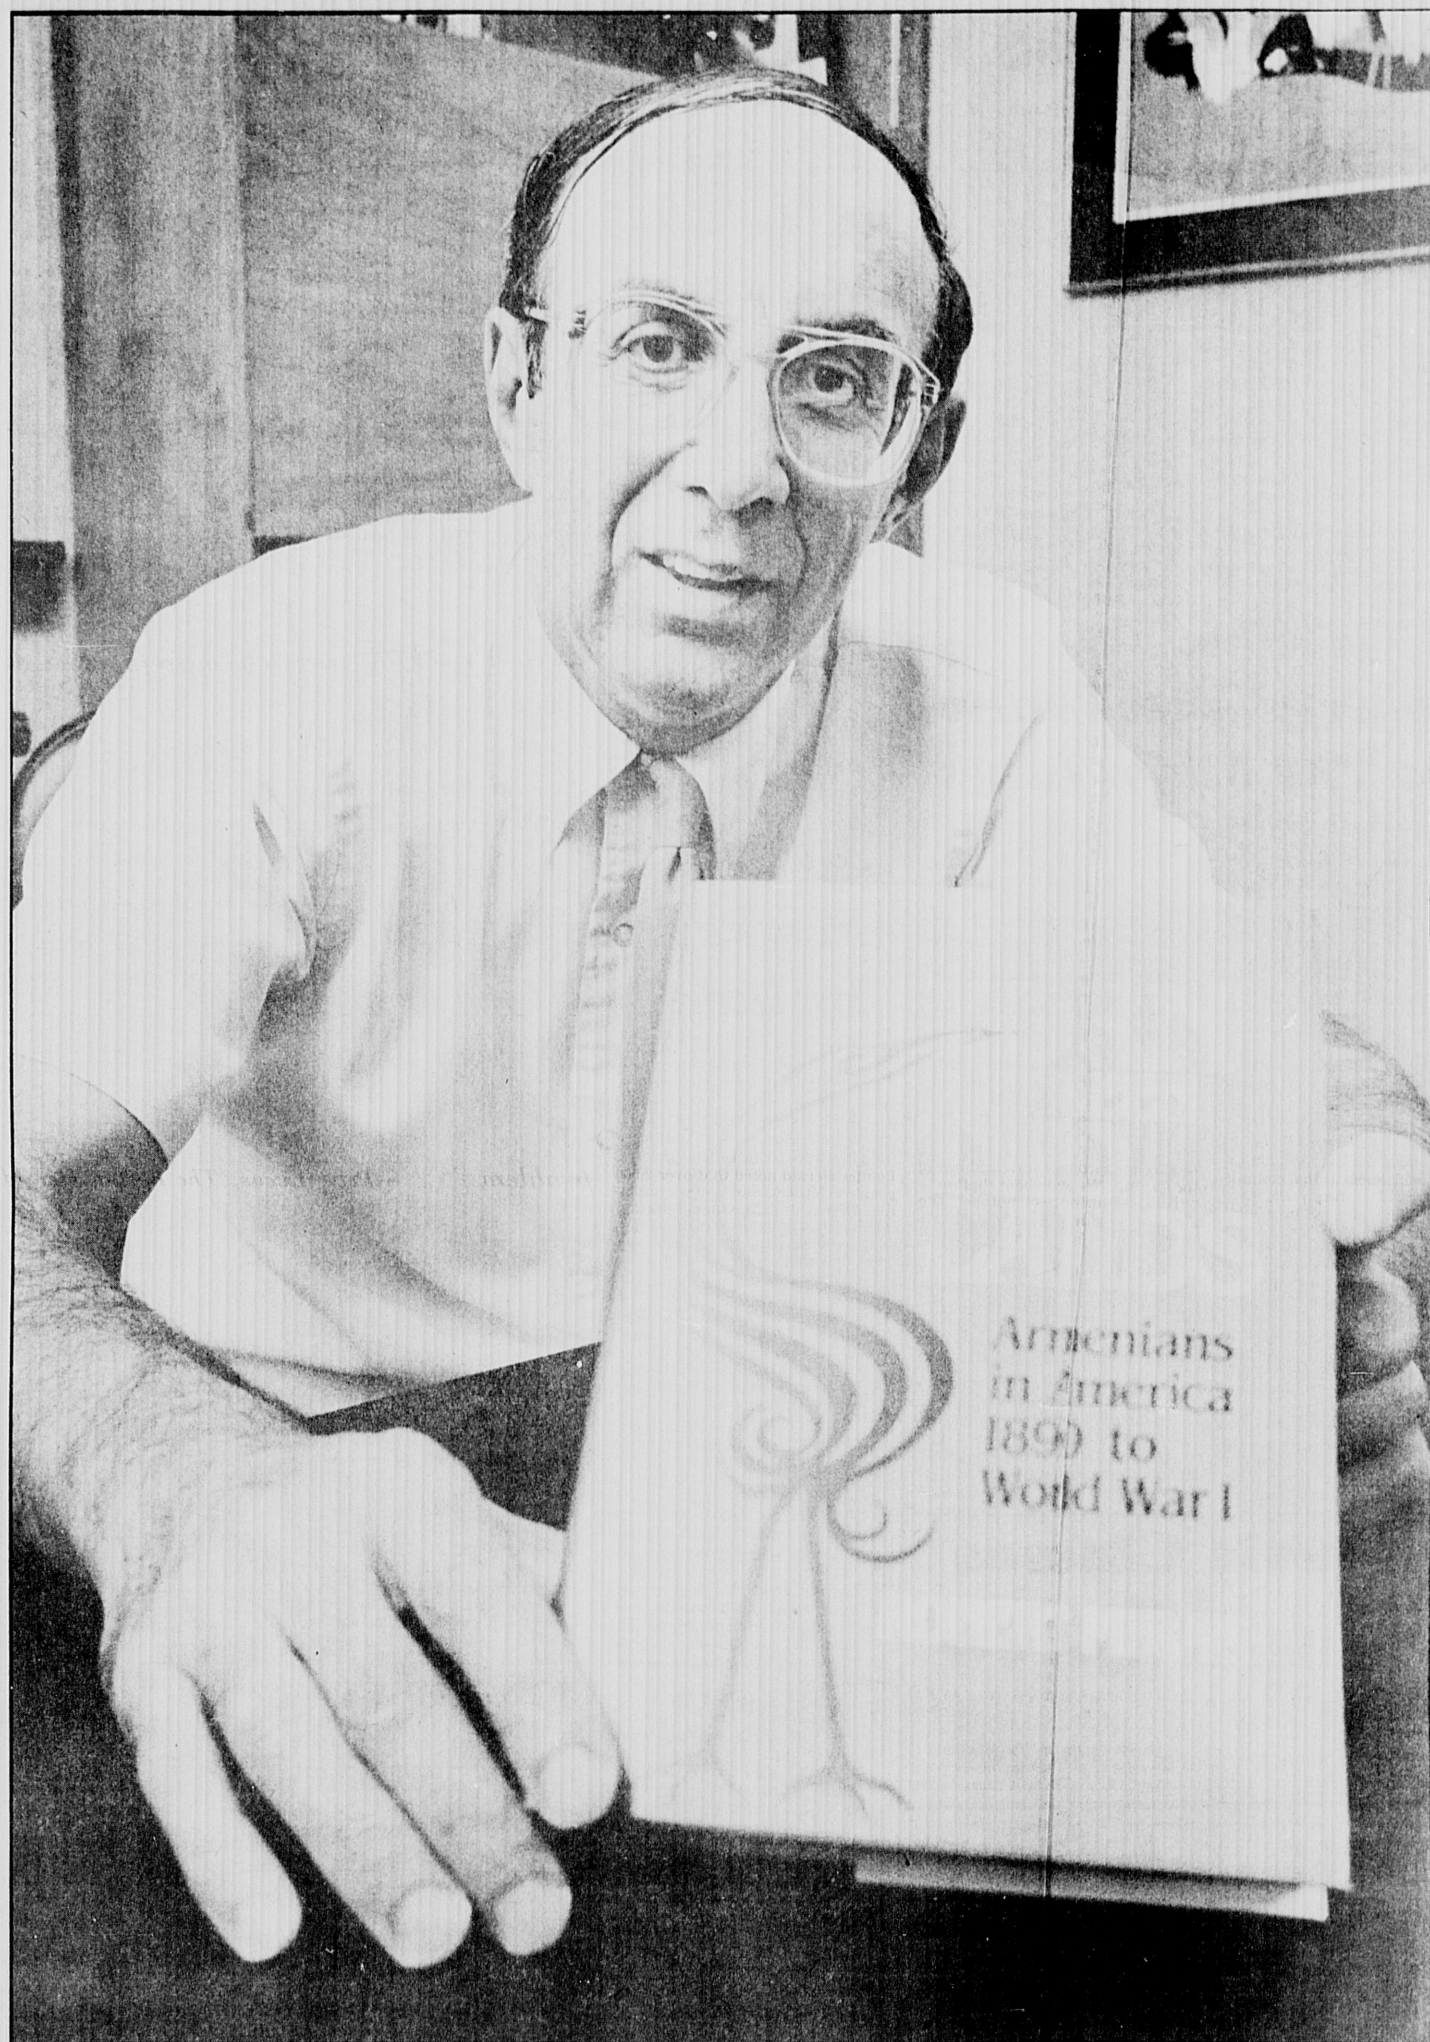

Making a contribution to the Armenian community is something Mirak has been doing for years. His earlier discomfort, and his innate sense of himself as an outsider, has been transformed into an obligation to ensure that the history of his people is not forgotten.

That history, he says, has in the past been largely neglected. In fact, the only other important study of the Armenian community in America was written over 60 years ago. Mirak's task, when he began the book as his doctoral dissertation at Harvard, was to examine the origins and development of the Armenian community from 1890 to World War I.

Mirak only began to delve into Armenian history after he had studied English history at Oxford University and was pursuing his doctorate degree in American history from Harvard.

Sitting in his comfortable office at the new Mirak Chevrolet showroom on Mass. ave. in Arlington Heights, he remembers his initial hesitation, and then excitement, of uncovering his own past and that of his ancestors.

"When I was at Harvard, an advisor told me, 'It's your duty to write about the Armenians,'" he recalls. "And it made sense to me, especially after studying so much about American and European history."

Mirak also had to learn to read Armenian to accomplish his task. Pulling out yellowed documents with tiny, ornate script, he recalls the difficulty of uncovering so much of his research in a language that was new to him.

"It was challenging — but fascinating," he says. "My basic sources were the archives of Armenian missionaries, and letters and reports at the Houghton Library at Harvard. I also examined newspapers (in Worcester and Lawrence, where large numbers of Armenians settled) and Fresno, Calif."

Mirak studied the columns of immigrant newspapers, which "richly revealed the immigrants' thoughts and aspirations and the realities of immigrant life in the United States," he writes.

Mirak wanted to write a highly readable account of some of the struggles the Armenian community had to deal with, both during the Ottoman Empire, when much of their culture was destroyed, and in America, where more than 100,000 immigrants had settled by 1920.

Any study of Armenian history, Mirak warns, must deal with a certain fear on the part of some members of the Armenian community. "There is a sense that we are becoming assimilated, and there is a fear of extinction in our community," Mirak explains.

"There is now an intermarriage rate at over 70-80 percent in the Armenian community," he continues. "And there is a sense that we may become completely Americanized and forget about our past."

That past is a tumultuous one, marked by dark periods of prolonged suffering. For almost 40 years before World War I, the foundations of Armenian society in the Ottoman Empire were virtually destroyed.

According to Mirak, the forces the contributed to that destruction included: "The Russo-Turkish War of 1877-1878, the cholera epidemics and famine of the 1880s, the Hamidian massacres of the mid-1890s, and the systematic massacre and deportation of 1 million Armenians during World War I."

There is another factor as well, he says. "There is a slight paranoia that there is no 'Armenia,' anymore," he explains.

Historic Armenia, according to Mirak, lies in the mountainous northeast corner of Asia Minor, strategically located between East and West, and rich in agricultural lands and natural resources.

Its history, he says, is "a chronology of long sieges, subjugation, vassalship and martyrdom interspersed with brief but brilliant periods of political independence and cultural efflorescence."

However, when Armenians think of their old country, according to Mirak, what come to mind is the Armenian provinces of Turkey, in Eastern Turkey, as well as present day Soviet Armenia.

There are two and half million Armenians who live in Soviet Armenia, which is considered a Soviet Socialist Republic ruled by Armenians who are members of the communist Soviet ruling party. It is, Mirak says, one of the most progressive of the Soviet republics, both economically and in terms of education.

It was during the Turkish Massacres, between 1894 and World War I, when many Armenians fled their country for America, that hundreds of thousands of Armenian refugees poured into what is now known as Soviet Armenia.

"With their own determination, they turned a very poor and mountainous land, that wasn't much more than a wilderness, into a very progressive country," Mirak explains.

"However," he continues, "Armenian Americans today are very divided on Soviet Armenia. They agree that they would like a free Armenia, and some say that what there is now is close to a homeland, as the inhabitants speak Armenian."

Others, however, feel that it is still not an authentic homeland, and they are anxious to have a liberated Armenia.

According to Mirak, many of these questions are burning ones for the Armenian community here. He does not address the questions in any depth in "Torn Between Two Lands," because most of the questions arose after World War I.

"These are the questions I would answer if I were to write a sequel to this book," Mirak says with a smile, glancing at the array of textbooks, family photographs and bright red jacket covers from his first book. "A lot of people have asked me to do it, and I'm considering it."

The Winchester Star

The Primary Elections

Congressional Candidates Seek Voters' Support

Markey Highlights His Local Campaign Staff

(The Star permits candidates to submit three press releases. This is the second release submitted by 7th district Congressman Edward Markey.)

Cong. Ed Markey's campaign for re-election has been receiving a great deal of support from many prominent residents of Winchester.

In 1976, during his initial run for Congress, Winchester provided Markey with his largest margin of victory. Many of the Winchester residents working with Markey this year were part of that 1976 effort.

"I have an especially fond feeling for Winchester," Markey said. "It is an issue-oriented community with an historically active political community. I'm gratified and encouraged by the depth of the support I've received here this year and in the past eight years."

Heading the Markey effort in Winchester are campaign co-ordinators Agnes Connolly and Barbara Boylan.

Connolly is a former feature writer for The Woburn Daily Times, having written for the paper for three years. She served as Markey's campaign press secretary in 1982. A resident of Canterbury rd., she is employed as a research associate and grant proposal writer for Simmons College.

Boylan of Nassau dr. is a lifelong Winchester resident. A graduate of the University of Notre Dame, she earned a master's degree in architecture from MIT and works as an architect for a Sudbury firm.

In addition to Boylan and Connolly, three Winchester residents are members of the campaign's finance committee — Sal Porras, Neal Harte and Al Keenan.

Porras has been a member of the Winchester Rotary Club for 23 years, and is a past president and past district governor. He was recently named a Paul Harris Fellow, one of the highest honors a Rotarian can receive. He has also been active in the Winchester Chamber of Commerce and is a member of the Board of Appeals in Winchester.

A resident of Robinson cir., Porras has lived 28 years in Winchester. He is a World War II Army Air Force veteran.

Neal Harte of 36 Mayflower rd. is the vice president of the Winchester Rotary Club. Harte works as a certified public accountant and is a member of the board of directors of Choate-Symmes Hospital.

Al Keenan, a resident of 42 Amberwood dr., is an insurance agent with the firm of Keenan and Taylor Insurance Inc. Keenan said he supports Markey because of his "concern for the people and his hard work on major issues."

Markey has also received support from former Town Democratic Committee chairwoman Mae Serieka and Selectman Mike Saraco.

"The Democratic party has made great strides in Winchester," Markey said. "Mae Serieka has seen the party grow from modest beginnings in Winchester to its current vibrant state and she can take much of the credit for the party's growth."

Earlier this month, Serieka and Selectman Saraco were among the more than 100 Winchester residents who attended a party on behalf of Markey at the Sons of Italy. Since that time, the Markey organization has distributed campaign literature to Winchester households and sponsored two well-attended fundraisers in the town.

"I couldn't be more pleased with the strength of our organization in Winchester," Markey said. "Over these last two weeks, I'm confident that the positive message of our campaign will reach every voter in Winchester."

While Markey has campaigned on a wide range of issues he has worked on in Congress, he has stressed the major issues of arms control, the environment, economic development, women's rights and the "fairness" issue of providing aid to the poor, to education and to the elderly.

Markey has been a leader on arms control issues as the lead sponsor of the nuclear freeze resolution which passed the House in 1983. On environmental issues, Markey is the author of the New England Acid Rain Protection Act and was involved in the fight which increased federal Superfund appropriations for the cleanup of hazardous waste sites from $1.6 billion to $10.2 billion.

During the last five years, Markey has fought for 23 major competitive federal grants for the cities of the 7th District. These grants have spurred the creation of over 3,000 jobs and contribute to the fact the 7th District has the lowest unemployment rate of the state's Congressional districts, as well as the second lowest east of the Mississippi River.

Markey has vowed to continue to fight for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment and to make sure the needs of the nation's less fortunate are not sacrificed during the future work on correcting the enormous deficit in the federal budget.

"There is a lot of work to be done in Congress in the near future," Markey said. "With eight years of experience and the seniority necessary to make a difference, I look forward to returning to Congress and fighting on behalf of the people of the 7th District."

Markey's Supporters Include NY Governor

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, whose keynote speech was a highlight of this summer's Democratic national convention, has issued a statement in support of Cong. Ed Markey.

"I am proud to have Gov. Cuomo's support," Markey said. "I look forward to returning to Congress and continuing the work which has earned his support, and the support of many others."

Gov. Cuomo's statement follows: "It is dedicated people like Ed Markey who make this Democratic party great. Rep. Markey is an effective voice in Congress and is dealing with today's problems by working for solutions which benefit the people."

"As a member of Congress for the past eight years, Ed Markey has been an active spokesman for the public good on issues ranging from the nuclear freeze to tax policy and from Superfund to education. Through these efforts, he has contributed to making tomorrow better for all of us."

"Ed Markey is also a leader. He was the chief architect of nuclear freeze legislation in the past two Congresses, an original co-sponsor of Superfund, and a tireless advocate for the cleanup of dangerous toxic waste dumps.

"I particularly appreciate Cong. Markey's continuing and thorough scrutiny of the federal government's regulation of nuclear power. As Chairman of the House Interior Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, Ed Markey has worked hard for nuclear power safety and has repeatedly brought to light inadequacies and abuses of the federal regulators."

Markey, a national leader on arms control issues and the environment, expressed his appreciation for Cuomo's support, saying it represented approval of his work on behalf of the Democratic party's basic constituency — working men and women.

The New York governor's convention speech was widely praised as an inspirational reminder of the Democratic party's role in helping create opportunities through hard work and education. Cong. Markey is being supported by the state AFL-CIO and the two largest teacher's organizations.

"Gov. Cuomo's speech struck a responsive chord with the American people," Markey said. "It reminded us of what government is supposed to be: an institution that helps the many and not the few."

FAMILY AFFAIR — Letting everyone know who they are supporting are Annie, Dee (Sam's wife), Lauren Sarah and Jeff Rotondi. Sam Rotondi, seeking election in the 7th Congressional District, recently received endorsements from The Malden News, The Medford Mercury, The Melrose Evening News, the state board of Americans for Democratic Action, and labor groups including the Mass. State Council of Bricklayers and Joiners, The state Ironworkers Union, International Brotherhood of Police Officers, Service Employees International Union Local 254, National Assn. of Government Employees, Council of Eastern Mass. Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen and the Retired State, County and Municipal Employees. (This photo represents Rotondi's final press release to The Star before the primary election.)

Rotondi Notes His Endorsements

(The Star permits candidates to submit three press releases. This is the second release submitted by 7th Congressional district candidate Samuel Rotondi.)

Sam Rotondi (D-Winchester) has been endorsed by 123 present and former local officials in his bid for the Seventh Congressional district seat. At a press conference held in front of the John F. Kennedy Federal Office Building in Boston, Rotondi thanked the officials and called the endorsement "tangible public evidence that our campaign theme of bringing the district back to the people is taking hold locally."

The conference was moderated by Laurie Macdonald of Chelsea, the daughter of the late Congressman Torbert Macdonald, who served the Seventh district for more than 21 years until his death in 1976. Macdonald praised the public officials for making "a difficult and significant decision to endorse a challenger in a primary against a Democratic incumbent. This extraordinary action sends a clear signal to the voters of our district about Sam Rotondi's strength and about the need for a change."

Macdonald continued, "I believe that the Seventh needs a Congressman who will take care of the day-to-day needs of the average person the way Torbert Macdonald did."

Everett City Councilor Barbara Collins cited Rotondi's commitment "to the broad and better issues that affect our lives. Issues like health care, education, housing, and job training will get the attention that they deserve from a hard worker like Sam Rotondi."

Several officials expressed disappointment with incumbent Edward Markey's failure to work closely with officers of local government.

Rotondi's level of support was particularly impressive in the district's 10 towns where he received the endorsements of 67 percent of the district's Selectmen. The bulk of the remaining Selectmen are remaining neutral in the race or are prohibited from endorsing Rotondi by federal Hatch Act rules.

Rotondi announced that he would shift the location of the Congressional district office from the John F. Kennedy Federal Office Building in Boston to the district.

He noted, "the key to providing effective constituent services is accessibility. The people of our district deserve to have an office that they can reach in a convenient and inexpensive manner."

The 123 local officials endorsing Rotondi are:

Anthony Accardi, Wilmington, School Committee; Patricia Brady, Medford, School Committee; John Burley, Everett, City Councilor; Charles Caldwell, Tewksbury, Selectman; Brian Callahan, Medford, former City Councilor; Arthur Caxon, Winthrop, Housing Authority; Barbara Collins, Everett, City Councilor; Thomas H. Doherty Gives Position On The Major Issues

(The Star permits candidates to submit three press releases. This is the second release submitted by 7th Congressional district candidate Phil Doherty.)

Phil Doherty, Candidate for U.S. Congress in the 7th District, knows that most politicians like to hedge. That way they can change their position depending upon which way the wind is blowing or, better yet, which way the campaign funds are coming from.

However, Doherty has never been a politician so hasn't learned to quibble or sit on the fence. He has the strange notion that a candidate for a high and honorable office should make pledges on vital issues. Here are a few of his:

Abortion - Doherty pledges to never vote for abortion. In fact, he will work with other Pro-Life Congressmen to insure that no federal money will go toward the funding of abortion. He will always vote for human rights for the unborn.

Social Security - Doherty pledges to never vote for reduced social security benefits for the elderly. He will work to implement free medical care for the elderly, financed by a national lottery.

Military Preparedness - Doherty pledges to vote for a strong defense for our country so we can have peace through strength. Our men and women of the military services are giving up years of their life to protect us. We should support them. Doherty is a veteran of four years active duty and knows that we are free because we are strong.

Equality and Opportunity - Doherty pledges to vote for equal rights for all people in this great country. He feels that no group should have an edge on any other when it comes to opportunity. He is opposed to "extra" rights for gays or others, or quotas for any group.

Balanced Budget - Doherty pledges to vote for a constitutional amendment to balance the now-bloated federal budget. He is of the opinion that a balanced budget and a revised fair tax system is the fairest and best way to keep our economy healthy.

Honorable Service - Doherty pledges to work fulltime for the half million plus residents of the 7th District. He will not run around our country protesting nor continually blame our government for the world's ills. He will not be discourteous to the President of the United States nor will he sue him as his opponent has done.

He will not fight the leadership of the House of Representatives nor constantly harp about administration policies. Instead, he will work hard to gain the most for the people of his district and the people of this great country.

Metros Challenges State Election Laws

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

An Arlington woman who wants to run for the state Senate as an independent says the state forces independents to choose between their civic rights and duties — and she's taking the matter to court.

Helen Metros wants to run as an independent for the state Senate seat which represents the Arlington, Winchester, Lexington and Woburn.

But Secretary of State Michael Connolly's office ruled her ineligible to run as an independent, because she voted in the Democratic Presidential primary on March 13.

So Metros and her attorney, Mark Miliotis of Malden, are taking the matter into Middlesex Superior Court in Cambridge on Sept. 17, seeking a court order to allow Metros' name to appear on the ballot in November, and another ruling the state regulations unfair to independents in their wording or application.

"What we're saying is the sched-ing of the Presidential primary within 90 days of the state (candidates' filing) deadline discriminates against independents," Miliotis explains.

"The Democratic and Republican primaries are the only game in town — the only chance for independents to have a say in who will become president," Miliotis says. "Voting in them has nothing to do with running for state office."

Metros herself is silent on the issue, referring all matters to her attorney, except to vow that she will pursue the matter "to the highest possible court."

In Massachusetts, state laws allow independent voters to walk into either the Democratic or Republican primary and choose their preference among the presidential candidates. Voting in one of the primaries automatically enrolls the independent in that party.

But this year's primary occurred after the date when candidates had to remove themselves from party enrollments in order to run for state office as independents — 90 days before filing for state office.

In papers filed with the court, Metros and her attorney say the conflict in schedules "prevents an aspiring candidate for state office from exercising her right to vote in the national primary without jeopardizing her status to run for office as an independent."

They also argue that placing the state deadline before the primary imposes a heavy burden on independents, violating their equal protection under the 1st and 14th Amendments to the Constitution.

There are two Democratic candidates for the 3rd Middlesex state Senate seat — Alan Macdonald of Winchester, and the incumbent, Richard Kraus of Arlington — but no other independent or Republican candidates.

Metros herself has run for the seat in the past, as a Democrat, but she made a decision to run as an independent this time, filing pages of papers with officials in the four communities in the district.

Metros' court complaint is filed against Arlington's Town Clerk, Board of Registrars, and the Secretary of State.

"It's a unique situation, and I don't know how the courts will view it," Miliotis says. "I really think Helen has a point. 'Even if we're not successful in court, I expect this will probably spark some legislative initiative to remedy this. I don't think this was intentional.'"

"The question is, should Helen Metros be punished for participating as a citizen by voting in the presidential primary?" Miliotis argues. "She exemplifies the citizen candidate — a throwback, or maybe a throw-forward, to what people should do in terms of their civic duties."

Kick The Habit With New Smokers Program

The first "You Will Quit Smoking Instantly" program will be presented for Winchester residents on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at First Congregational Church located at 21 Church St. All smokers are invited.

Philip Carlman national director of The Stop Smoking Clinic, announced successful completion of the testing phase of the new federally approved and medically supervised Hypnosis/Nicorette program.

The tests, begun in April in cooperation with Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, allow the Stop Smoking Clinic to introduce the gum as part of its hypnosis programs. The clinic, a non-profit service based in Beverly, has served New England, New York, and Florida for the past eight years.

The Stop Smoking Clinic

originated among Beverly Churches when the Rev. Toby Van Buren, after having gone a year himself as an ex-smoker, decided to try to help others break the habit. Carlman quit smoking as a member of the very first class and later became Van Buren's first teacher. The program grew as Carlman became director and now presents over 200 clinics a year using over 30 specially trained teachers.

The Wednesday classes will be run by Dr. Leonard Dumas and Dr. Donald Burke of the Salem Hospital staff. Dr. Burke said that "by combining hypnosis methods with training in relaxation and stress management techniques that smokers can use with the Nicorette gum as they quit, a powerful tool has been created."

Seminar On Children

Parents of young children recently attended a seminar on questions and problems with their youngsters entering school this fall. The program was a community service presented by the Counseling Resource Center Inc. at 5 Spruce St. free of charge.

Dr. Freida A. Lang, clinical psychologist and president of the Parent Counseling Assn. of New England, discussed the feelings and attitudes of little children, and how parents can address situations and difficulties more effectively.

Parents experiencing difficulty in establishing relationships with their children are invited to send questions to the Counseling Resource Center Inc., care of Dr. Arthur Fultz, executive director.

★ Books

dent, standing by the cash register of Winchester's new bookstore, which opens officially on Saturday. "This is great — I've always thought that a bookstore is exactly what Winchester needed."

Mildred Cook, the proud new owner of Book Ends, couldn't agree with Kahn more. "For years, I wanted to open a bookstore here," she said, while rearranging a pair of antique book-ends on an oak table. "But just last year, I decided to get serious."

Getting serious meant renting out a portion of the Locatelli Building from landlord Kevin Foley, and transforming it into a "tranquil corner, a place to browse and read and enjoy books. This spot is really a little gem."

Other bookstores have tried to make a go of it in Winchester, and failed. As a result, there are "a lot of skeptics in town," according to Cook. However, she is optimistic about the survival of Book Ends, whose opening on Winchester terrace is coinciding with the entire downtown revitalization process.

"It's really an exciting time to be opening a new business — I feel really blessed to be here," Cook told Kahn, while wrapping up a psychology book that he had purchased for half price. Although the shop is not officially open, Kahn has allowed a few curious browsers to make purchases.

In keeping with the name of the store, Cook has a vast array of bookends, made of brass, silver and wood, adorning some of the tasteful antique furniture that rests upon an Oriental rug. A coffee pot fills the air with the fragrance of freshly brewed coffee, and customers are free to help themselves.

In addition to books, Cook will sell cards, the bookends, and some gift items. In one corner, a wooden desk with a huge quill pen will be a place where customers can fill out the decorative postcards Cook will also be selling.

The entire feeling of Book Ends is homey, cozy and conducive to reading, or merely browsing among the wide variety of titles that line the wooden shelves. There are over 45 categories of fiction, non-fiction, adult and children's books, including cookbooks, paperback best sellers, and antique books.

Cook stresses, however, that Book Ends is not a shop where you can expect to find any title, although she can accommodate specialty orders. The store, she explained, will carry paperback best sellers, in addition to used books, but it is primarily a "paperback exchange."

Book Ends is a place where used books can be purchased for half the cover price, and returned for credit towards another used book. Or, the credit can be kept on file for use at another time — when the selection will be one-half the cover price, minus the credit.

Cook spent much of the winter collecting books, from a variety of sources — including auctions, people's homes and the Enka Society fair this spring. She spent hours cleaning and sorting them, and rounding out her ample, well-rounded selection.

She did much of the work at her Mt. Vernon St. home. Cook, who once taught school, has two young daughters, Mandy and Christine, who have been helping her get the store together. Her husband Donald helped her install the bookshelves and do some of the work on the shop. For the most part, however, Book Ends has been Cook's own project — and she is tremendously excited about it.

Some of her future dreams for the shop include being a local box office for plays and civic events. She would also like to sponsor author brunches, and invite local authors to speak at the shop.

When the shop opens on Saturday, Sharon Kennedy Silverman, a teller of Irish tales, will be telling stories at Book Ends.

Cook has other far-reaching plans for the shop as well. But for the moment, she is simply excited to see a long-time dream getting off the ground.

"I want to walk before I run," she said with a laugh. "I'm just really happy to be here, ready to open."

Book Ends will be open from 10-5 on Tuesday through Friday, and 9-4 on Saturdays.

"A lot of Si Si's friends will be coming back from college to attend the mass," Conley said. "We're all very hopeful that Si Si will come out of this. It's just a matter of time, and we're all waiting patiently."

Help Is Now Here For Elderly Crime Victims

Older people who are the victims of crimes now have someone to turn to for help.

Ellen Frank is a victim's advocate operating through the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office. She recently addressed volunteers serving on the Elder Service Corps of Minuteman Home Care Corp. (MHCC).

According to Frank, the elderly and children are particularly vulnerable when a crime is committed against them. "Crisis intervention support, counseling and dealing with the aftereffects are important components of the Victim Witness Service Bureau. Many elderly people live alone and can't cope with the knowledge that the criminal may still be at large or with unidentified telephone calls. We try to stand by and be ready to help them through this difficult period."

The service includes acting as a link with the victims throughout each step of the prosecution process.

MHCC is a 16-town agency serving the elderly in the towns of Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Littleton, Lincoln, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

For further information about the volunteer program or other issues concerning the elderly, readers may call the Minuteman Aging Information Center, 83 Hartwell Ave., Lexington.

Booters Look To Depth To Return To Tourney Form

By Paul Ferullo

"Experience is our greatest asset," says Winchester High School Boys' Soccer coach Gene Bouley.

And with five returning starters and 11 seniors, the Sachems hope to be among the top contenders in the Middlesex League this year.

After an 11-4-3 record last year and the disappointment of missing the state tournament by a single point, the Sachems hope to better last season's mark and earn a birth in this year's tournament.

This year's squad does not have the benefit of any one top scorer - so teamwork will be of the utmost importance.

One of the keys to the Sachems' success will be that of depth. With so many talented players on the squad, each one will be pushing one another to perform to the best of their ability.

Positions are still being fought for during practices, and even though no one position is taken, the Sachems will definitely have a strong bench to back up their starters.

"Our halfbacks should prove to be one of major strengths of this year's team," says third-year veteran Rick Suvak.

With the loss of two starting fullbacks to graduation, the Sachems will be looking for returning starter Matt Williams to head the defense.

Seniors Matt Lyden and Marco Sartori will be fighting for a starting position, as will seniors Scott Wadman, Pat Birkely, juniors Scott Hughes, Kevin Racek, and Action last week in the scrimmage against Arlington.

sophomores Kent McCord and Steve Goudsouzian.

At the halfback position, the Sachems probably have two of the best in the league, Rick Suvak and Rob Anderson, both three-year starters are two of the most versatile players on the team.

Suvak and Anderson should be able to control the midfield and get the ball up to the forwards, while also being able to put the ball in the net and take off some of the pressure on the forwards.

Senior Paul Ferullo and junior Shawn Herlihy should fill up the other half back positions.

At the forward position, the Sachems will be looking for the underclassmen to add the offense. Sophomore Christoff Verhaegen, an exceptional play maker, should give the Sachems the scoring punch that is so desperately needed.

With players like Mike McGee, Nathan Bokil, David Swanson, and Mitchell Rodriguez, the Sachems should always have a fresh set of legs on the field.

With the loss of two senior goalies, junior Brian Gannon and sophomore Scott Racek are fighting for the position.

The morale and attitude in practice has been high and there are great expectations for a successful season.

Winchester's offensive and defensive capabilities have been evident so far in their scrimmage against Arlington, which they won by a 2-1 score.

Scrimmages are scheduled for Thursday against Newton North, and Saturday at home against Medford. The first league game will be against Belmont, one of the toughest opponents in the league.

See next week's Star for a preview of the fabulous Sachemette soccer team, last year's state champions.

Gridders May Be The Best Sachem Squad In Years

By Liz Willen

Coach Manny Marshall doesn't like to make predictions about this year's oversized, iron-pumping, pigskin-kicking Sachems. A man of few words, he doesn't think that predictions are fair to the players.

However, when the Sachems face Somerville in their non-league opener a week from Saturday, he is hoping that their style of play will say it all.

The truth is that this year's Sachems, with almost 25 returning players, may be the biggest, fastest and most experienced team that Winchester has had in years.

With a little prodding, Marshall will admit all this. However, despite his faith in the team's depth and experience, Marshall still holds true to his basic philosophy about football - that it is a game of emotions.

"The fact is, if you are not ready to play, someone can beat you," Marshall says. "It isn't like other sports, where you get to face a team more than once. You only get one chance in football, and you've got to be ready."

Marshall points to the two "heart-breaking games" that Winchester lost last season, giving the Sachems a final record of 4-5-1, a record that was not truly representative of the team's talent.

The team, however, was certainly not anything to be ashamed of. Quite the contrary.

But this year's team, in addition to an extra year of experience, has one huge advantage over last - size.

These Sachems are big. How big are they? Marshall, chuckling a bit, is more than happy to explain.

"We have some very big people," he says. "Very big."

How big?

guard, weighs in at 275. Defense tackle Andy Martinelli is considered "a comparatively little guy" - he weighs 242." David Koffman, a defensive end, stands at 6-foot-2, 215 pounds. Defensive end Dennis Clark adds another 215 pounds to the lineup.

That's big. Last year's Sachems were quick, and strong - but small. This year's Sachems are quick, strong and big.

"A lot of the big guys were big as sophomores and they've just gotten bigger," says Marshall. "And a lot of them didn't play last year."

The result of having 25 returning players is depth - and that is something that Marshall is particularly pleased about. He is also pleased at the "excellent shape" most of his players were in when they returned to the double-session practices that the team has been concentrating on for the past two weeks.

Marshall admits that the team has been missing the formidable presence of last year's co-captains, Pat Murray and Kevin Shaddock. However, they are fortunate to have an experienced starting quarterback, senior Bobbie Palmer, who was picked as the outstanding player in the Thanksgiving game against Woburn, and who is an excellent running quarterback, according to Marshall.

This year's co-captains are halfback Brian Carroll, who scored four touchdowns in the Thanksgiving game, and David Doherty, an offensive guard and linebacker.

"We are very fortunate to have such hardworking kids in Winchester who enjoy football so much," Marshall says. "They've been running and lifting diligently all summer, and it's really paid off."

The real pay-off remains to be seen, however. The league opener will be played against Belmont.

Colleen Shea, N. Keating Wed

Colleen Shea and Ned Keating were married May 6 at a nuptial mass at St. Agnes' Church in Reading.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Shea of Reading, was attended by her sisters, Julie Doyle and Meghan Shea.

The bridegroom, son of Claire Keating of West Chardon rd. and the late Thomas Keating, has as his best man Mark Keating of Bolton.

The ushers were John Hettnerman, Richard Murphy, Paul McCormack and Gilbert Frye.

A reception at the Lanam Club in Andover followed the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Nazareth Academy and the College of the Holy Cross. The bridegroom is a graduate of Winchester High School and the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Artists' Anniversary

Sixteen Winchester residents are celebrating a 50th anniversary this year — the anniversary of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society (LACS) which was founded in March of 1935.

M. Jean Barba, Lawrence Beckley, Robert Benzaquin, Frances Bronzo, Christine Cortizas, Jan Ferguson, Gloria Gello, Doris Holt, Wade Holtzman, Dorothea Jeffery, Mary McLean, Martha O'Connell, Dolores Rawding, Reta Wilcox.

Walter Wilcox, and Alice Yagjian are members of LACS, and as such, will be involved in the smorgasbord of events which will take place at the Society's building at 130 Waltham st. near the center of Lexington this year.

The public is invited to join in the celebration by attending these events. Admission is free and notice of upcoming events will appear in local and Boston media.

Amy Louise Harris,

J. L. Hoermann Exchange Vows

The marriage of Amy Louise Harris to Joseph Leonard Hoermann III took place Saturday, Aug. 21, at 11 a.m. at St. Eulalia Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Harris of Winchester, the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoermann Jr., Commack, N.Y.

The Rev. James Keenan, S.J., and the Rev. James Haddad, pastor of Saint Eulalia Church, concelebrated the nuptial mass following the marriage ceremony.

Susan E. Harris, Santa Monica, Calif., was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were: Patricia Flaherty, Boston; Gilleen Hunt, Golden Colorado; May Hoermann, Corpus Christi, Texas; and Jeanne Hoermann, Commack, N.Y. The latter two are sisters of the bridegroom.

Brian Hoermann served as best man for his brother and James Hoermann, also a brother of the bridegroom, was an usher. Ushers also were Brian Boornazian of Wetherfield, Conn., and James LaTorre, Summit, N.J.; Andrew J. Harris, Washington, D.C.; and William P. Harris, Winchester, brothers of the bride.

The couple, both graduates of Fairfield University, are residing in Cos Cob, Conn., following their wedding trip to Nova Scotia.

"Talk To The Man Who Will Do The Work"

★ Housing

the state. They indicated at that time that they were planning on sending in a preliminary draft plan by Aug. 31.

"If the state hadn't sent this letter, we'd be well on our way to putting together our proposal," one official told The Star. "This kind of threatening letter makes people not want to do it."

But Acting Town Manager Rick White and state officials both said the letter was not intended as an ultimatum.

Despite the reservations of some board members, the Housing Subcommittee began Tuesday to pick out potential sites for the required housing, and came up with a list of 12 possibilities.

The letter the subcommittee members reacted to came from John Flatley, assistant secretary of the state Executive Office of Communities and Development.

It proposed a ready-made housing plan for town officials to sign, "in light of... Winchester's failure to follow through on its commitment to broaden housing opportunities in the town."

In order to receive earlier state grants, Winchester officials had signed a memo of agreement with the state in 1982, promising to apply for funds to build low- and moderate-income family housing. The promised application was never filed.

Several members of the Housing Subcommittee were concerned that they will not be able to develop a housing plan that they can commit the town to by the Sept. 15 deadline.

"We are giving away the town (under Flatley's proposal), and I don't think we can do that," said Housing Authority member Mary Meader.

Meader and other subcommittee members stressed that they wanted more public notice of the discussions, and perhaps a public hearing before committing the town to any action plan.

Flatley said the letter was not intended as a take-it-or-leave-it proposition.

"The town signed an agreement several years ago to do certain things on housing, and they've never been done," Flatley explained. "We're saying that unless the town does something remedial, that shows a good faith effort on their part, we will have to recommend negatively on their grant."

"What I sent out was an example," Flatley said. "The town is welcome to offer a counter-proposal, and a new time schedule if they choose."

"Winchester needs to commit to a very specific plan of action, and an identifiable timetable by which we can measure their actions," Flatley added. "In fact, it's more important that the town come up with its own plan, one they can support."

The letter was not an ultimatum, agreed Acting Town Manager Rick White, but a response to the town's request for an example of the kind of "housing action plan" the state is seeking from Winchester.

Flatley's letter suggested a series of actions for the town to take by a set of dates: preliminary application for funding for scattered-site housing by Sept. 15; a list of developable property and a draft of a town housing policy by Oct. 15; plans for developing new housing and using existing housing programs to assist low- and moderate-income by Jan. 15; and a report on zoning and the town's proposals to revise zoning to accommodate the housing plan by Jan. 30.

His suggested plan calls for Winchester officials to identify locations to build low- and moderate-income housing around town, make any zoning or other regulation changes necessary to "remove any existing barriers to balanced growth," and set a time schedule for actual development of single- or multi-family units in town.

Winchester must comply with the state's housing guidelines to qualify for any state grants, Flatley explained.

"We have an agreement with the EOTC (Secretary of Transportation Frederick Salvucci's office)," Flatley said. "The $740,000 downtown renovation grant can be awarded Thursday, but under conditions. Provided the town does what it's promised to do, the funds should be released sometime in December."

Apparently taking the town's 1982 commitment — and the more recent letter — to heart, subcommittee members began to respond to the memo this week, listing 12 potential locations — 11 town-owned, and one privately owned — for up to three duplex units in each location. They also agreed to meet Tuesday night to work on a response to the state's letter.

The town-owned sites include land behind the DPW yard, along Sylvester ave., at the end of Sylvester ave., on the well field next to Lynch School, on Skillings rd. between Purity Supreme and the Shore rd. stoplight, on Shore rd., Highland ave., Bates, Tufts, and Dennett rds., at Mystic School, and along the Woburn loop right-of-way.

The privately owned property, at 81 Canal st., was suggested for such development by the owner to Housing Authority chairman John Regan.

★ Downtown

whole waterfall, with a back light, and focus on the scenic aspects of having a waterfall in the middle of town," Connery said.

There are other plans for the grant money as well, he added, although Connery's plans and specifications are still being put together with architect Paul Lu.

Construction will probably begin next April, with the new construction season, Connery said.

According to Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, who has been working for the past few months on getting the grant, the second grant will have an even greater impact than the first.

"This will allow us to complete what we've started downtown," he said. "It is really a thrill to see what is happening in Winchester."

Saltmarsh noted that for the first time in years, there are no vacant available this year, the former art director at Winchester High School took it over and transformed it into Printwise Gallery — a place where he designs, repairs and sells his unique pieces of jewelry.

In addition, Printwise Gallery displays and sells fine quality antique prints and paintings, including some Winslow Homer prints from the 19th century, along with pottery and others crafts.

Kornick is hoping that Printwise will provide a place for local artists to display their work, in "the first fine art gallery that this town has ever seen."

Kornick has high hopes that local artists will want to display their work on consignment at Printwise as well, adding to the diversity of his collection.

He also hopes to sell the jewelry that he crafts from gold, silver and unusual stones in his workshop adjacent to the shop.

"It really is a dream come true to have this shop here," said Kornick, after conferring with a customer about redesigning an emerald pin. "And what I can offer is originality."

A glance at the showcase in Printwise proves Kornick's point. His earrings, which range in price from $95 to $550, can be so huge that it is almost painful to imagine how they would feel hanging from one's ears.

However, Kornick, who says that his jewelry has "always been a little bit ahead of its time," feels that he is on target this time — big earrings are back in style. He also fashions pins with objects such as a pair of doves that move back and forth.

"I like playful, humorous jewelry," he says. "Artwork shouldn't just be serious." Kornick feels that his strength as an artist is his ability to design. And Printwise, in addition to being a showcase for his creations, will also have "everyday jewelry for those who love fun, creative stuff."

At the moment, the lowest priced jewelry item that Kornick sells is a sterling silver Sachem head on a chain, for $25.

Kornick, who loves teaching and prides himself on his achievements as an art teacher in Winchester, will also be offering jewelry-making classes at Printwise, beginning in October.

For years, Kornick spent many quiet hours bent over his work table, shaping and scraping the precious metals he works with into their sometimes bizarre, often quite beautiful shapes. With Printwise, he will have the opportunity to continue to work, while "coming out of my shell" to deal with the public and run a business.

He is most excited, however, at the chance to begin a business at a time when the town he has lived in and known for almost 12 years is undergoing so many changes.

"Winchester has a rich heritage and an appreciation of fine art," he says. "And the timing is just right to open a gallery. The town has a lot of potential — I've always known that — but it's great to see all the stimulation in the Center."

Printwise will have an official opening ceremony on Sept. 30. The gallery will be open on Mondays through Fridays from 9-4:30, and Saturdays from 9-3.

Girl Scouts Raise $1 M-Plus In Capital Campaign

The Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council has recently topped the $1 million mark in its $2.5 million Capital Campaign. To date, more than $1,092,000 has been pledged.

The $2.5 million campaign was launched in March, to raise money for camp restorations and renovations. Funding will be used to construct new tent units and program shelters, improve roads and trails, and renovate camp buildings and Scout Houses at the Council's Massachusetts and New Hampshire properties.

A percentage of the funds will also be allocated to extend membership in underserved and ethnic neighborhoods. Older girls and special needs girls will benefit from campaign funds as well.

To raise these funds, the Patriots' trail Council has enlisted the support of John Bacon, president of Boston Gas and Judy George, executive vice president of Scandinavian Design. They are serving as general capital campaign co-chairs, and are organizing the corporation and foundation division of the campaign. Community volunteers — including civic leaders, local businesspeople and Girl Scout families and friends — are coordinating the Capital Campaign on the local level.

A significant portion of the Capital Campaign goal will come from contributions and donations from corporations and foundations. The recent one million dollar milestone was due largely to their pledges and gifts.

The Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council is the largest council in New England, serving more than 30,000 girls and volunteer adults in 65 cities and towns. The $2.5 million campaign is the first capital fund drive in the 70 year history of Girl Scouting in Massachusetts.

Saltmarsh predicted that parking "will be a problem" as a result of the revitalization.

The grant awards ceremony will take place this afternoon on the corner of Main and Thompson sts. State Secretary of Transportation Frederick Salvucci will speak.

Childrens' Council Board Members Needed

Do you have an interest in the quality and availability of services for children and their families in your area? If you would like to express your concern or learn more about these services, the Mystic Valley Council for Children invites you to participate by becoming a member this fall.

The Mystic Valley Council for Children is taking nominations from interested citizens who either live or work in Arlington for the election of its Board of Directors which will take place at the Annual Meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church, 21 Church St., in Winchester.

In addition, to the elections, at the annual meeting citizens will be updated on current council activity and will discuss the proposed workplan for the upcoming year. There will also be time to mingle and meet new members.

The Mystic Valley Council is one of 41 councils across the commonwealth. Councils are mandated by the Office for Children, a state agency responsible for coordinating, licensing and monitoring services to children.

The council welcomes nominations representing a wide range of consumer and provider interests including foster care, day care, mental health, special education, public housing and financial assistance, public schools, and local government. Interested citizens may call or mail in nominations (include name, address and phone number) to the Mystic Valley Council for Children office, or voice nominations at the annual meeting.

The board of directors which meets every other month is the governing body of the council. At board meetings, members share information about children's issues in the community or in the state, approve and support committee activity and set direction for the council as a whole. Board members are encouraged to serve on one-subcommittee of their choice.

College Club To Meet Sept. 18

The College Club meeting of all members will be on Tuesday, Sept. 18, at 12:15 at the home of Mrs. Marie Kennedy, 3 Lakeview terr. Mrs. Katherine Alexander, Executive Director of Winchester Chamber of Commerce, will speak.

Current committee work includes activities such as stimulating employer-supported day care, dealing with zoning issues for family day care, conducting consumer oriented reviews of children's services, recommending funding for services.

Feel free to call the Mystic Valley Council for Children office, 729-4350 in Winchester for more information.

Democrats To Meet Sept. 13

The Winchester Democratic Town Committee will be holding a general meeting Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the first floor Conference Room in Town Hall. People interested in knowing what the Democratic Town Committee is doing are encouraged to attend.

Local Senate Candidates Will Debate Live On Cable TV Friday

Residents interested in local politics will be able to sit in on a live debate tomorrow night between the two Democratic candidates who hope to represent Winchester in the state Senate — by turning on their local cable television channel.

"News 19," a volunteer-staffed Winchester cable newsmagazine, is sponsoring debate between the candidates for the Democratic nomination for the 4th Middlesex state Senate seat: Alan Macdonald, now a Winchester Selectman, and Sen. Richard Kraus of Arlington, the incumbent.

The debate will be cablecast live from the Winchester Public Library at 7:30 p.m. Friday, on Winchester cable's Channel 19. It will also be taped and repeated Sunday morning at 10 a.m.

Kraus and Macdonald will face a panel of reporters who cover the communities in the 4th Middlesex district: Liz Willen from The Winchester Star, Anne Marie Reidy from The Arlington Advocate, Daniel Kennedy from The Woburn Times, Lauren McFalls from The Lexington Minuteman, and Bob Gallant of "News 19."

"News 19" is sponsoring the primary program because the race this year may be over by Sept. 18," said Allan Eyden, anchor and executive producer of the "News 19" series and host of the interview program.

There are no declared

Republican candidates for the seat," Eyden pointed out. "One Arlington woman, Helen Metros, has filed a court challenge to have her name placed on the November ballot as an independent."

"But the winner of the Democratic primary on Sept. 18 may very well be the winner of the 4th Middlesex state Senate seat, and we thought it was important to have as much discussion of the issues as possible," Eyden said.

The taped program will also be cablecast in Lexington, Arlington and Woburn.

"News 19" is a volunteer-produced and staffed news magazine which airs monthly on Winchester's Continental Cablevision.

With more than 30 years of experience, Arlex Awning is the reliable source for all your awning, shade, blind, window, and selection and installation needs.

How would you like to make your home or office cooler in summer, and decorate it all in one easy and inexpensive step? Accomplishing all this is relatively simple — install awnings on your home or office.

Awnings can be responsible for as much as a 10-15 degree temperature drop in summer by keeping out the sun's powerful rays.

Arlex Awning, 14 Medford St., Arlington, a division of Morgan Awning of Medford, installs custom awnings which will beautify your home or office and make it more energy efficient at the same time.

Manager William Simmons will come out to your home or office and help you select the design and color awning which best suits your needs; and his expert installation crew can install the awnings on an entire building in one day.

OBITUARIES

David Costello

Funeral services will be held Friday for former Winchester resident David C. Costello, 28, who drowned Sept. 2.

Mr. Costello, a revenue agent with the Internal Revenue Service in Chicago, died when he fell off a breakwater in Lake Michigan.

He was born in Woburn and attended Winchester schools, graduating from Winchester High School in 1973. He received his degree from University of Rochester in 1977, then studied at University of Chicago Graduate School and DePaul University in Chicago.

Mr. Costello is survived by his parents, James J. and Virginia M. Costello of Winchester. His father is a former Town Accountant and Comptroller. Also, a brother, Gerard J. of Winchester; his grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Costello of Winchester; and aunts and uncles survive him.

Visiting hours at Lynch-Cantillon Funeral Home, 263 Main st., Woburn, will be tomorrow from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

The funeral will be held Friday from the funeral home at 9:15 a.m. with funeral mass celebrated at Immaculate Conception Church at 10 a.m. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery, Woburn.

Helen Maguire

Fifty-year resident Helen M. (Manning) Maguire died Aug. 29 at Winchester Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Maguire, wife of the late Henry Maguire, was retired after 20 years as a secretary with the S.S. Pierce Co., Boston.

She was a member of St. Mary's Parish and a volunteer at Winchester Hospital.

Mrs. Maguire was born in Somerville and attended schools there.

She is survived by three nieces, Janet Chaffe Fischer of Burlington, Patricia Ambrose of Manchester, and Barbara Bonnie Emery of Columbus, Ohio; and her friend, Mildred Peluso of Winchester.

The funeral mass was held Saturday at St. Mary's Church, with the Rev. Paul G. Kelley officiating. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery, Woburn. Lane Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Joseph Donovan

Joseph R. Donovan died Aug. 28 at the age of 81.

A member of the Winchester Rotary Club, he was the former owner of Bayburn Cleaners in East Arlington.

Mr. Donovan was a native of Brookline. He moved to Winchester in 1943.

He is survived by his wife, Melba L. (King) and children Joseph R. Jr.

Memorial Service For Rev. Kingsley Dalpadado

A mass and memorial service will be held for the Rev. Kingsley E. Dalpadado, OMI, PhD, SSD, STL on Sunday Sept. 23, at 3 p.m. at Immaculate Conception Church. The Rev. Walter Abbot, S.J. will be the Principal Celebrant.

Fr. Dalpadado died unexpectedly on Aug. 2 while traveling in Mexico. His remains were interred in the Cathedral of Mexico City.

Fr. Dalpadado had been in residence at Immaculate Conception for the past two years while completing his doctoral dissertation in sacred scripture. He conducted numerous scripture courses for laypersons and CCD teachers in the Boston area. Both a New Testament and Old Testament scholar, he brought his Biblical apostolate to many parishes in the United States, especially in the Northeast.

Fr. Dalpadado was a former Professor of Holy Scripture at Oblate College in Washington, D.C., and a Professor of Sacred Scripture at the University of Dallas. He earned his Ph.D. from Gregorian University and his S.D. from the Pontifical Biblical Commission, both in Rome.

His dissertation for the commission was entitled "The Interpretation of Holy Scripture According to Heinrich Schlier." He also studied at the Ecole Biblique et Archaeologique in Jerusalem, as well as in Germany. Ordained in 1948, he was a native of Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon.)

Fr. Dalpadado had left his post at Immaculate Conception in July to accept a position with the Diocese of Metuchen, N.J. In the meantime, he had gone to Mexico to learn Spanish so he could translate several of his books into that language. His works, including "Reading the Bible," "Reading the Gospels," and "Reading the Acts, Epistles and Revelation," have been published by the Daughters of St. Paul of Boston.

Fr. John H. O'Donnell, Pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, said: "I invite all laypeople, religious and clergy whose lives were touched by Fr. Dalpadado to participate in the service at our parish on Sept. 23."

For further information, those interested may contact Loretta Figuera at 933-1959, Susan Manning at 391-0676 or Darryl Madey at 665-8980.

The Primary Elections

Senate Hopefuls Discuss Their Backgrounds, Plans

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

State Sen. Richard Kraus and challenger Alan Macdonald are both busy shaking hands, greeting voters, and going door to door in the last weeks before the primary.

Both candidates are running for the Democratic nomination for the state Senate seat which represents Winchester, Arlington, Lexington and Woburn.

And that may be the only race for the 4th Middlesex senatorial district, as there are no Republican or other challengers listed on the November ballot.

Helen Metros of Arlington has sought court action to allow her to be listed as an independent candidate in November, but there has not been any ruling on that challenge yet.

So, the state Senate race may be decided this year — as it was in 1980 — with the results of the Democratic primary on Sept. 18, which pits Macdonald, a Winchester Selectman, against incumbent Kraus, an Arlington resident.

The Star asked both candidates to extemporaneously orally answer a series of questions.

Part one of this interview appears today; part two will follow next Thursday.

What is your background?

Kraus: "I was born in Arlington, Kansas, and raised in Kansas and Missouri; attended community college, and then the University of Kansas, graduating with a double major in history and international relations."

I earned a master's degree from Harvard University in regional studies, concentrating on Chinese and Japanese languages; and then a Ph.D. from Harvard with a thesis in Chinese economic history.

I worked as an assistant professor at Harvard's Graduate School of Education for one year before I earned my Ph.D.

Then I worked as an administrator at Harvard, beginning in the undergraduate financial aid office and working up to administrative dean of the graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Basically, I've tried to make institutions which don't have a profit motive produce as well as if they did."

Kraus, who won the seat in an eight-person primary race in 1980, has been married to Adele (Schmidt) Kraus for 26 years. They have two sons: David, 23, and Karl, 21.

Macdonald: "I was born in Cambridge, and lived there until my family moved to Winchester when I was 11. I am a graduate of Winchester High School and Dartmouth College — I was a government major. While I was in college, I worked in Washington, D.C., as an intern for Speaker McCormack."

I went to Boston College Law School, and the last two years in 1980 school I worked in (Boston) Mayor John Collins' office.

I was an assistant attorney general under AG Robert Quinn for almost six years in the Environmental Protection Division — we began that as a brand new division of the office. Then I worked in the drug enforcement and with the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement.

From there, I went into private practice in Boston. I represented Gulf Oil as their New England attorney. They moved me to Gulf headquarters in Pittsburgh (Pa.) in 1976, and to Washington, D.C., in 1978 — but we wanted to come back home, so I wrote to General Electric, which was looking for a manager of government relations in 1979.

That offered a chance to come back home, and a chance to get back into the public side of issues again. I keep the company in line with state regulations as well as making company input on public policy questions."

Macdonald, who has been a Winchester Selectman since March 1980, is married to Jane (Hess) Macdonald. They have two sons, Alan John Macdonald, an eighth grader, and Daniel Brennan Macdonald, a second-grader.

If you are elected, what are your priorities for the first year of this term?

Macdonald: "The top priorities are the tax issues — eliminating the 7.5 percent surcharge which is in its 10th year on our income tax, and making sure that Proposition 2½ continues to keep property taxes down at a low level."

Kraus: "The main thing I'll be working on initially will be trying to get a better local aid break for the district, and especially for Arlington — I think they're in the most difficult financial shape. We'll also be heavily involved in whatever is done about the reform of education, in terms of the infrastructure and MassBank, and work on tax reform."

I'll also be attending to my responsibilities on the Human Services Committee, where there are a lot of areas that need work, especially dealing with the elderly and handicapped. If the chairmanship of the Education Committee opens up, I'll try very hard for that chairmanship. I'll be in line for some chairmanship, but that's the one I'd like."

What would you spend more of your time on district issues or statewide issues? When a senator must choose between the interests of the district and the whole state, which course should he or she take? Why?

Kraus: "I've found in my experience in the Senate that this district gets involved in most of the really important issues that have come up statewide — at least, so far. The things I mentioned earlier are all statewide issues, and all will be terribly important to this district."

"Contrary to my expectations two years ago, I have not found much of a conflict on the district and state interests in most of the important issues. In terms of the work of my office, probably the bulk of it goes for the district; dealing with constituents, trying to help solve their problems."

"If a person has to make a choice,

I would have answered that it ought to be for the district interests and concerns, but I've simply been surprised — there have been very few instances when I've had to make a choice."

One reason is the communities in this district are so varied, and the range of concerns is so broad that something of interest to the district comes up in most of the statewide issues. Still, my constituency is in the district, and that is where I would put my influence if I had to make a choice."

Macdonald: "I would expect to spend more time on district issues, there are a number of problems in our district of four communities that need attention from the legislature, like environmental enforcement and traffic control."

"There are a number of spots in our communities that the State Dept. of Public Works and Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering should be addressing. I would work very hard to get them done."

"I think, over a period of time, there would also be an opportunity for individual senators to work on larger statewide issues — but the first priority is to respond directly to the problems of the district itself."

What statewide issues are you particularly interested in?

Macdonald: "I've addressed the problems of taxation already, to me, at a statewide level we have reduced our property tax burden from the highest in the country in 1980 to approximately the national average in 1984."

"In doing this, our property valuation in Massachusetts has increased by almost 70 percent in those four years, compared to a national increase in most of the important issues. In terms of the work of my office, probably the bulk of it goes for the district; dealing with constituents, trying to help solve their problems."

"If a person has to make a choice,

Massachusetts with the enactment of Proposition 2½, so I plan to keep 2½ on the books and not to amend it in any way that would reduce our economic growth."

"I think there are a number of other issues that are important. In the environmental area, I haven't mentioned the need for toxic and hazardous waste-dumping facilities — we don't have any in Massachusetts that will accept the wastes from our hospital and medical research and treatment facilities. It's trucked out of state."

The same goes for commercial and industrial waste products, we need very badly to develop the technologically and environmentally safe facilities to receive and treat such wastes, so we can prevent illegal dumping, and accept our share of the national problem in that regard."

How would you describe your political philosophy?

Macdonald: "I would describe my political philosophy under the present definitions as a moderate philosophy. I see government as a tool to help people survive in a very busy time."

"There are so many areas, as life has become more complicated, that individual citizens have difficulty managing. I think government plays a role in helping a number of our citizens cope with everyday problems and long-term problems as well."

A major point for me, though, is that you have to have a strong private sector as well as a strong public sector in order for the government to do its work."

"All the best of intentions and hopes cannot be put to use in a government structure that does not have an active, strong economic base in the private sector."

"So, I see a need for both of these sectors to work loosely together, for the benefit of the individual. I see the public sector as not being able to create jobs, yet I know that the opportunity to work is one of the basic needs of each individual in our society."

"On the private side, I see an inability at times for the private sector to deliver on services that must be implemented by the public sector."

In summary, really, my philosophy is to encourage a very strong partnership at the local, state and federal levels of the private and public communities."

Kraus: "I really believe that the fundamental purpose of government is to provide opportunity for people — that's why I'm so concerned about environmental issues, so the next generation has the same kind of opportunities we had in this generation, so we don't spoil it all for them."

"That's why I'm so concerned we not have tax policies which take more money from the poor than we do from the rich in percentage terms."

"And that's why I place such a strong emphasis on constituent service in my office. I think many people today are convinced they don't matter to government."

I've taken pains to ensure that there is at least one office to which they can come where they matter — where the emphasis is on trying our level-best to help them deal with the very real problems they face every day."

At $11.95, our Sunday brunch
is a small miracle.

Something very special happens every Sunday from 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM. Some may call it brunch, but you'll discover that it's much more. Not only will you feast to your heart's content on specialties like Steamship Round and Eggs Benedict. And help yourself to unlimited trips to our salad bar. You can also watch as our chef prepares your favorite omelets before your very eyes. For dessert, you'll find a luscious array of French pastries.

Because we know that a brunch like this is a celebration, we'll offer you a complimentary glass of champagne. And while we wine and dine you, our harpist will play music so beautiful, you may forget you're on earth.

You'll agree that for $11.95, our Sunday brunch is a small miracle. And so will your children, because the "little angels" can feast for half price.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 48 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

Old Rifles Wanted

OLD RIFLES, carbines, early cartridge guns made before 1896 such as 45-70 trapdoor Springfield, Remington rolling block single shots, certain lever action Winchester and old muzzleloaders wanted. Especially want short barreled guns. Fair market price paid depending on condition. Call Mr. Jorgensen, publisher, Century Publications Inc., to arrange appraisal. 729-8100.

HOW TO RECOUP LOSS

As a rule, the vast majority of home sellers make a tidy profit. However, there is always an exception to every rule. Whether it be a change for the worse in a local neighborhood, a personal economic reversal, divorce or just plain bad luck, there may be someone, somewhere, some place who has to sell their home at a loss. Fortunately, there is a strategy for recouping some of this loss in the tax column. Although the loss sustained on a house sale cannot be deducted as a tax loss if it is your primary residence, the loss IS deductible if the house is sold as a business investment. Therefore, if you anticipate that you must sell at a loss, you might consider the following: Rent it in good faith at least twelve months and then sell. The loss can then be deducted from your income tax return. It would be treated like a loss from the sale of any other business property. While you rent the house, you can also benefit from other real estate tax benefits such as depreciation and maintenance expenses.

Why You Should Use Your Local Realtor

First, the owner has the benefit of consistent and intelligent advertising of his property at no cost to him.

Second, the owner has the enthusiastic efforts of our entire sales force concentrating on the sale of his property.

Third, the broker assumes an obligation to look out for the owner's best interests until he has worked out a satisfactory sale.

SHIFT INTO A NEW OPPORTUNITY

AND UPGRADE YOUR FUTURE!

BayBanks Systems, Inc., has opportunities with real potential. Whether you like to start the day off bright and early on our first shift, prefer afternoon and evening hours, or enjoy the pace of the night life, we have the opening to suit your lifestyle — whatever it may be.

SORTERS 3rd Shift

We will train you to sort documents using our electronic reader/sorter equipment. Additional responsibilities will include cleaning and checking equipment, removing and stacking items, maintaining logs and performing associated tasks.

DATA CONTROL SPECIALISTS All Shifts

We will train you to sort computer reports for distribution to our branch banks and operate input/output computer equipment. Log incoming reports and check their accuracy. You will also distribute interbank mail. A high school diploma and experience working in a fast-paced environment required.

STATEMENT RENDERING MACHINE OPERATORS All Shifts

In this newest department you will be working with the latest state-of-the-art technology in an area that offers high growth potential. We are looking for people to handle the set up, adjustment, operation and general maintenance of our automated statement equipment. You must have a facility with machines, an eye for detail, as well as the ability to handle items that require manual processing.

As the centralized banking facility for the entire BayBanks Corporation of more than 210 full service branches, we are responsible for processing millions of paper-based transactions each year, part of which are the more than 3 million transactions generated each month by our X-press 24 automated teller network, the first and largest system of its kind in the region.

If you're a bright, motivated person looking for something new, shift to BayBanks Systems, where the difference really pays off. To find out more about our benefits and salary differentials, call Mindy Rakusin at 642-1424. Or drop by our offices at 1025 Main Street, Waltham, MA 02154 to fill out an application. Selectmen Approve Liquor License For Maximilian's

The town's second restaurant liquor license has been granted to a pair of former residents who plan to open Maximilian's Cafe, overlooking the Mill Pond.

Selectmen voted 4-0 to approve the liquor license for Louis and Sheila Manzone, and 5-0 on the food service permit after hearing comments of neighbors and residents at a public hearing Monday.

Selectman Michael Saraco abstains from all liquor license votes because of his involvement as an officer of the Christopher Columbus organization, which holds one of the town's club liquor licenses.

But the board's decision to grant the licenses to the 166-seat restaurant did not come about without discussion.

Parking and traffic impacts got considerable attention, especially from some business operators in the area of the restaurant, slated for the old Wilson's upholstery shop at 11-27 Converse pl.

"We already have problems with shoppers in the area parking in our lot," noted Francine Carlo, whose firm manages the Mill Pond Medical Building. "I don't see anything but heightened problems."

"We have orthopedists and

Two-Alarm Fire Does $35,000 In Damages

TWO ALARM BLAZE — Firefighters battled smoke and flames at 45 Brooks Tuesday afternoon. One firefighter, on the roof, chops a vent to let out smoke and heat, while colleagues shoot a stream of water through the attic area, where the blaze started. (Star Staff Photo)

No Injuries To Residents, Firefighters

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

A painter's torch and an attic fan may be the source of a two-alarm blaze at 45 Brooks st. on Tuesday afternoon which caused an estimated $35,000 in damages, but no injuries to the residents or firefighters.

"Upstairs is gone — everything is burned or melted; downstairs is mostly smoke and water damages," said Barbara Roddy calmly, after a brief tour of her blackened home.

"No one was home at the time; even the cat was outside," she said. Roddy and her husband, Patrick, their daughter Lisa, 23, and son Patrick Jr., 7, have lived in the home a little more than two years.

The exact cause of the fire is still under investigation, according to Winchester Fire Lt. Peter Skerry.

"We're not sure yet," Skerry said. "The painter who was working on the garage may have started it, and there was also an attic fan in the back of the garage that may have been involved."

Skerry said the whole upper story of the house above the garage and dining room was seriously damaged, but the main part of the house sustained mostly smoke and water damages during the firefighting effort.

He estimated the damage to both the building and contents at about $35,000, and added, "It will take a fairly long time to get the house back in order."

Thick smoke and a warm afternoon made the battle heavy going for the Winchester and Medford

Homeowners And Businesses To Pay The Same Tax Rate

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

Winchester homeowners and business owners will pay their taxes at the same flat rate this year for the first time in four years.

Cape Cods and convenience stores alike will pay about $23.20 for every $1,000 of assessed value — due to a 3:2 split vote by the Board of Selectmen.

(The tax rate is estimated because it is not formally set until the state approves a series of figures submitted by the town, including the classification rate voted.)

The split vote to charge a flat 100-percent tax rate on all real property marks a change from the town's recent policy.

Since state law began to allow towns to set different tax rates for different types of property, Winchester's commercial, industrial and personal property taxes have been set at 115 percent — making it possible for homeowners to pay a discounted rate.

If the board had voted to continue that rate this year, that 15 percent differential would represent a savings of $30 in taxes to the owner of a $100,000 home, with a $22.90 tax rate — or a boost of $30 in taxes to the owner of a business property valued at $100,000, who would pay at a $26.70 rate.

The limited benefit to homeowners and the potential boost for business development seemed to convince the three board members who supported the flat rate: Wade Welch, Alan MacDonald and Edward O'Connell.

The change in rates was also supported by the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Assessors.

But fellow Selectmen Michael Saraco and Mark Lombardi objected strongly to the shift, saying it was unfair to homeowners because commercial properties are valued in a different manner than residential properties.

"We always assess the residential

Rotondi, Kraus Race Is Local Highlight Of Primary Tues.

By TOM WHITE

Decisions, decisions.

Who to vote for is the question of the week, and next Tuesday local voters will have to run down a long list of candidates and mark the names of their preferred primary picks.

The primary election will determine which Republican and Democratic candidates to government offices will compete in the November general elections.

But so far, primary election races have been rather uneventful, with the competition being confined mostly to the race to fill the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by outgoing Sen. Paul Tsongas.

Six aspiring senators are running for Tsongas' seat, four Democrats and two Republicans. Ray Shamie, a Walpole businessman, who is running on a conservative, business-oriented campaign, is competing against former U.S. Ambassador and Attorney General Elliot Richardson for the Republican nomination.

Richardson has been emphasizing his 1974 refusal to fire Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, and his independence from President Ronald Reagan's Republican platform in an effort to win the approval of the reputedly liberal Massachusetts voters. Shamie, who ran against U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy two years ago, stresses his closeness to Reagan economic policies.

On the Democratic ticket, David M. Bartley, former Mass. House Speaker, former King administration official and a college president, has been campaigning hard on his refusal to accept Political Action Committee (PAC) contributions.

The two Democratic front-runners, Lt. Gov. John F. Kerry and U.S. Rep. James M. Shannon, have been running campaigns focused on the nuclear freeze and military withdrawal from Central America.

The fourth Democratic Senate hopeful, Sec. of State Michael J. Conolly, has recently been working in different jobs in an effort to touch

"... you can fairly say that the memorial was erected by the school children of the town with my assistance," wrote Lewis Parkhurst on Oct. 8, 1927, bringing to a close the effort to raise donations to pay for the town's new War Memorial.

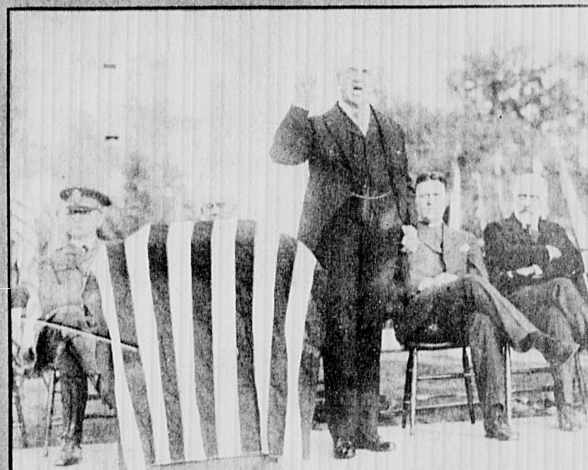

The story of the World War I memorial, which stands at Main st. and the parkway, was recently enhanced by documentation proving that landscaping for the memorial was designed by the firm of Frederick Law Olmsted, father of landscape architecture in the U.S.

Olmsted, first superintendent of Central Park in New York, and leader in efforts to

The War Memorial today.

While Lt. Gov. Frank G. Allen spoke "briefly but acceptably," according to a newspaper account, the Rev. Allen Evans of Church of the Epiphany and sculptor Herbert Adams listened. According to a newspaper account, the memorial was hailed as "among the very finest of the new type and regret has been expressed that his splendid product of Herbert Adams skill should have been allowed to leave New York."

Laborers work on the grounds around the War Memorial on Main st. The statue stood covered in canvas for a week before it was dedicated 58 years ago. Recently viewed documents prove that the famous Olmsted landscape architect firm planned the grounds.

War Memorial Grounds Were Designed By Olmsted

preserve Yosemite Valley and Niagara Falls, helped frame legislation to create the National Park Service.

When he moved to Brookline in the 1880s the Boston area benefited from the planning of Olmsted, his sons and associates at the firm. They designed about 280 parks in this state, including the "emerald necklace" which includes Arnold Arboretum, the Fens, the Commonwealth ave. Mall and the Riverway.

While some people in Winchester thought the Olmsted firm had something to do with the War Memorial, the Winchester Historical Commission was able to verify this only after Richard Parkhurst donated a family picture album and book about the planning and construction of the memorial. (The album is now in the town Archives and can be viewed by visitors.)

The Olmsted connection has also been verified by the Massachusetts Association for Olmsted Parks which is trying to locate, preserve, restore and create awareness about the Olmsted parks.

As part of that effort the Historical Commission last year did an inventory of local Olmsted grounds. The commission learned that the Olmsted firm provided landscaping plans for 10 private residences, the War Memorial, Wildwood Cemetery and the Winchester

Woburn Parkway, which was never completed.

The grounds around the War Memorial have changed little since 1926. The memorial is on a grass plot with a long flight of stone steps leading to the front, and cement walks on the sides. Around the memorial are shrubbery, ground cover and plants.

The privately printed book detailing the history of the memorial notes that "The foundation, the grading and the planting of the shrubbery were under the personal direction of Mr. James J. Fitzgerald of Winchester, who, with a large force of men, spared no pains in doing this work in such thorough and skillful fashion as to receive the hearty commendation of Mr. Adams (the sculptor) and the landscape architects."

Lewis Parkhurst spared the town embarrassment and a financial dilemma in paying for the memorial. A resident of Winchester since 1881, he became high school principal in 1886, resigning five years later to join Ginn and Co. publishers.

He served Winchester as a state senator and had a long record of civic service. In 1940 Parkhurst led the townwide effort to help the black community pay off the mortgage of their New Hope Baptist Church. Five years later he set the match to the mortgage of the Unitarian Church. He lived to see the town name its new school for him in 1949.

Lewis Parkhurst's involvement with the War Memorial began the day after the war ended on Nov. 11, 1918. A state holiday was declared the next day and Winchester held a celebration. Parkhurst was the speaker.

A long parade preceded the War Memorial dedication. Note the knickers, trolley tracks, train crossing and "Colonial Filling Station." Scouts, National Guard, veteran and Legion groups from area towns participated. Ten thousand people attended the dedication.

In the years immediately following, Town Meeting debated what kind of tribute would be fitting to residents who served and the 18 who died, in addition to the Honor Roll set up in front of Town Hall.

The memorial ideas ranged from a stadium to a library or other community building to a statue. Some objected to a "utilitarian" memorial which would become worn out and disfigured.

Lewis Parkhurst served on the 1919 Town Meeting memorial committee that recommended a stadium to seat 8100 at Manchester Field. The idea was rejected by voters.

In 1923 Town Meeting decided on a statue. The third memorial committee hired sculptor Herbert Adams of New York to do a model and give cost estimates.

Everything was fine until meeting members the next year learned the statue would cost $50,000. With the meeting on the verge of vetoing the statue, Parkhurst, then a senator, suggested that the town give a corner of the high school lot and the money be raised by public contributions.

His suggestion was accepted and planning for the statue went ahead.

Unfortunately, about the same time that the statue committee, headed by George Willey, was raising money, Winchester Hospital was also canvassing the town.

The statue fundraising fell woefully short — only $12,500 was pledged.

A highlight of the giving program was the participation by school children. Of the 2297 children in public and parochial schools, 1828 gave something for the statue. St. Mary's and Mystic Schools had 100 percent participation.

The memorial committee, with enough money in hand to pay initial bills, authorized the sculptor to go ahead, feeling confident they could raise the balance by the time the memorial was completed.

The memorial booklet describes the dilemma: "What was the committee to do? If they told the sculptor to stop work on account of lack of funds, he could very fairly claim all that had been subscribed and paid in for the work he had already done, and those who had contributed would lose all that they had given without any benefit to the town."

"They could not call a meeting of the town and ask for additional funds to be raised by taxation because, in the first place, the town had declined to pay for the memorial by taxation and, in the second place, it would be entirely unjust to tax those who had already subscribed in the same way as those who had not subscribed at all."

Lewis Parkhurst came to the rescue, sending the committee a letter in which he offered to advance the needed money "and take my chances on being reimbursed by the citizens of Winchester."

So, during 1925 and 1926 the sculptor continued work on the memorial, with a dedication target date of the fall. That day came on Oct. 3, 1926.

A long parade which included military and musical groups from Winchester and area communities marched on Washington, Main, Bacon, Church and Swanton sts.

The parade was so long that the ceremony began an hour late. The large memorial figure which had been shrouded in canvas for a week was unveiled by Mrs. George Neiley whose five sons had served in the Navy.

What residents saw atop the granite base was 12-foot tall bronze figures representing Humanity and Justice with hands entwined before the American flag, one bearing a wreath and the other a sheathed sword.

Memorial committee chairman Willey described the memorial as portraying "nothing of the glories of war, but rather the tranquility that follows."

But that wasn't the end of the War Memorial saga. There was still the matter of the Parkhurst loan.

In March 1927, through The Winchester Star, the memorial committee gave a financial report and again appealed to people to help pay the deficit, $38,500 advanced in anticipation of subscriptions.

Only $100 more was given. Then, in October, Lewis Parkhurst, noting that the necessary funds had not been raised, asked the committee to return all of the donations except those from the school children of Winchester.

He asked the committee to return each donation with a statement that "you had not been able to carry out the vote of the town, but were now prepared to defray the expense in another way."

From that day on, the War Memorial became the gift of Winchester's school children and Parkhurst.

Town Is Looking For An Acting Town Manager ... Again

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

For the second time in two months, Winchester is looking for someone to run the town — temporarily.

Acting Town Manager Rick White resigned Monday night to take a new post in Bedford as that community's Town Administrator, leaving Winchester Selectmen to figure out who will run the town until a new Town Manager is chosen.

White's resignation is effective Oct. 6 — exactly three months after he took over as Acting Town Manager, following former Town Manager Tom Groux's resignation.

His announcement at the end of Monday's Selectmen's meeting seemed to catch Selectmen by surprise. "The position of Town Administrator represents for me the realization of a longstanding personal and professional goal," White said, reading from his letter of resignation.

In his four years as Assistant Town Manager and Acting Town Manager, White added, he enjoyed working with Tom Groux — whom he called "my mentor and my friend" — and with town employees, who "have my deepest respect."

The Selectmen accepted his resignation "with appreciation, regret, and good wishes for his new venture," in Selectman Edward O'Connell's motion.

"I'm sorry to see him go," commented Selectman Michael Saraco. "I was just getting used to him."

Board members also debated having a special meeting to discuss appointment of another Acting Town Manager, but decided to discuss the matter Monday at their regular session.

Saraco pointed out that White was carrying all the duties of the Assistant Town Manager, including executive secretary to the Personnel Board, as well as the Town Manager in his acting capacity. White told The Star he also served as the town's Affirmative Action, Fair Housing, and Minority Business/Contract Compliance Officer.

"We're really replacing three people," Saraco noted. "We had more than one candidate for Acting Town Manager before, but the other person told me he's really not enamored of the job."

"I had a promise from that person that if anything happened he would consider it," answered Selectmen chairman Mark Lombardi.

The Selectmen's veiled references may have been to Town Engineer John Ciarcia, who was thought to be a candidate for the acting post when White was appointed two months ago.

White told the board members that he applied for the Bedford post in April, before Groux's resignation had been announced. "I told Tom that I thought I was ready for a manager's job, and he was very supportive,"

White said.

He apologized for announcing it to the board the way he did, "but it's the only way I'll get all of you together."

Later, White told The Star that he had formally accepted the job earlier Monday evening, although he had been in negotiations with Bedford for more than eight weeks.

He offered to be available to the Board of Selectmen for any assistance they might need after he leaves office.

A search committee to choose the new Town Manager has been named. The committee has interviewed town department heads. White told The Star, and has advertised the position in local and national periodicals.

State Senate Race Heats Up With Just Five Days To Go

Kraus, Macdonald Explain Views On Abortion, Campaign Financing, Education Reform, And The Income Tax Surcharge

By Anne Marie Reidy

The race for the Democratic nod for the 4th Middlesex state Senate seat grows hotter as the time until election day grows shorter.

With just five days to go until the quest ends for one of them, both the incumbent, Sen. Richard Kraus of Arlington, and his challenger, Alan Macdonald, a Winchester Selectman, are continuing their strenuous campaigns.

For both men, the Sept. 18 primary may be the election; there are no other candidates listed on the November ballot, although Arlingtonian Helen Metros has filed a court challenge to be listed as an independent.

Last week, The Star printed the candidates' answers on questions on their backgrounds, political philosophies, priorities for the first year of this term (if elected), and the demands of the district versus statewide concerns.

Today's second installment includes their positions on abortion, campaign funding, education reform, the 7.5 percent income tax surcharge, the differences between them — and the most interesting experience they've had on their campaigns.

The Star asked the candidates to answer the questions orally and extemporaneously in telephone interviews.

What is your position on election financing — for example, PACs (political action committees)? How is your campaign being financed? Have you had any PAC contributions?

Macdonald: "I believe that elections have become so expensive that there does need to be some limitation in the future on the amount that should be spent in any particular election, or the time period for a public campaign."

"I think we'd have to have some testimony from a broad range of offices people are campaigning for. I'm not sure what the limitations should be in specific numbers."

"But we are running the risk of limiting the number of people who will be able to run for public office, because it does require a lot of contributors and a lot of time away from other things to get your message across. I'm worried that, as it escalates, we will find fewer and fewer people able to involve themselves in running for public office."

"My campaign has been funded in the great part by friends and associates from school and work and my neighborhood, people who have known me for a long time and have been willing to contribute so that I'll be able to have my message heard during the campaign."

"There's no personal wealth to speak of invested in my campaign, but there have been contributions from PACs that are interested in tax limitation and a strong economic climate for job growth in Massachusetts."

"I don't have the exact figures on PAC contributions at hand, but they probably amount to less than 10 percent of the money I have received in my campaign; the rest are personal contributions."

Kraus: "I think the current campaign limits on contributions are pretty good; philosophically, I would like to see some kind of limits placed on PAC contributions — I'm not sure what kind. By and large, I think Massachusetts does a pretty good job of limiting and controlling the contribution area."

"My money was raised virtually all from small contributions. In the last election (1982), I think I had a contribution list probably seven or eight times longer than my nearest rival in that Senate race."

"I don't have many rich friends, and I'm not wealthy myself, so we rely very heavily on many, many small contributions — which means you keep going back and saying, 'Can you give $5, $10, $15 more?' until they begin to wonder if you really have anything else to say to them."

"But that's not a complaint — that's just the way it is. In terms of family contributions, the last time around, our contribution was basically the $15,000 cut in salary which I took (to take the Senate post). After that, we didn't have any money to put in."

"As for PACs, I think they do have a role to play. I think the unlimited contributions have really gotten out of hand, and I would like to see some moderating limit, like $3,000 to $5,000, rather than proposals to get rid of them altogether. It seems to me there are many ways people can make a contribution."

"I don't think we have had any PAC contributions to date — I'd have to check — but it's possible there may be before the campaign is over."

What are the differences between you and your opponent, on matters like abortion, rules reform, and other issues?

Kraus: "On abortion, I believe in the early months of pregnancy, a woman ought to have her choice whether or not she has an abortion, which is in accord with the current ruling of the federal courts."

"For me, public funding of abortions is an issue of equity. To have safe access to abortion is legal, and I do not believe we should be putting it beyond the means of the poorest women in the community. I think that is discrimination of the very worst kind."

"On rules reform, I guess the principal difference is that I believe this is one of the most crucial issues facing the legislature. I have been a leader in the effort to make the Senate more democratic, and have power less concentrated in the leadership. I do not have the sense that my opponent sees it as a crucial issue. I doubt the same kind of leadership would be provided."

"I think the most important, crucial area of difference between us is in the area of economic and social policy."

"In the area of tax policy, for instance, I believe that Massachusetts should move from a system which is among the most regressive in the United States, and that takes the most from those who can least afford to pay it, towards a system which is more fair, and less regressive."

"My opponent's principal proposal does just the opposite. He has proposed a repeal of the surtax on the Massachusetts state income tax, most of the benefit of which would go to people who have salaries in excess of $50,000."

"I very strongly believe that government has a very important role to play in our society, in terms of providing opportunity to those who need it most."

"And, therefore, I do not believe that we can afford, in sociological terms, to have less revenue for government in Massachusetts than the national average."

"We are now just below the national average in terms of the revenue that state, local and county governments collect from our people. To make proposals of the magnitude of a $200 million tax cut I see as irresponsible, and cutting at the heart of the ability of government in Massachusetts to do what it needs to do."

Macdonald: "In terms of abortion, the federal government does not permit the states to legislate on the matter. If the federal government did permit states to legislate abortion, I am not in favor of indiscriminate abortion."

"The question for me would be what exceptions, if any, should be permitted: exceptions that have been discussed would be the health of the mother, incest, rape. But I would not favor indiscriminate abortion in all circumstances."

"I am in favor of a constitutional amendment that would permit the legislature to deal with the funding of abortion. I know my opponent voted against that measure."

"I am against the public funding of abortion. I don't believe it is proper for the state to put its seal of approval on the morality of abortion by paying for the act with public funds. "In rules reform, I would favor a majority of the proposals which have been made by the Coalition for Legislative Rules Reform."

"But I would disagree with the provision of a steering committee to make the nominations for floor leaders and committee chairman, because it would take some very good people in the Senate out of the eligibility for such leadership positions — that is, they could not nominate themselves — and I would rather leave all 40 members eligible, and have the nominations come from the floor. The steering committee brings just as much politics into the situation as there is already, and we'd be better off with nominations from the floor."

"Also, I think the best rules reform we could have would be to have a limited legislative session, probably limited to 6 months in any calendar year."

"We are the only state in the nation which has met for the last 48 consecutive months in legislative session. It is not an efficient way to go about business to meet for a few weeks, recess for a month, and come back for a few more weeks."

"It would be much better, in my opinion, if we met for a specific period of time, conduct our legislative business, and adjourn the session."

"This would not mean that we would stop constituent relations. We would work for the rest of the year, but it would help out a bit in terms of addressing specific bills in the legislature. Being a state Senator would still be year-round work, but we wouldn't have year-round legislative sessions."

Kraus, Macdonald Draw Lines Between Positions On Key Issues

Should the 7.5 percent income tax surcharge be removed? Why?

Kraus: "No. That proposal would make Massachusetts' tax structure even more regressive than it is now. If adopted, it would have a devastating effect on the ability of government to meet its responsibilities, whether it's providing local aid, providing funding for public pensions, which are currently unfunded, addressing the problems of our aged, our education reform, or rebuilding our infrastructure — or any of a number of things which have to be addressed in the commonwealth of Massachusetts."

"We also, still, have a great deal of money to replace in terms of federal money which was withdrawn from programs designed to help those most in need in our society."

"The repeal of the surtax, in a real sense, is a dead issue. It has been debated at length in the legislature, and at this point, it routinely comes up for reconsideration only because it is a primary goal of the Republican party and of a few Democrats whose goal is to try to use it to embarrass Gov. Dukakis."

"At this point, each time it comes up, it is overwhelmingly defeated by Democratic votes. Liberal, moderate and conservative, right across the board — because they understand that it would cripple the ability of government to perform in Massachusetts, and would make a more regressive tax structure — and Democrats are just not interested in doing that."

Macdonald: "The income tax surcharge should already have been removed, and I think that should be the first order of business in the legislature in 1985."

"We received in 1984 an additional $400 million in revenue due to a strong local economy, and the 7.5 percent income tax surcharge represents approximately $200 million of revenue to the state."

"If we do not repeal the surcharge now, at a time when additional revenues are coming into the state from other sources, we will never repeal the surcharge."

"It was enacted in 1975 to pay off a state deficit at that time, and the deficit was paid off by the end of the 1970s. I think we should be fair to the taxpayers, and thank them for their help in paying off the deficit, and repeal the surcharge, as the state indicated it would when it was enacted."

"I filed 1,400 signatures from this senatorial district with the Secretary of State in July, to place on the ballot — in November — an advisory question, which will allow the voters of the district to advise their state Senator on whether to vote to repeal the surcharge."

What role should the state take in education reform? What role would you, as a Senator, play?

Macdonald: "I think the state should concentrate on the funding aspects of local education to more closely match what happens in other states, to get away from the property tax burden to finance education."

"In Massachusetts, we finance our local education with about 65 percent from the state. The national average is 50 percent from local funds and 50 percent from the state."

"In order for us to reduce the dependency we've historically had on the property tax in Massachusetts, it's necessary for us to look at funding of education from the state level to a little greater degree than we have in the past."

"And the consequence of that would be that funding would hopefully be based more on ability to pay than has been true with the property tax."

"My role as a Senator would be two-fold: one, to look at the overall way in which we raise revenues in Massachusetts, and provide for the expenditures; and, second, to help the state Dept. of Education determine the basic requirements that need to be followed at the local level to provide good education."

"I don't see the state Dept. of Education can do it all. I believe the main responsibility falls at the local level for good education. I would work to help the communities finance the education system that they feel would be best for their communities, within the minimum state requirements."

Kraus: "I think the role the state ought to play is to try to point directions and make the best suggestions they can, based on what is happening nationwide to improve the school systems."

"After that, the state's role should be monitoring the process, and providing funding — but I would be greatly disturbed if the state's hand were overplayed in this, and a great deal of authority were withdrawn from the communities and their control over local educational policy."

"I think one of the crucial things which is going to come up and has to be dealt with is funding. So far, when you come right down to it, some of the things that need to be done will cost money, and so far, nobody in state government or the communities has had the courage to suggest how much money will be needed, and where it will come from. We will need more leadership about money."

"The reforms that were suggested last spring (in House bill 5000) ran into some heavy criticism on local funding and authority issues; they are being revised — the Education Committee and the governor's people are working on those."

"I am not privy to what the current proposals are, but I am hopeful we will see a major package in the fall which will include funding, include the kind of reforms that ought to be done, and not include a major dilution of local authority — except possibly in situations where it can be shown that the local community really has been derelict in its responsibility — and I do not believe you will find many such in the commonwealth of Massachusetts."

"As to my own role, I would like to be as heavily involved as is possible. Given the way the committee structure works in the Senate, there are real limits to how deeply involved you can be if you're not on the relevant committee."

What is the most interesting thing that has happened to you during your campaign?

Macdonald: "Actually, a number of things pop into my mind. But I think the most interesting thing was the day I was invited by the Portuguese community in Woburn to march in their annual procession on Main St. and attend their special mass — which was said entirely in Portuguese."

"As I was sitting in the front row at the mass, during the homily, I heard this long string of Portuguese words, and then, Senator Alan Macdonald, followed immediately by another long string of Portuguese words."

"I was being introduced by the priest during the sermon, but the only thing I could understand was my name, and the title. I was very flattered. It was the first time I'd ever been to a mass in Portuguese — I yearned for the good old days of Latin masses so I could participate."

But what I did understand was really very flattering, and it was a fun event in the campaign, and I enjoyed it very much."

Kraus: "I think the thing that has taken me most by surprise are the number of times that I walk up to a door, explain who I am, and then see a look of recognition — and pleasure — that I had not anticipated."

"Then the person explains to me that there is some little thing which I or my office had done for them, or a relative, or what-not, which they didn't expect — and which, therefore, they greatly appreciated."

"I was surprised to find out how greatly people were reacting to that service. I was convinced philosophically that it was what we should be doing, but I was surprised and heartened by the reaction."

"It was not just from adults, but from young people, too. I've been trying to encourage young people for academic achievement and service to the community."

"In the summer, young people often answer the door when I'm campaigned. I've found people I've complimented for a job well done, made in school or the community — we don't keep records of those things, so I didn't know I'd find them — but there they were. And they were pleased and proud to know someone was concerned about their achievements, in an area where we don't ordinarily go out of our way to recognize."

POLICE LOG

Monday, Sept. 10

Police cited a 19-year-old Woburn man for driving an unregistered motor vehicle on a public way and attaching license plates from another car, after patrolmen spotted an expired license plate on a 1972 Dodge Colt driving south on Main st. at about 10 a.m.

The driver was stopped at Main and Lake sts., and was unable to produce his license or registration. The driver said the plates attached to the car belonged to his brother-in-law, a Roslindale resident. The car was towed and impounded.

A New Jersey man, 21, was arrested at 5:55 p.m. at Symmes rd. and Main st. for driving a motorcycle without a valid license in possession, and operating an uninsured, unregistered vehicle.

The driver was pulled over when officer Eric Benson noted he was wearing no eye protection, and that the black motorcycle had a 1982 plate. The license the driver offered was valid for cars only.

The driver said he had just purchased the motorcycle from a Washington st. man, and was moving it to Boston. Paperwork supported the purchase, police said, but the man had not registered the motorcycle before removing it. He was arrested, and the motorcycle towed.

The P & F Construction Co. of Reading reported the theft of $25,000 worth of 8-inch duct pipe, used for water lines, and several hydrants and fittings, from a construction site on Grove place, where condominiums are being constructed.

Carolyn Smith of P & F Construction said the theft had occurred sometime between 10 a.m. on Sept. 8 and early Monday morning. Smith added it would have taken a large truck — and caused considerable noise — to remove the missing items.

A Highland ave. couple reported their home had been broken into sometime between 7:15 a.m., when they left, and 6:45 p.m. The intruders entered through a kitchen screen and storm window, which had not been locked. More than $1,800 in jewelry, $200 in cash, a Sanyo cassette recorder, binoculars, and a Sony Watchman portable television were taken.

Also missing were a brand-new Sanyo tape player, a Panasonic portable television, and a man's Seiko watch, still in their boxes because they were intended as presents for the couple's three children.

The family's cocker spaniel, which was home at the time, may have scared the intruders away, police said. The house was not ransacked, and many valuable items were not taken, they observed.

Neighbors reported hearing the barking, and one saw a red mid-size car in the driveway, but thought it was someone visiting the home.

Later that day, at 8:40 p.m., police towed and impounded another unregistered car when a 23-year-old Melrose man was spotted on Church st. driving a Plymouth with expired Rhode Island tags wired to the back bumper.

Stopped on Waterfield rd., the man produced a valid Mass. license but expired Rhode Island registration. The car belonged to his brother, he said. The driver was cited for driving an unregistered vehicle.

Sunday, Sept. 9

A 36-year-old woman called police just after noon to report she had taken 65 tablets of prescription medication — tranquilizers and anti-depressants — in an attempt on her own life. She told police she had taken the pills about 15 minutes before she called, but later panicked and decided to call. She was taken to Winchester Hospital for treatment.

A large tree branch fell across Stowell rd. about 1:36 p.m., and knocked down telephone lines. Police notified New England Telephone.

A golfer at the Winchester Country Club reported the theft of his golf cart and clubs mid-game. Police said while the man was golfing, two 16-year-old boys took his cart and drove off across the course with it, around 4:52 p.m.

Despite a search of the area, the culprits were not found, but the golf cart was discovered intact on the Cambridge st. side of the course, with the 2- and 4-irons missing from the bag of clubs.

A Robinhood rd. homeowner reported the theft of her mailbox from in front of her home, at about 5 p.m. She gave the mailbox's value at $200.

Saturday, Sept. 8

A 21-year-old Burlington man was arrested for disturbing the peace at 4:55 in the morning, after police found him sitting in his car at the intersection of Park and Vine sts., with his engine running and his radio playing loud music.

Officer Barry Donaghey reported that he asked the man to turn off the radio, but was ignored twice. The driver responded to the third request, but was arrested and taken to the Lynch station, and held until 6:30 a.m., when he was released on personal recognizance.

Officers questioned two Arlington men, ages 20 and 24, about activity they termed "suspicious" when the men were spotted walking around the new home construction on Pepper

Hill drive at 6:22 p.m.

The men, whose car was parked on the street, told police they were just looking around. Police told them to leave the area, and they did without incident.

Residents on Middlesex st. reported unknown youths in Wildwood Cemetery throwing rocks at the rear of their homes at about 8 p.m. Police investigated, but found no youths, and said they could find no visible damage to the homes.

A 13-year-old Richardson st. boy reported being bitten by a small dog belonging to a neighbor, at about 8:59 p.m. Examination showed a bruise above the boy's left ankle, but no broken skin. Police spoke with the dog's owner, who promised to keep the dog restrained, and notified dog officer Nick Molea of the incident.

Friday, Sept. 7

A Rangeley rd. man reported about 30 feet of his post-and-rail fence had been knocked down by an unknown vehicle sometime during the day.

The owner of a Central st. home, who had rented it furnished, to tenants for nearly a year, called police to report she discovered the home had been damaged and several items stolen when the tenants left.

The owner listed power tools, a radio, appliances, linens and other items missing, but said she did not want to pursue a complaint as the house was being sold and she was moving to another state.

A High st. family reported a black 16-inch Murray X-16 dirt bike stolen from their home on Thursday or Friday. The bike was noticed missing a little past 4 p.m. Friday; the family gave its value at $90.

In the early evening, police received complaints about a group of youths throwing light bulbs into the street in the Richardson st. area. Officers questioned a group of five youths in the area, aged 14 to 18, but the group denied throwing the lightbulbs.

Police received a report of vandalism at a Holton st. warehouse at 10:09 p.m. Two windows were broken on a front-end loader. Police said the incident may have been related to an earlier incident being investigated by Woburn police, as it is technically in their jurisdiction.

Wednesday, Sept. 5

Officers investigated a shooting on Hillcrest parkway in the early evening, but soon determined there was no foul play involved. A 26-year-old man was cleaning out his BB gun — which he believed to be unloaded — when it accidentally discharged and struck his wife, who was crossing the living room, in the right eye.

She was taken to Winchester Hospital, and an eye specialist called in to treat her. After questioning both husband and wife, and consulting the doctors, police recorded the incident as an accident.

Rec. Dept. Job Bank Schedule

The Winchester Recreation Department's Job Bank announces its school year hours. The Job Bank is a job referral service that tries to match a student's part-time job ambition with a prospective employer's needs.

The Job Bank takes into account the proximity of the employer and the employees transportation needs and tries to match employee and employer according to these needs. Presently, the Job Bank has jobs that fit around a busy student's life. Jobs take place after school, weeknights and on weekend. Jobs consist of housecleaning, babysitting, yard work, odds and ends, and consistent part-time work.

If you're between the ages of 13 and 18 and are looking for some pocket money, visit the Job Bank and fill out a job application form. The Job Bank is located at the Youth Center beside the Gym in McCall Jr. High School, 458 Main st. Sign-up hours for students only are from Monday 2:30 - 5:00 and 5:00 and 7:00 - 10:00 p.m. and Thursday and Friday from 2:30 - 5:00 p.m. Prospective employers may register or call the Job Bank for more information on Tuesday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Friday 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Darcy Fitzgerald or Tricia Intravala at the Youth Center at 729-7390. If there is no answer, contact the Recreation Department at 721-7125.

Sachem Soccer Team Ties Belmont In Season Opener

By PAUL FERULLO

The Sachem soccer team opened their season Tuesday against the Belmont Marauders with a 2-2 tie.

The Sachems outplayed the Marauders in the first half, although the score did not reflect their performance. The first half ended with the score knotted at 1-1.

The Marauders scored first on a defensive breakdown by the Sachems. However, the Sachems came right back as Christoff Verhugen pounded home a cross from Alfonso Serrano. Winchester took the lead as James Campo broke in uncontested and put the Sachems up by one.

The play seessaved back and forth during the second half with both teams having some excellent scoring chances. Winchester goalie Mike Rice, starting his first varsity game in goal, made many key saves to keep the Sachems in the game.

The Marauders finally broke through the Sachems' tough defense on a shot that hit the crossbar and bounced inches behind the goal line.

This goal sparked Belmont's momentum as they carried the play until the final two minutes as the Sachems attempted to rally for the winning goal.

The Sachems take on last year's Middlesex League champions at home on Friday at Skillings Field at 3:30 p.m.

Wellesley Club Wine And Cheese Party Is Tonight

The Winchester Wellesley Club will present an informal preview of this year's benefit program at a wine and cheese party tonight.

The benefit will feature "The Sounds of Music," a performing group consisting of soprano Diane Caldwell, baritone Frederick Fairfield Jr. and pianist Patricia Reynolds. The program, a medley of Rogers and Hammerstein songs, will be held Oct. 17, and will be followed by a salad luncheon.

Proceeds from the benefit will be donated to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and Wellesley College. Tickets will soon be on sale by members of the club.

A Better Dance Sept. 29 For A Better Chance

Residents are invited to kick off their shoes, and their fall social calendar, with a record hop on Sept. 29 from 7:30 to midnight at St. Eulalia's Church sponsored by A Better Chance (ABC).

The event will include a hot and cold buffet and music from the 40s, 50s and 60s, played by a disc jockey team, "Good Stuff."

The record hop is a benefit fundraiser for ABC, which sponsors academically talented minority students from around the country as students at Winchester High School.

The ABC volunteers raise funds to help pay the students' living expenses for their Winchester home on Dix st., and serve as host families for the

For Representative in Congress Democrats will see five names on the ballot in the following order: Edward J. Markey, Michael J. Barrett, Philip E. Doherty, Michael Gelber and Samuel Rotondi.

Candidates for state Senate are Richard A. Kraus and Alan G. MacDonald.

There is no candidate for state Representative on the Democratic ballot.

The Republicans have a short ballot. Besides Richardson and Shamie facing each other for U.S. Senate, there are only S. Lester Ralph for Congress, Sherman W. Saltmarsh for state Representative and Nicholas S. Polio for county commissioner.

In other races, five Democrats and one Republican are vying for two Middlesex County Commissioner seats. Among the Democrats are incumbents Thomas J. Larkin of Bedford and Michael E. McLaughlin of Lowell. The three challengers from the Democratic camp are: former Somerville Alderman and Billerica Town Meeting Member Robert W. Keough; Albert J. Onessimo of Somerville; and Anthony D. Pini of Cambridge.

Republican Nicholas S. Polio of Sudbury will also compete for one of the two seats.

The battle for Middlesex County Treasurer is strictly a Democratic horse race, as there are no Republican candidates. Seven Democrats are competing for the job. They are:

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Precincts 1 and 2 will vote at the Town Hall; Precincts 3 and 4 at Lincoln School; Precincts 5 and 6 at Vinson-Owen School; and Precincts 7 and 8 at Lynch School.

'Incumbent County Treasurer William J. Gustus, former aide to Commissioner Thomas Larkin

'Former Somerville Treasurer and former Middlesex County Treasurer Rocco J. Antonelli, who resigned as Middlesex Treasurer in 1983, after an investigation of his investments of county funds in accounts with banks that later made personal loans to him.

Wilmington Selectman Daniel H. Ballou Jr., a former investigator for the state Attorney General's office.

'Thomas F. Coughlin of Cambridge, a treasurer for the Thomas F. Coughlin Insurance Agency in Cambridge.

Chairman of the Somerville

Redevelopment Authority Leo F. Henebury, Jr.

'Joseph E. LeBlanc of Billerica, a municipal and county examiner for the Mass. Dept. of Revenue and a licensed accountant.

'And former Governor's Councilor and member of the Emergency Finance Board Vincent A. LoPresti of Stoneham.

For the seat on the Governor's Council on the Democratic ballot are Joseph A. Langone III, Mary McQueeney Alberti and Robert W. Collins.

Two other officials will be chosen in next Tuesday's primary. Because the incumbents are all Democrats and there are no Republican challengers, Tuesday's primary will determine who wins these two positions.

Precincts 1 and 2 will vote at the Town Hall; Precincts 3 and 4 at Lincoln School; Precincts 5 and 6 at Vinson-Owen School; and Precincts 7 and 8 at Lynch School.

AN APPLE FOR THE TEACHER

A Backward Glance

By TERRY MAROTTA

"What's your pet peeve?" someone asked me recently.

I couldn't come up with much on the spur of the moment like that, and so I settled instead for a remark that lobbed the ball back into his court.

"Oh, I don't know," I answered him. "What's yours?"

His pet peeve, as it turned out, is people who don't give any thought to those who come behind them. When he said this, I realized that here was not so much a favorite grievance as a topic sentence, or a whole introductory paragraph even. I settled in to the first sip of a frosty Ovaltine, which I take neat, and asked him to amplify. It was what he wanted to do.

"For example, I can't STAND people who slow up at the end of an escalator," he told me, and went on to describe the type. I could see his point, as he painted the picture.

There are people who sail to the top of the flight on the wings of automation, only to choke up at the jumping-off place. It is hard to be behind these people. There we are, I pictured, ascending into heaven like dead people in the cartoons, looking blank and happy for the ride, trying not to notice that we all have our faces in the fannies of those before us.

It's a problem when the one at the top suddenly gets cold feet and hesitates to make that final hop. The rest of us squeeze together and bunch up behind him. We avert our eyes, as our bodies make joyful and abrupt introduction. I could see his point, when I thought about it some.

"Then there are the ones who pull out in front of you in their cars — even cut you off sometimes — only to slow down to a cruising speed of 20 in a 50 mile-an-hour zone." These people, too, can be a problem. Almost uniformly, they're older people, who began their driving career in a meadow somewhere before the dawn of paved roads. They go 20 mph as a kind of a mute protest against the age of hurry-hurry that we live in.

The worst kind are the ones that can't see over the steering wheel; to them, the rear-view mirror reveals nothing. It's not that they don't care about the people behind them all rushing to buy gas grills or Vegomatics. (On Sale, This Week Only.) — it's that they don't even know about them. My friend suffers ecstasies of torture when he's stuck behind one of these guys.

He's irritated, too, by people who are careless about how they leave the campground they're using, say, or even the picnic table. I could identify with this point: there's nothing worse when arriving at the fast-food place and finding tables swirling with cigarette ash or smeared over with ketchup.

It's hard sometimes not to make a mess at a restaurant, especially with a young family. I know when we eat out, it looks like a pack of wild boars has been foraging at our table. The napkins are shredded and balled, buns parts litter the floor, packets of sugar have been violated and licked at, even the straws have been squeezed and tortured.

I'm glad when it's the kind of place where you're meant to pick up after yourself. At restaurants where a waiter has to do it, I apologize for the last 20 minutes, and then leave tips large enough to launch a college education on.

But my friend when on. "It's a whole mind-set, you see. Some people are just oblivious about those who follow them. You can trace it right down the line. And as Americans, we're all pretty guilty of it. What are we thinking of, leaving a dirty world to our children and our grandchildren? People just don't think about the ones that come after them."

He was right about all of this, I had to admit. It's important to take that backward glance, even though it takes time to do it, and you must sometimes take certain actions in consequence of what you see.

He told his wife not to look back when God was destroying their hometown in the Old Testament. She did, of course, and got turned to a pillar of salt for her trouble. But I always liked her for making that gesture; it seemed so human. It's what I would have done in her position. There's no question but it's what my friend would have done.

I thought about this as I drained the last of my Ovaltine and licked the rim, margarita-style. It makes sense, I decided, to have a pet peeve handy for taking out and working over from time to time, like a dog does with a bone.

I thought my friend had come up with a pretty good one. And I was sure to pick up my glass when I was done, and wipe off the table after myself.

A PRACTICAL POLITICAL PERSPECTIVE

By Sam. Adams

The Lowell Sun, The Boston Herald, The Wakefield Item, The Lexington Minute Man, The Burlington Times Union and The Billerica Minute Man have been added to the growing list of newspapers which have endorsed Winchester's Sam Rotondi for Congress.

Radio station WEEI also endorsed Rotondi yesterday and he has previously been endorsed by The Malden Evening News, The Medford Mercury, The Melrose Evening News, The Everett Leader-Herald and The Winchester Star.

Obviously running scared, incumbent Cong. Ed Markey has charged that "special interests" are contributing to the Rotondi campaign. Specifically he cites people who work for electric utilities — a small percentage of the thousands who have contributed to Rotondi — as trying to influence the race. Yet Markey's own campaign has listed $158,184 in contributions of less than $200 where no name and occupation of the donor must be filed, and another $111,700 of large donations which have been listed with names but not occupations of the contributors.

That's over 50 percent of the total money he's raised in the past year from "unknown sources" whereas Rotondi has recorded every single donation.

Just who is trying to cover up sources of campaign money? If Rotondi can file complete information, why is it so difficult for Markey to gather the records on more than $100,000 which he is required by law to divulge?

No wonder anyone in the electric power industry is contributing to Rotondi. Markey's obsession with the nuclear bomb has led him to come out against EXISTING nuclear power plants.

Markey is off the deep end on this one. Thirty-two percent of New England's electric power comes from existing nuclear plants and Markey wants them shut down.

There is a legitimate debate about insuring safety in the construction of new plants and the relative costs and returns vs. fossil fuel plants, but to close down existing nuclear plants because of an anti-nuclear paranoia, strains credibility.

Markey is so anti-nuclear that 24 Congressmen recently signed a letter to committee chairman Morris Udall attacking Markey for his bias against nuclear power.

Markey has been a total, one-issue candidate in his role of nuclear freeze spokesman for all the anti-nuke people — bombs, new power plants, existing power plants, nuclear waste disposal, nuclear submarines, nuclear aircraft carriers, nuclear research and perhaps even nuclear medicine for all we know.

If you are in an anti-nuke group of any kind you know of Ed Markey — your "special interest" will quickly get his ear.

But the people of the 7th Congressional District deserve more than a "special interest" Congressman. Sam Rotondi has a broad appeal to the average taxpayer and working man in this district.

As a State Senator, Rotondi introduced and pushed through the state's Victim's Rights Law. Criminal victims now have the right to recover damages, the right to be heard at pre-trial conferences where the plea-bargaining takes place, the right to make a statement before the judge passes sentence, and the right to counseling under the Victim-Witness Assistance Program which is funded by work done by prisoners.

Rotondi also introduced and got the state to enact the Civil Service Reform Act which for the first time in history brought productivity standards and merit pay based on performance into the system. It also removed loopholes which allowed political positions to be created under Civil Service.

It was Sam Rotondi who was in the forefront of county court system reform and the new law which resulted in putting more than 400 individual county court budgets into one uniform system.

And it was a Rotondi bill which now allows cities and towns to set up their own pension investment funds so that pension obligations don't have to come out of the annual tax levy. This means that in 20 years or so towns which start making small annual contributions to a pension fund will no longer be burdened by costs for retired employees and the retirees will be guaranteed their money. It was far-sighted and meets a real need of the community.

And that's the kind of practical thinking we need in Congress. We need someone who is concerned about the people in his district, about jobs, about the economy.

We need a Congressman who worries more about how people back home are going to pay the light bill and less about turning off the electricity.

Markey Supporters Respond To Star Editorial Endorsement

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We believe it is safe to say the principles of fairness and accuracy apply equally to the business of newspapers and the business of politics. We like our politicians and our newspapers to be unbiased and even-handed.

Therefore, it is appropriate to assess your recent endorsement of Sam Rotondi by applying those principles.

For example, was it fair or accurate to list a handful of comments about Cong. Ed Markey which were made exclusively in a one-week period in May in an effort to assess his performance during eight years in Congress?

Was it fair or accurate to ignore

Ed Markey's many accomplishments — such as his work on the nuclear freeze; his work on the passage of the original Superfund law and his recent efforts to raise the program's appropriation from $1.6 billion to $10.2 billion; or his pro-consumer diligence and his committee work that has helped the 7th District maintain the lowest unemployment rate in the state?

And was it fair or accurate to endorse a candidate by tearing down the incumbent Congressman? After all, was this an endorsement or a personal attack?

In your editorial, you noted that you decided to list the words of other newspapers because your own comments likely would be passed off as

"so much rhetoric." Therein lies the only true statement in your "endorsement." Your own credibility is sadly lacking on this matter.

We support Ed Markey, as do hundreds of other Winchester residents and thousands of 7th District residents. We do not rationalize our support by demeaning his opponents. We explain that support by listing Ed Markey's record of accomplishment.

Our support of Ed Markey is based on a number of factors. Perhaps the most important is the fact he does not hold a narrow view of the world in which we live.

A nuclear war is not going to bypass our town. The fact we live so close to an MX missile factory in Wilmington and the fertile minds at MIT is suitable cause for alarm on that point.

People in Winchester breathe air and drink water. We pay taxes and we send our children to schools. That is why we respect and admire Congressman Markey's efforts for a clean environment, a fair tax policy and a sound educational system.

Fairness and accuracy. We expect that from our newspapers and our elected officials. We receive it from Ed Markey. We are disappointed with The Winchester Star.

Resident Praises Rotondi's Willingness To Listen On Nuclear Power

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Our Cong. Edward Markey has tried to make much of Sam Rotondi accepting political contributions from the so-called "Nuclear Industry." As if to discredit his candidacy.

I have worked in the nuclear industry over the years as an engineer, and while not presently involved in anything nuclear, I strongly support Mr. Rotondi's position that at least he may listen.

When I was active in the pro-nuclear campaign a few years ago, I did have a few meetings with Cong. Markey and I must admit his attitude left much to be desired.

For example if you worked for a nuclear company or for any large company, immediately your motives were suspect. As if anyone of integrity really put lives ahead of profit.

Mr. Markey has surrounded himself with the far outs from all of the formerly anti-nuclear power, now anti-weapons types who believe all risk can be eliminated from life, and saying it often can get you elected in Massachusetts. He has phobic fear of anything nuclear and cannot be reasoned with on the subject.

In contrast, Sen. Tsongas, who listened to the professionals and technical people who understand the tradeoffs in any technology and ultimately reversed his position to favor nuclear over coal.

Mr. Markey now says, "It's time the irresponsible nuclear industry be held accountable." Well, I think it's time for the irresponsible politicians, like Markey who have driven the cost of nuclear power — and consequently our electric bills — out of sight be held accountable as well.

Connecticut Yankee, a plant built in the mid 1960s recently set a world operating record for continuous operation. It was built for about 9 percent of the engineering manhours current plants require and at about 6 percent of the cost in terms of power produced, compared to current nuclear plants.

Maine Yankee, built in the late 60s, held a previous world record and has similar cost figures.

As one who worked on both of those units, and who has followed the decline of the industry since, the cause of the problem is simple. Excessive regulation perpetrated by lawyers like Mr. Markey, who don't now and never will understand technology and think the more paper you generate the more safe the product is.

The plants of today in actual practice are less reliable and 16 times more costly, not because the nuclear industry wanted to put itself out of business, but because people like Mr. Markey wanted to put it out of business.

If there is to be criticism and blame, let's also look at credit. The state of Connecticut, the most nuclear-powered state in the U.S. (60% of its electric power will be nuclear when Millstone 3 is finished), has close to the lowest electric rates in the U.S. Low cost power attracts industry, and we all know industry creates jobs.

Instead, our Mr. Markey would have us turn to coal or windmills, install costly scrubbers for acid rain reduction, or buy the power from the Canadians who may build a low-cost nuclear plant to produce it. It is not because the nuclear industry wants to silence Mr. Markey that people contribute to Mr. Rotondi.

It's because Mr. Rotondi may listen to people who know what they are talking about, while Mr. Markey is courting Ralph Nader.

A final note: Perhaps Mr. Markey would like to explain why such a large majority of his $500-plus contributions come from Texas.

As one who recently lived there for a year-and-a-half, I can't imagine any real Texan contributing or voting for him.

Republicans Urged To Write-In

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I strongly urge all Republicans (and Independents choosing a Republican ballot in the Sept. 18th primary election) to write in the name of Edward Young of Melrose for Treasurer, Middlesex County.

In all fairness, the voters must have a choice in November. We must preserve the two-party system. Since there is no Republican candidate for this office printed on the ballot, a write-in vote for Edward Young will assure all voters this choice.

Mr. Young is well qualified for the Treasurer's office. He has a degree in economics from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst; and has done graduate work at the University of Denver. He is a Navy veteran of WWII. He has spent his whole working life in accounting, management, and finance.

Sincerely,
H. Rushton Harwood Jr.

★ Liquor

therapists as our tenants." Carlo pointed out. "Many of our patients have to use crutches, and there's no way they can seek parking elsewhere."

William Carroll, representing Boston Realty Trust, which owns the building at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Converse, argued that permitting a restaurant that will seat 166 and employ more than 100 others would create a hardship for the businesses already in the area.

But Louis Manzone told the board he'd surveyed downtown Winchester for parking availability before even beginning his proposal, and found ample parking within a block-and-a-half of his chosen location. He offered to institute valet parking if traffic and parking problems arose.

Manzone added that he expects 80 to 85 percent of his lunchtime traffic — the time when the other businesses in the area should be most affected — to be walk-in traffic from the downtown area.

The walk-in traffic — particularly those whom Manzone hopes will walk out with lunch in hand — concerned Selectman Edward O'Connell.

He argued against part of the proposal offered by Manzone, a take-out service with a separate facility dubbed a "market."

"I don't consider (take-out) part of a first-class restaurant, and it might put Maximilian's into competition with some of the other business operations in town," said O'Connell.

Manzone said the "market" would offer the same menu as the restaurant, and would not compete with sandwich shops and other offerings in town.

The separate facility, he said, was his attempt to handle traffic problems created by lunchtime take-out in his 100-seat Needham establishment, also called Maximilian's.

Other board members argued that the market operation would not be a detriment — and was outside the board's jurisdiction, anyway.

"I have no problem with the market concept," said Selectman Alan Macdonald. "And I don't see how it would affect the granting of the overall (food service) license or the liquor license."

"I don't know how we can restrict the restaurant from selling prepared food to take out — suppose someone wanted to take something home to an invalid?" agreed Saraco. "Our business is the common victuallers' (food service) and liquor licenses — either we're going to issue the license or not."

The quality of the restaurant was a concern to one resident, who said she had tried the Needham Maximilian's and found it below the standard she wanted to see in Winchester.

But others in the audience defended the applicants' Needham operation, and its potential success in Winchester.

"Since the town has chosen to issue only a few liquor licenses, and not let the market determine who can succeed, I think we should be very, very selective," stated Jane Robbins, a Prospect st. resident.

"At the very least, the food should be fresh, and prepared to order on the premises," she declared. "The menu should have some classicism for durability, and the restaurant should be able to attract people with a reasonable disposable income."

"I find Maximilian's fails on all three counts," Robbins said.

"I visited the Needham restaurant on three occasions with my husband," she said. "I found the food inferior in all regards, the menu... popular and commercialized... trendy... it was pre-assembled and heated up...."

"I eat in restaurants frequently, and the meals I ate there were among the worst I have eaten anywhere," she said. "I found it slanted at the 20-and-under crowd; I would never go there for a Saturday night dinner with my husband, or take a client there for lunch."

Instead of granting the license to Maximilian's, Robbins argued, the town should wait for something more suitable for Winchester — and perhaps consider setting up a search committee to find a small, chef-owner operation.

"I wasn't going to speak, but I feel I must," countered Forest st. resident Stuart Bowen, calling Robbins' remarks "unfair."

"I owned two different restaurants for eight years, which had national acclaim," he said. "I'm out of the business because I find it makes more demands on me than I care to fulfill."

"But with regard to the quality of dining being offered (in Maximilian's Cafe), I think we should feel the town is honored," Bowen said. "It's not a world-class restaurant — I think it would be lovely to have one here — but I'm not sure we could support one in Winchester."

"But I think (Maximilian's) will be equal to anything in Lexington, and that town has built a very successful downtown around its restaurants," he added. "If Mr. Manzone is to be told his proposal is not appropriate to Winchester — well, I can't agree with that."

Macdonald said he had eaten in the Needham restaurant, and pronounced it "first-class." He added that in his recent discussions with Lexington officials, they said their downtown rejuvenation was linked to expansion of their restaurants.

Manzone himself defended his reputation against Robbins' statement.

"I'm sorry you weren't satisfied with your meals," he said. "But we receive fresh produce six days a week, all our baking is done on the premises, and for a 100-seat restaurant to serve 3,500 meals a day, I'd say, is a moderate success."

Manzone noted that three of his chefs are graduates of Johnson and Wales, and three are from Culinary Institute of America, both well-known training grounds for fine cooks.

During the course of the hearing, board members also grilled Manzone, his wife and their legal counsel on the legal structure of the corporation and the planning done for the interior and exterior of the building.

They also agreed with Lt. Andrew Crawford's suggestion that all town departments be asked to submit written reports on the license issuance.

O'Connell asked Manzone for assurances the restaurant would have a service bar only.

"We offer specialty drinks and wines as an accompaniment to our food, rather than being a bar that happens to serve food," Manzone told the board. He said 80 percent of the Needham operation's sales are in food, 20 percent in alcohol.

"Service bar only" is going to be right on the license," agreed Selectmen chairman Mark Lombardi.

Board members voted to approve both licenses for the hours of 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Mondays-Thursdays, 11 a.m. to midnight on Fridays and Saturdays, and 11-3 on Sundays for brunch.

Manzone said he was happy to pay the $1,000 initial alcohol license fee, in hopes he is able to open for the Christmas holidays.

But, he told the board, he won't be surprised if the opening is in early January — when he will have to pay $500 for renewal of the liquor license he hasn't even used yet.

Winchester Adult Ed Program Will Begin Classes On Sept. 24

The fall session of the Winchester Adult Education program will begin on Sept. 24. More than 50 courses will be offered.

While most of the classes will meet in the evenings at Winchester High School, daytime opportunities will include advanced and beginning typing, beginning quilting, crewel embroidery, knitting in the a.m., personal computer applications, and "your best colors."

New courses include: "looking good," word processing on the Macintosh, workshop in wardrobe and makeup, delicious diet and exercise techniques, "heartbeat", multi-crafts, preserving your memories, using computers for your application, computer lab, and financial survival.

The Winchester Hospital will offer special courses in cardiac nutrition, diabetic nutrition and a workshop on women's images and health issues. The Winchester Red Cross will offer a special course in CPR-Basic Life Support.

Course description flyers and registration forms may be picked up at the Winchester Public Library, the Jenks Senior Center, or the main office of Winchester High School.

Since some courses must limit enrollments, students are encouraged to register by mail as soon as possible.

An in-person registration will be held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Sept. 19 and 20, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the main office of Winchester High School.

Why we closed one of America's finest restaurants.

For years, Dertads was a small, continental restaurant serving fine cuisine to a small, continental group of diners.

The outstanding food and impeccable service earned Dertads a coveted 3-star rating and a national reputation. And also earned it more customers than it was ever intended to accommodate.

So we're closing it. And opening — Brandywine. A more spacious, elegant restaurant with a fresh approach to continental cooking. A menu you can explore visit after visit. And the same standard of excellence you may have come to expect from us.

Why the change in name? You wouldn't change the ingredients of your favorite recipe and call it by its former name, would you? Of course not.

Now that we've opened your eyes to why we closed our old restaurant, come visit us at our new restaurant, Brandywine.

League Pigskin Preview:

Sachems And Lexington Are The 'Teams To Beat'

By SETH BORENSTEIN
What a difference a year makes. The caliber of football played in the Middlesex League last year was almost the worst in a decade, according to The Boston Globe's Larry Ames. But football in the league this year should be better — better than in any of the last 15 years, he said.

Says Lexington coach Bill Tighe, "This is the best league I've seen in 10 years."

As many as seven or eight of the 10 teams in the league will play strongly. The reason for the rapid change is experience.

Last year most of the gridders in the league were underclassmen and inexperienced, thus the poor play. But with a year under their belts, the Middlesex footballers will be tougher and better.

And the teams that most went with youth last year should be living high on the hog this year.

The two teams that are most frequently mentioned as "the team to beat" are Lexington and Winchester, which respectively owned 4-6 and 5-4-1 records last year.

After Lexington lost its first five games last year, Coach Tighe put underclassmen into almost all of his offensive positions. They started winning, but even more important, those underclassmen are returning this year.

Ten of the 11 Lexington offensive starters last year will be back again. And that experienced offense is the reason why the Globe's Ames picks the Minutemen as his preseason favorite.

The Minutemen offense will be powered halfback Bart Graf and fullback Sean Cummings.

Right behind Lexington is Winchester, which has 17 returning starters on the grid team (nine on offense and eight on defense).

The Sachems not only have the experience, they have the size. Some typical Winchester linemen own statistics that sound more like they belong on the Washington Redskins, not the Winchester Sachems. For example, nose tackle David Christopher weighs in at 275 pounds and three of his neighbors on the defensive line weigh 242, 215, and 215 pounds.

But Winchester has more than big bruisers. The Sachems' offense will be led by quarterback Bob Palmer and halfback Brian Carroll.

Observed Lexington coach Tighe of Winchester's formidable size, "The field just tilts when they come on the field."

Even though the Sachems have the potential, Coach Manny Marshall isn't counting on an easy season. "You don't win with potential, you win with performance," Marshall said.

Marshall was a little worried about his team's performance, after the way the Sachems played in the Jamboree Friday. They did not execute their plays the way a veteran team should.

Of course injuries have slowed down Winchester. Co-captains Carroll and guard-linebacker David Doherty have banged up hands. Both are expected to be ready for the league opener at home against Belmont on Sept. 22.

But just because Lexington and Winchester have the experience and the preseason potential, doesn't mean the Middlesex League will be the Big Two and Little Eight. The league will be wider open with no sure winners and no doormats, according to Belmont Coach Tom Apprille and Winchester's Marshall.

"The league is very tight," Ames said. "You have a number of teams with potential."

Ames said the league winner will probably still lose two or three games, because competition will be so tough.

After the top two teams, come the middle six. The middle six seem to pair off into equal teams. In order of potential, those middle teams are: Melrose and Woburn, Reading and Watertown; and Belmont and Burlington.

Melrose had the strongest finish in the league last year — even better than defending league champion Watertown — according to Ames.

Both the offensive and defensive

Soccer Preview: Girls Face Pressure Of The Past

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

It's not like these athletes are under any pressure.

Not much. They're only playing on a team that's won the state championship twice in the last two years.

They're only playing on a team that lost seven of last year's 11 starters to graduation, with about half of the current 25 members brand new to varsity soccer this fall.

But there's no pressure. At least their coach, Chris Scanlon, is trying to keep the pressure off his girls.

"Comparisons are inevitable," Scanlon acknowledges. "But every team is different." He wants Winchester to enjoy this team for its own abilities, not as heirs to a dynasty.

"I think this will be another outstanding team," Scanlon says with confidence.

But, he quickly adds, "Sometimes you can't always measure things in wins and losses. You have to have a real feel for a team in terms of attitude, work ethics, and team spirit."

The girls' varsity soccer team won the state as well as Middlesex League championships in 1982 and 1983, and is expected to be one of the best teams in the league again this year.

Scanlon agrees that his team is one of the best — but he is not about to predict a championship at this point.

"In the jamboree Saturday, in my opinion, we were the best team out there, which makes me optimistic," he says. "But luck is always a factor."

"And, as someone said to me at the jamboree, we may have been undefeated for the last two years, but someday, somebody's going to beat us," Scanlon notes. When that happens, he doesn't want his players to think they've failed.

"To win a state championship is difficult," he points out. "To repeat is very difficult; to win it three times is on another level of difficulty."

"But this team does have the potential to be as good as any team we've ever had," he finishes.

He's pleased with the team makeup: eight seniors, eight juniors, eight sophomores and one freshman.

Powers led the league in scoring last year; Russo was player of the year for Eastern Massachusetts. Both were Globe All-Scholastics.

Senior Theresa Ducharme returns as a left-wing fullback, and Carey MacDonald, also a senior, as a right striker.

"Three seniors made the varsity this year — Maura Kennedy, Mary Anne Fallon, and Rene DerMatis — they all have a great attitude, and are great team players," Scanlon says.

Starters who are returning juniors include Bonnie Jean Casey at right midfield, Julie Guarnotta at right

Tennis Tourney Championships Should Be Tough

The annual Winchester Town Tennis Tournament opened this past weekend with perfect weather and some great tennis. The theme of the weekend seemed to be "Youth Must Be Served," as one after another of the young players bested their older and more experienced rivals. Fine wins were posted by Jim Willing, Bob Horne Jr., Sean Herlihy, Paul Sughrue, Hank Lynch, Diane Intravia, Steve Brosnan, Patty Lavin, Chris Julian and Carmen Elio Jr.

This tournament is probably the strongest on the men's side of any Winchester tournament in the last 10 years. In fact, last year's reigning champs in both the men's singles and doubles were eliminated in the quarterfinal rounds.

The major upset of the weekend occurred in the men's doubles, as Bob Horne Sr. and Bob Horne Jr. rallied to oust perennial champs Chris Scanlon and Vandy French 5-7, 6-4, 6-3. The Hornes' ability to keep the ball in play continually frustrated Scanlon and French, and eventually proved to be the difference in the match.

Bob Jr. was also involved in the most exciting singles match of the weekend, although coming out on the short end of the score 6-0, 4-6, 7-5 to number 2 seed Jim Willing. This match was a fine context of hard hitting from the baseline and aggressive net play with Willing being but a tad better at the end.

Also advancing in the men's singles were top seed Lou Demarteaux 6-2, 6-3 over Paul Sughrue, Chris Julian 6-3, 6-3 over Steve Powers (who spent almost the entire weekend on the courts) and Sean Herlihy 6-2, 6-2 over Tom Dunn.

Desmarieux donned a painter's cap to protect his thinning pate from the broiling sun and joined with Carmen Elio Sr. to advance to the semifinals of the men's doubles. Joining them were the Hornes, Doug Carlson and Bob Shean, and Ted Martin and Paul Sughrue. It looks like some great matches coming up next weekend in both singles and doubles.

In the Senior Singles, last year's champ Ron Salter, Carmen Elio, Bob Horne, and Will Aldrich advanced to the semifinals next weekend.

Mixed doubles saw Diane Intravia and Steve Brosnan begin defense of their title by advancing to the semifinals. Next weekend, they will oppose Gordon and Judy Nicholson, while Mary Golden and Terry Fuller will face the tough team of Pinky and Al Samoiloff who seem to save their backfields in Melrose are strong. The offensive backfield includes not one but two hotshot quarterbacks, Richard Karelas and Kenneth Simpson, who are dueling it out for the starting spot. And defense, three of the four defensive backs started last year.

The Melrose weakness is near the line of scrimmage — on both the offensive and defensive sides.

But Melrose's weakness is Woburn's strength.

Woburn will count on some heavy and big linemen to put them back in contention. In the past 10 years, Woburn has captured five league titles and two Super Bowls. Although they have not been picked to earn number six this year, they will be up there. Eleven starters, including quarterback Mike Carbone, return from last year's 5-5 squad.

Reading also has some big linemen, Dean Gilligan and Matthew Edson, and a quarterback Scott Ferris should put some points on the board. The question mark in Reading is the defensive secondary and whether it can stop the pass.

Watertown is the defending champion, but it won last year with the help of a lot of seniors. This year the Red Raiders will rebuild, and linebacker-fulback Nick Faggas will be asked to carry much of the offensive and defensive load.

The Belmont football squad, like those in the past, has been hurt by injuries. The Marauders, if healthy, will run, run and run. With three returning rushers, Anthony Santagati, Randy Sabatino and Paul Marinelli, making up the Italian Running Attack, look for Belmont to try to bulldoze through a deep offensive line.

But Belmont's big question this year is last year's early season strength, defense. The Marauders only have two returning defensive starters, and both of them will be pulling duty on defense and offense.

But with good coaching, strong skill positions (David Murray at quarterback and placekicker), and a good receiver corps, the Marauders can be the team that "surprises" its opponents and ends up higher in the standings than expected.

Like Watertown, Burlington was deeply hurt by the graduation blues. Quarterback Tim Fallon and Tailback Skip Jackson are the only returning offensive starters.

And there will be only two returning defensive starters for Burlington, whose coach admits that this is a rebuilding year.

Middlesex League talent is getting so much better that last year's two doormats are inching their way to respectability.

Stoneham, which suffered through a 35-game winless streak for the past few years, ended last year 4-6, thanks to some senior talent. But while this year will not be a good one for Stoneham, the squad will probably not return to its winless days.

Last year's winless wonder, best tennis for Winchester tournaments.

Women's doubles will see top seeds Joan Byrne and Mary Golden battle with Pat Bonnell and Roseanne Innes for the crown. Byrne and Golden will be hoping to capture the crown after falling just short the last two years.

In women's singles, last year's champ Diane Intravia advanced with a good win over Janet Burke. Joining Diane in the semis will be Joan Byrne, Patty Levin and Stella Gallant. Stella tired out her opponent Jane Lang, her husband, Bob, Whit Gray, and the tournament committee before pulling out a three-hour marathon. Next weekend, Stella will start at 6 a.m. just in case.

Judging by the activity on the courts, and the number of spectators, the tournament has so far been a success. Next weekend, the action should pick up another level, so join the crowd for the championships and see some of the best tennis played this side of Flushing Meadows.

against Wakefield and Concord-Carlisle, which have also fielded power-house teams in the past, Scanlon says.

Concord-Carlisle took Winchester into 31 minutes of overtime in the state quarter-finals last year, in front of hundreds who stood on the high school field in the pouring rain.

That's the kind of support Scanlon wants to see for this year's team, he says: "This is the type of team that deserves support."

"These kids are learning to play" soccer the way they saw it played in Harvard Stadium this summer in the Olympics," Scanlon says. "That's one of our goals — to play soccer the way it should be played, not girls' soccer, just good soccer."

"We are preparing outstanding athletes to play soccer," Scanlon asserts. "It's not a question of boys and girls."

"There's no physiological difference that I can see between boys and girls, in terms of the game they can play," Scanlon says. "My team plays an extremely entertaining game of soccer."

"Anyone who comes to watch this team will see quality people and quality soccer," he states. "They're good winners, and, if they have to be, I'm sure they'll be good losers, too." There's no pressure there.

day, Winchester trounced Lincoln-Sudbury, 6 to 1. But Scanlon hesitates to treat that as an omen of things to come.

"I thought they were going to be better," he acknowledges. "But their coach said they had some injury problems. As a team, they didn't seem very strong."

Tuesday, in their first game, Winchester was to play Belmont, one of their big rivals.

"Belmont will probably be our toughest opponent in the league," Scanlon says before the game. "They gave us the most trouble last year — we beat them 1 to 0 here, but when we played them in Belmont, they tied us, 1-1. And they didn't lose many players (to graduation)."

"But I have a sense they feel confident that they can beat Winchester — and that's an edge we'll try and use," Scanlon says. "You always have to deal with the head factor."

The team's next match, tomorrow, is also away, against another traditional rival, Lexington.

"Lexington was our toughest opponent when I came to the league seven years ago," Scanlon says. "They have a new coach this year, who was the boys' JV coach — he'll bring them the winning attitude and enthusiasm they've lacked in the last few years."

Later games are scheduled

LWV Invites Residents To Get-Acquainted Coffee

Residents are invited to study the effect of Proposition 2½ on education in Winchester, participate in a discussion group involving the death penalty, hazardous waste or solid waste, work on voter registration, and local and national government issues with the Winchester League of Women Voters (LWV).

The League is made up of a broad cross-section of men and women who are keenly tuned in to today's and tomorrow's issues.

The Winchester League would like interested residents to know more about its activities, and extends a warm invitation for individuals to attend a "Meet the League" membership coffee on Thursday evening, Sept. 25 from 7:15 to 9 p.m. at the Winchester Public Library meeting room.

Those who cannot attend, but are interested in joining the League, call 729-7821 or 729-4563.

Young Readers Gobble Up Books

Each year the Winchester Junior Library sponsors an annual Summer Reading Program to promote good reading skills throughout the summer, so the children are better prepared to face the coming school year.

This summer, children who could read by themselves entered the program, "Leap for the Gold." More than 450 children read at least one book to enter the program, and 336 read 10 to 20 books to finish it.

In recognition of this tremendous effort, the Junior Library hosted an awards party at the Town Hall on Aug. 29. Following a performance by the "H'a Penny Puppets," the children were awarded their certificates.

A special thank-you was given to Dr. Arthur Daniels of Winchester, who donated the funds to purchase ice cream cone certificates and also to Baskin-Robbins for their role in providing the ice cream. Refreshments followed the program as the day's events came to an end.

Don't let Special Interests destroy "America's best Congressman."

For eight years Congressman Ed Markey has been fighting the special interests in Washington...

He's fighting the Chemical Polluters who are poisoning our water and our air, blocking Big Oil and Gas from ripping off the consumer, exposing the Defense Establishment and its appalling waste of our tax dollars...

Ed Markey. Best Congressman in America.

He's done his job so well that consumer advocate Ralph Nader calls Ed Markey the best Congressman in America.

With a record like that, it should come as no surprise that some special interests are doing everything they can to destroy Ed Markey...

Sam Rotondi. Special Interest Money.

This year they're backing a candidate, a local politician named Sam Rotondi... and the Nuclear Lobby alone has poured more than $20,000 into his negative campaign.

Stand up for Ed Markey.

They hope their money will buy your vote.

Over the years, they've found that they can't buy Ed Markey's vote... now it's your turn to show them they can't buy yours.

Vote for a man who represents your interests, not the special interests. Vote for Congressman Ed Markey on September 18th.

Congressman Ed Markey.

Ed Markey is endorsed by the following organizations: The Boston Globe • Consumer Federation of America • The Sierra Club • National Council of Senior Citizens • Massachusetts Federation of Teachers • Legislative Conference of Older Americans • Council for a Livable World • AFL-CIO • Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus • Hotel and Restaurant Workers • Environmental Action • Massachusetts Building and Construction Trades • International Association of Machinists • Solar Lobby • Massachusetts Teachers Association • Asbestos Workers Union, Local 6 • Service Employees International Union • CPPAX • Medford/Malden This Week • Massachusetts Nurses Association • United Auto Workers •

OUTSTANDING — Maureen Winn in 1975, receiving the "Outstanding Young Leader of Greater Boston" award from the Greater Boston Jaycees, for her work on the handicapped rights and the architectural barriers law. That year was the first time women received the award from the Jaycees.

Maureen Winn at 17, in 1960, as an Arlington High School cheerleader, before her MS was diagnosed.

Maureen Winn: An Indomitable Spirit

Fighting For The Rights Of The Handicapped

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

Maureen Ann O'Connell Winn has the spirit of her ancestors, the kind of pluck that made people seek their parents' blessing, and strike off across the ocean for an unknown struggle and unspoken promise.

She lives an independent life: goes out to hear jazz and blue grass musicians, is active in her church, follows politics with the skill of a practiced observer.

She's bright, articulate, and well-versed in subjects from architecture to poetry to her beloved Celtics. She can wheedle and charm — she can lecture and annoy.

Part of this may be due to the career she's led as a Beacon Hill lobbyist for the last 10 years, responsible for molding almost 30 laws — and getting them passed.

But hardly any of it is the kind of thing most people expect when they meet a woman who must use a wheelchair, and needs others to assist her with some of life's most basic chores.

ABOUT TOWN

Artists Exhibit

Rosalind Lynch is displaying her paintings through October at the Winchester Co-operative Bank in Winchester Center.

A resident of Winchester since 1939, Lynch has been a member of the Studio Guild for 15 years, and is also a member of the Winchester Art Assoc.

She paints in oils, watercolors, and acrylics, and has studied with several artists, most recently with the late King Coffin at the Studio Guild.

Christine Fentross-Loomis has several watercolors on display at the Cambridgeport Bank in Winchester throughout this month. A former Winchester resident, she lives in Woburn and is an active member of the Reading, Cambridge and Winchester Art Assoc. She is gallery director at the Winchester Art Assoc. Gallery at 600 Main st.

Hanlon Honor

Marine Cpl. Daniel G. Hanlon, son of Daniel R. and Priscilla Hanlon of Englewood rd., was recently awarded a Meritorious Mast while serving at Marine Helicopter Air Station New River Jacksonville, N.C.

A Meritorious Mast is official recognition from a Marine's commanding officer for superior individual performance.

Mountain Graduates

Scott Mountain of Highland terr. graduated recently from GTE Sylvania Technical School in Waltham. Mountain completed the computer electronics program in eight months.

While at GTE Sylvania Tech. he completed the five phases of the program that combine theory and practical hands-on training, working towards an entry-level job in the high tech industry.

After graduation, Mountain will work at Astro Dynamics Corp. of Woburn.

For United Way

Denise Desautels of Harvard st. and James Detore of Grove st. will not be working at their regular jobs this fall, but they will be working in a unique United Way program. They also will be helping themselves, their community, and their employer in the process.

Desautels, who is employed by New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Burlington, and Detore, who is employed by IBM in Boston, will serve as consultants during the United Way's campaign, which runs now through Nov. 20. About 100 consultants will help design and implement company and community campaigns for the 1984 fund-raising drive that aims to raise $35,230,000. The funds will support 183 health and human care agencies in 86 eastern Massachusetts communities.

Twomey To Play

Caroline Twomey of Winchester was recently selected to play on the varsity women's field hockey team at Connecticut College in New London.

The field hockey team will play a 12-game schedule against Division III teams in the ECAC, NIAC, and New England Small College Athletic Conference.

An American history major, Twomey is the daughter of John and Dorothea Twomey of Prospect st.

Super Saleswoman

Barbara Hess received a RELO from J.B. Goodwin, president of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, at the group's recent annual conference in New Orleans. Hess, a sales associate for Swanson Associates R.E. Inc., was a national winner in a contest sponsored by the RELO service to recognize sales associates who provide aid to transferees and their families.

Maureen Winn Fights Non-Stop For Handicapped Rights

She's had MS (multiple sclerosis) for more than half her life. It's taken the use of many of her muscles from her, and it's made her legally blind. Her handicap hasn't dampened her spirits a bit, she says — if anything, it may have strengthened her, the way heat and cold tempers steel.

It's also made her value — and fight for — things that most people take for granted, like living in your own home, voting, getting health insurance coverage.

Winn's battles on Beacon Hill for handicapped civil rights have sprung from her own experience — beginning with the poem she read at the preliminary hearings on the state's architectural barrier law 12 years ago.

"Welcome to my world, where architectural barriers abound, where my search for access always results in the long way around," she read from her wheelchair, as news cameras grabbed their evening's story. "We have no lofty dreams of a Camelot or Shangri-la. We just want to be WHERE YOU ARE."

The pictures in the Boston papers and stories on the nightly news launched her career, she says with a broad smile.

"I'd never been to the State House before, and I didn't know they usually have the attention span of a flea at hearings," she says, laughing at her naivete then. "But they stayed and listened to my poem — and then they gave me a standing ovation."

"Who knew I had a lobbyist hidden inside me when I was working as a clerk for insurance companies?" she teases.

Her efforts continue, with this year's efforts to get federal legislation passed to make all polling places for national elections handicapped-accessible by 1985. "It passed in June," she reports delightedly.

She isn't fighting just for herself, she says — although she appreciates the strides she's made. What helps her helps others — and that's why she's effective, Winn argues.

One example, she says, is being able to stay in her one-floor home. "Living independently can be tough, but I wouldn't give it up for the world, even though the people close to me don't believe in it," says the 41-year-old with a laugh. "They'd rather see me safe and warm in a nursing home."

The West Chardon rd. resident has lived in town for 12 years, with her sheepdog Misty — and the aid of her PCAs (personal care attendants.)

She fought for state assistance to pay for PCAs 10 years ago in the State House — one of her first real lobbying efforts.

(Sen.) Jack Backman and (Rep.) Joe DiNucci were holding hearings on setting up the Boston Center for Independent Living. Winn recalls. She was in remission then, and in charge of handicapped students' services for Boston University — and testified on the bill.

"It's kind of neat when you hear about kids who were supposed to be in a nursing home forever, and they get hooked up with BCIL," she says with a satisfied sigh.

She's gotten laws on housing passed — 50 percent of all new units for rent or hire have to be accessible — and another making it unnecessary for handicapped persons to have their absentee ballots notarized. "I had one girl who paid $12 to have it done," she remembers, outraged.

These days, like any top-flight lobbyist (although Winn is unpaid), she commands attention from state legislators, mayors, governors and archbishops.

Winn is not above calling people to task when they've neglected to think of the handicapped — like Boston Garden and city officials who didn't provide promised special seating for the handicapped at the Celtics playoff.

But she's also quick to praise those who pay attention.

"Jack Snedeker, at the MDC, told me he had an idea how to help the handicapped see Esplanade performances, or events like the parade of tall ships," Winn remembers. Snedeker suggested a special section set aside, up front, for special needs viewers — for safety as well as vision. "In crowds like that, the handicapped could be trampled."

She also has high praise for former state Sen. James Kelly, who may have had other shortcomings, Winn says — but was wonderful in getting through several handicapped rights laws, particularly the architectural barriers law.

Her efforts on the architectural barriers law got her put on the MS Board of Directors. "They couldn't ignore me when we got that through," she says with a grin.

Kelly began to send her to conferences around the country on handicapped rights and accessibility, paying her expenses.

She went back to school in 1974, earning her bachelor's degree in two years, while working 20 hours a week running the BU office for handicapped students.

In 1976, with Kelly's blessing and promise of reimbursement, Winn went to a conference in Israel — and ran up $3,500 in bills she paid with borrowed money, only to find when she returned that Kelly, who'd since developed troubles of his own (the MBM construction scandal) couldn't follow through on his promise.

Finally, earlier this year, after a Globe columnist wrote the story of Winn's unexpected debt, state Sen. Richard Kraus organized a fundraiser to reimburse her — and came up with $3,800 to clear up the eight-year-old debt.

(Because she receives federal health and income benefits, Winn is not allowed to have that much in resources; regulations almost made her ineligible for the PCAs who make her life possible. "It's become the Maureen Winn Burial Fund," she says, because that kind of account she may keep.)

She's had dealings with Senate president William Bulger and House Speaker Thomas McGee, and frequent contact with reps and senators from all over the state.

She's been consulted by airlines on ways to make their facilities more accessible, after they read one of her poems describing the agony of not being able to use an airplane restroom on a 15-hour flight.

She's given sensitivity training on handicapped concerns for Boston, state, and MDC police.

JUST A FAN — Maureen Winn met Celtics coach K.C. Jones following the championship rally

Maureen Winn has met many leaders, including Archbishop Bernard Law.

Maureen Winn at home in Winchester.

that makes it a national holiday," she says, with characteristic humor.

"Finally, we asked the doctor to find out what was wrong," she recalls, shaking her head. "He told me I was run down."

"I thought, 'That's possible,' because I was going out with Bob then, and staying out until 3 in the morning," Winn says.

After a few weeks, the symptoms passed — typical of MS, she says — and she graduated with the rest of her class in 1960.

Off to New York to work she went — to earn money to get married. After a year, she moved back here to work for John Hancock Co. as a clerk, and married her high school sweetheart, Bob Winn, in October 1963. (They've been informally separated for eight years. "He's a fine man," she says.)

In the winter of 1962, she'd had another bout — but this time, the doctors were able to diagnose it as MS. But they didn't tell her.

"I had never been told I had MS when we got married," she says. "But by the fall of '64, the numbness and loss of balance was so bad that I felt like I would tip over if I weren't careful."

By the next June, she was hospitalized for more tests, because her symptoms didn't evaporate, as they had in the past — they got worse. "Bob was unemployed at the time — when government contracts run out, so do the jobs — and we didn't have health insurance," she recalls.

"MS had had a strong publicity campaign at the time, and I asked the doctor if that's what I had, because I had 90 percent of their symptoms they listed."

"The doctor finally told me they'd told my husband what I had," she recalls, an expression of pain flitting across her face. "They asked me, 'Didn't he ever tell you?' Bob told me they never told him that."

The news was traumatic for both of them. "It was a crushing blow," she recalls. But they decided to ride it out. "After all, I'd already had it for at least two years, and I wasn't in a wheelchair yet."

Maureen stayed in her job in a Belmont insurance office for three more years. She didn't begin to use a wheelchair until seven years after the doctors told them what she had. She and Bob helped form a couples' support group, ATOMS.

Eventually, they moved from their Arlington apartment to the one-story home in Winchester. "Our apartment had six stairs leading to it," she explains — and her muscles just couldn't respond to stairs anymore.

The Winns separated in early 1976, but, she stresses, there is no bitterness between them. "It's been hard, but I will always remember the good times we shared," she says.

"And the family, the nephews and nieces don't go away."

She stresses the upbeat in her life, the fun she has with friends at the piano bar at the Lenox, her faith, the work she has left to do.

"We need to get more people to do research on MS: Boston, Winnipeg and the Shetland Islands all have the highest incidences, and they are all about the same distance from the equator," she says.

And she wants to educate people on how to deal with MSers. "Don't call us sufferers or victims," she advises. "Another MSer may have said it best: it's a lifetime hang-up. It certainly is a period of constant and irreversible transition."

She's had to make lots of adjustments — give things up, accept hard answers. But, had she any doubts about how she's coping, she's got an expert's word.

"When I went legally blind, I had to have a psychiatric examination, to prove it wasn't emotional — the doctors didn't want to say it was due to MS," she explains.

"After he interviewed me, the psychiatrist told me he thought I was fine," she says, laughing so she can hardly finish the sentence. "He told me, 'If I were you, I'd have taken a gas pipe internally seven years ago.'"

How could you keep a spirit like that down?

Keep Bill Gustus Middlesex County Treasurer

He's gained the experience to do the job right!

He's fought to earn your trust!

• As Executive Assistant to the Middlesex County Commissioners, Bill Gustus stopped irresponsible financial maneuvers in order to save taxpayers' money. He saved $250,000 in health insurance costs for each of the past three years, and prevented the sale of the vacant Third District Courthouse, valued at over $1 million, to a private developer for $175,000. County budgets prepared by Bill Gustus lowered taxes for cities and towns from $23 million in 1981 to $17 million in 1984.

• During his first nine months, Bill Gustus has restored stability and integrity to the office of Middlesex County Treasurer. He has earned nearly a half-million dollars in interest from the investment of county funds, while his predecessor, and chief opponent in this election, earned only slightly more than $5,000 during his first nine months. As Chairman of the Middlesex County Retirement Board, Bill Gustus has upgraded the system's $80 million portfolio with a professional management program.

• Bill Gustus has brought strong character and commitment to public service. He served in the Peace Corps in Malaysia for two years, and is a graduate of Wilmington High School, Wesleyan University and the New England School of Law. Bill Gustus resides in Wilmington with his wife, Terry, and their three children.

Immaculate Conception To Begin Religious Ed Classes Sept. 23rd

Religious education classes for children in the Immaculate Conception Parish, which serves Winchester and Woburn, will begin Sunday, Sept. 23, and Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Assignments of children in grades 1-7 who have been previously enrolled will be mailed to their homes.

Children entering the program for the first time must register in advance. Forms are available in the church vestibule and the rectory.

New students who were not baptized in the Immaculate Conception parish must submit a baptismal certificate to the Religious Education office before opening day.

Office hours are Tuesdays, 10:30 to 2 p.m., and Sundays, 9:30 a.m. to 12 p.m. If there are any questions please contact Faith MacDonald, coordinator, at 729-5110.

Joseph H. Page of Winchester was graduated from Cambridge College with a Master of Education in May. Page is employed by New England Lithograph Co. Inc. in Boston as assistant plant superintendent, and is responsible for job planning/scheduling and job costing.

Hospital Volunteers Hold Fall Orientation Sept. 26

The Friends of Winchester Hospital will be conducting their fall orientation for prospective volunteers on Wednesday, Sept. 26, at 9:30 a.m., and at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital board room.

For additional information about the orientation call the Volunteer Dept. at Winchester Hospital.

ON THEIR WAY — The annual lunch for incoming Dartmouth College freshmen, sponsored by the Dartmouth Alumni Assn. of Eastern Massachusetts, was held recently. Among the 200 students and parents attending the event were Laura Weylman of Harrington rd. and Maryann Driscoll of Thornberry rd.

Instrument Exchange Gets Tuned Up For School Year

The instrument exchange, started by the Friends of the High School Music Dept. several years ago, has been passed on to the Winchester Music Program.

Ginny Laats started the card file to provide a way for people to buy and sell used musical instruments. Sandy Thompson, 48 Samoset rd., now has the file, which includes the names of families interested in selling an instrument, as well as those interested in buying one.

The start of a new school year is often a time when students are starting lessons and need an instrument.

Some have gone off to college and have left one at home that perhaps someone else could enjoy.

Anyone interested in being listed should call Sandy Thompson, or mail the necessary information to her. Families which wish to sell an instrument should include name, phone number, type and make of instrument, condition of the instrument and age, as well as asking price. Families seeking an instrument should include all but the instrument's condition and price, if possible.

Mt. Holyoke Club To Meet Sept. 25

The Mount Holyoke Club of Winchester/Mystic Valley will start the 1984-85 season with a business meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 25, at the home of Jennie Lou Brockelman, 38

Lorena rd. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m., and will cover the calendar of events, membership questionnaire results and fundraising initiatives.

The LaPointes do business the old fashioned way — the family way.

If a customer makes a call to Federal Heating and Engineering Co. of Somerville, there's a good chance they'll end up talking to a member of the LaPointe family of Winchester.

That's because the fuel oil business has been family owned since 1951, something Al, Marj, Tom, Brian and Steve LaPointe are very proud of.

Al LaPointe, president of Federal Heating, says he "never wants customers to become account numbers. I want everyone to feel that they're always dealing with the people who own the business."

Besides Al, there's Marjorie LaPointe, his wife, who's the company's service representative; their son, Brian, who's the sales manager; son Tom is in charge of heating and air conditioning installation; and a third son, Steve, is the office manager and assistant treasurer.

All the LaPointes are lifelong residents of Winchester, and they've been active in sports and civic organizations. Al LaPointe was co-founder of the Cap Baseball League some 20 years ago, and, he's a former president of the Winchester Little League.

Brian LaPointe has also been active in youth baseball for some time now, and coaches a team in the Winchester Youth Soccer League. Tom LaPointe helped run the Winchester Jaycee's Haunted House for many years, a popular attraction in the town.

Al LaPointe says the family is dedicated to providing personal service in their business, and it's something they work at all the time. He points out that, in a time where many fuel oil dealers are being bought out by big companies from other parts of the country, it's rare to find five members of a family running a successful business.

★ Fire

firefighters who chopped through the roof and smashed out windows to get at the blaze.

"I couldn't see my hand in front of my face until they vented the windows and roof," said Winchester firefighter Ed Smith.

"It was like an inferno up there; the attic must be insulated," observed Fire Lt. John Freitas. "If that ever got into the attic, where we thought it was, it would have been all over. Bad as it was, it could have been worse."

All available Winchester equipment — three engines, a ladder truck, the Rescue unit and ambulance — responded to the scene, along with a Medford engine unit.

Units from Stoneham and Woburn also responded on mutual aid, to cover the Winchester firehouses while the firefighters were on the Brooks st. scene.

Skerry said he decided to increase the call to a second alarm almost as soon as he arrived on the scene.

"When we got here, there was only smoke showing," he said. "But as soon as we got the first hose line up, flames starting coming out of the louver above the garage. And then we got around back and saw how much was involved, and I called in the second alarm. It was less than five minutes."

The fire apparently spread along the underside of the attic roof, Skerry said. Damage to the home could have been much worse, but the plaster ceiling and walls of the downstairs kept the blaze from spreading.

"Plaster doesn't burn," Skerry explained. "But when it gets hot, and then gets water poured on it, it crumbles."

Skerry was not ready to pinpoint the cause of the fire, but both homeowner Barbara Roddy and the man who was working on the house, Victor Vigna Sr. of Revere, thought the torch being used to remove old paint from the trim of the house might have set it off.

"Mr. Vigna was working over the garage earlier today, when I was home, burning off the paint," Roddy explained. "We have a very powerful attic fan over the garage area, to bring a breeze through the house. I had that on, and it probably brought the flame through the attic."

Vigna, who is deaf, was upset and seemed to blame himself. "I feel bad, nervous they will yell at me," he wrote.

"I was working to strip off the old paint by putting the torch to the trim," he explained. A small flame caught in the inner woodwork, and he doused it with the garden hose.

"I looked; there was no smoke," Vigna wrote, so he continued his work. "Five or 10 minutes later, there was smoke coming out of the attic fan (on the other side of the house)."

"The fan drew the fire," he explained, making wide, rolling gestures with his hands to demonstrate the flames changing from a small lick to a blaze filling the attic in little time.

"I am stuck where the fire alarm is," he scribbled, and signed that he ran next door to a neighbor's.

Between his signs and the smell of the fire, the neighbor understood, and called the fire department. "They were here in about a minute-and-a-half," she said.

"But it was too late," Vigna scribbled, distressed. "It went so fast from a small fire to..."

Vigna said it was his second day working on the Roddy home. He is self-employed, working to earn a little extra money, and is not insured.

The firefighters were on the scene from 2:22 p.m., when the first alarm came in, until just before 6 p.m.

★ Taxes

property by market value, but we never do business assessments that way," argued chairman Lombardi.

"There are buildings downtown where the owners have spent half a million dollars in the last year, and look at their assessments," Lombardi challenged.

He argued the 115 percent commercial rate would do little or nothing to hurt downtown development. "Find me a lot in Winchester that someone doesn't want to develop — and I'll find you a developer."

"We just accepted another $740,000 grant for the downtown," Lombardi charged. "But will the businesses have to suffer — if you want to call it suffering? No! The neighborhoods will have to take low-income housing so the businesses can have their bricks."

Saraco expressed his pleasure that the board waited on their vote to include him, and recalled the votes of the past years in favor of the 115 percent business tax rate: 4-1 and 3-2.

"I ran for re-election two years ago on the promise that I would hold or lower the taxes for our people living on fixed incomes," Saraco said.

"We already have letters from citizens irate at their water and sewer bills," he added. "Now they're waiting for us to make good on our (Town Meeting) promise that their tax rate would drop."

"These people get a monthly check," Saraco reminded the board. "They read in the paper we're getting more than expected from the lottery; here, we have a chance to maintain the status quo."

"With the 100 percent rate, the commercial owners will get another break, but the homeowners will just pay more taxes," Saraco said. "If taxes go up," Saraco noted, "a business owner can raise prices or restructure their overhead, but a homeowner on a pension can't call and ask for an increase in their pension."

"I say it's wrong (to set a flat rate)," Saraco declared. "And I say they'll remember it on election day. And I'll remind them."

The board's vote Monday night was delayed from Aug. 27 at the request of board members, because Selectman Saraco was out of town. Monday's hearing was a continuation of the required session.

Welch opened the debate with a motion to vote a single, across-the-board tax rate, and the declaration that he is "philosophically opposed to classification; we've never tried the single rate, and I see no reason to discriminate against one group of citizens."

He cited the small dollar difference a 115 percent business rate would mean to most homeowners, and pictured the single rate as another relatively painless shot-in-the-arm for downtown development.

Assessor chairman Sherman Josephson said that his board, which had split 2-1 for a single rate on Aug. 27, now favored the 100-percent rate unanimously.

"If we had votes on this matter — which we don't — that's what we'd recommend," Josephson said.

"We were unanimous, after discussing it again, that in the near term going to the single rate would be of more benefit to the taxpayers, by encouraging a broadening of our commercial base," Josephson told The Star.

"We have about a 9 percent commercial and industrial base now, with a potential for as much as 18 to 20 percent," explained fellow assessor Frank Mahoney. "Without broadening our tax base, two or three years down the road the homeowners will really hurt."

Mahoney agreed with Saraco and Lombardi on one point, however: "The assessment inequities that exist in this town are ridiculous — and are far from being corrected."

Macdonald called the 115 percent rate arbitrary, and backed the single across-the-board rate.

"If, when we first set this rate, we'd discovered the businesses were actually paying 100 percent, instead of 115 percent of the tax burden, would we be raising it now to 115 percent?" Macdonald asked. "I think not."

But Macdonald also endorsed eliminating the discrepancies between home and business assessments.

William McMillan, representing the Chamber of Commerce, told board members the question before them was not whether business properties are assessed properly, but whether the town wants to encourage or discourage business.

"I see a lot of (promotional) packets," McMillan told them. "You're not just competing with neighboring towns for business; you're competing against other states." By setting a higher tax rate for businesses, he warned, "You run the risk of making (business owners) think the grass is greener somewhere else."

O'Connell tried to propose a compromise rate, somewhere between the 115- and 100-percent business tax rate as a phased approach to achieving a single, across-the-board tax rate, but was rebuffed by Welch.

"I see the logic," Welch said. "We've had two years at 115 percent. And I have a good reason to vote for 100 percent."

"But I have no good reason to change it to 110 percent," Welch argued. "I'd rather go with 115 percent again this year, and battle it out next year, than surrender an inch for 110 percent this year."

"There are two seats open on the board next year," agreed Lombardi affably. "We can let the voters decide."

Macdonald said he could support the gradual approach, but given a choice of the 115 percent rate and the 100 percent rate, would choose the single 100 percent level.

The vote, 3-2, was swift. As the board moved on to other items, Saraco commented, "We'll see what the voters say on election day."

Five Democrats, One Republican Vie For County Commissioner Seats

Five Democrats and one Republican are seeking election as Middlesex County commissioners in Tuesday's election. Two four-year terms expire next year.

The Democratic candidates, alphabetically, are: Robert W. Keough of Billerica, incumbent Thomas J. Larkin of Bedford, incumbent Michael E. McLaughlin of Lowell, Albert J. Onessimo of Somerville and Anthony D. Pini of Cambridge.

The Republican on the ballot is Nicholas Polio of Sudbury.

The following information about each has been supplied through press releases:

Keough
He is a former Somerville alderman and Billerica Town Meeting member who teaches in Somerville. Keough's community offices include Somerville Boys and Girls Club, Cambridge-Somerville residence for mentally retarded adults, Somerville City Club, Somerville Teachers Assn., Billerica Youth Soccer, Elks and Knights of Columbus.

He says that Middlesex County needs reform in the areas of representation, noting that three commissioners in a county this size "lends itself to power politics and all that goes with it."

Keough says the county needs reform in precisely listing the duties, responsibilities and qualifications for all elected and appointed officials.

Larkin

He says that county government is more effective and less expensive than it was when he was elected in 1980. Larkin cites as his accomplishments, a reduction in county taxes, the appointment of a county administrator in 1984, appointment of professional managers, opening of East Cambridge jail.

Also, inventory of county property, court action to stop the sale of Third District Court for $175,000, sale of the County Training School in Chelmsford to Wang for $1.2 million and naming of a new county hospital director.

Larkin is a former chairman of the Bedford School Committee. He is a school psychologist with the Boston School Dept. and a part-time teacher at Regis College. He has a master's in public administration from Harvard's Kennedy School of Government.

McLaughlin

He has been a commissioner since 1975 and says he is an advocate of fiscal responsibility. A goal of his current term has been professionalizing county services by classifying and reorganizing the personnel system and having quality supervision.

He says his goal for the next term is to "demonstrate that county government is not only on the path of fiscal responsibility, but is well on its way toward being the most responsible, effective and economical branch of government."

McLaughlin is a former Billerica Selectman and Town Meeting member and served six years in the House of Representatives. (He is executive director of the Somerville Housing Authority.)

Onessimo

He is campaigning on the theme that service to the public must be made the true meaning of public service. Onessimo, who lost by 5 percent of the vote two years ago, says he has never been on a public payroll.

If elected he will turn over his commissioner salary to charities since he is financially independent through real estate investments and retirement benefits.

He charges that Commissioners Larkin and Schmidt conduct illegal secret meetings and that Larkin has used questionable tactics to get signatures and raise funds.

Pini

He ran for Governor's Council in 1982, has been on the Cambridge City Council and School Committee, and worked for verifiable nuclear freeze and dumping of hazardous waste ballot questions. He is a health inspector for Cambridge and active in the Elks, Sons of Italy and Cambridge Boys and Girls Club.

He charges that the county commissioners since July 1, 1983, have filled 150-175 fulltime jobs without advertising positions, filled three Personnel Dept. jobs with non-county residents, violate the open meeting law, show bad judgment on insurance matters, have not provided energy audit assistance to communities, or soil and water testing services available through UMass.

Pini proposes a job training and placement program and an open process for jobs. He says he would lobby government branches for county concerns.

Polio

He is a former Air Force lieutenant colonel and was division planning manager for Raytheon Equipment Division in Wayland. He has been chairman of the Republican Town Committee in Sudbury. He is campaigning on a pledge to streamline county government and fight patronage.

Pini advocates laws which will allow the county to cut the strings which tie it to the legislature. He proposes that commissioners be elected on a non-partisan basis, and by districts.

He says the current County Advisory Board, made up of representatives from the member communities, should serve as a board

Art Assn. Members Are Exhibiting

Three Winchester Art Assn. members are exhibiting their works at the association's gallery through Sept. 20. The show includes photographs, pastels, prints and collages.

Bob Cummings, a graphic artist with The Winchester Star, is showing some of his nature photographs. He is a graduate of the Vesper George School of Art and the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

After graduation Cummings did film strips for Holt, Rinehart and Winston's school educational program through Ealing Films. His photographs have been published in Yankee magazine and the former Sunday Boston Herald. He has exhibited in the Jordan Marsh Show.

Lee Ferrara, an award-winning graphic designer, has been creating collagraph intaglio prints for the past three years. She is a corporation design director. She has her bachelor's degree in fine arts from Mass. College of Art and has studied at various other schools.

Her works have been exhibited at DeCordova Museum, Brockton Museum's Printmaker's Show, the Prudential Center and area shows. She recently completed an assignment for Joyce Chen products involving the design of labels for a new line of Chinese sauces.

Mary Waters Jacobs, a portrait artist who specializes in pastels, is showing pastels which include portraits, scenes and florals. Subjects who sat for her include business and educational leaders.

Jacobs studied at the Vesper George School of Art and the Scott Carbee School of Art. She received the Richard Mitton Memorial Award for best portrait at the annual Jordan Marsh Co. show and the juror's choice awards in the Winchester Art Assn. 1981 special art exhibit and the 1982 anniversary exhibition.

College Club Meets Tues.

The Winchester College Club will hold its first meeting of the season at 12:15 on Tuesday, Sept. 18 at the home of Marie Kennedy, 3 Lakeview terr. Refreshments will be served.

Katherine Alexander, a local resident and executive director of the town Chamber of Commerce, will present an update on the renovations in progress in Winchester center. Mrs. Alexander has been extensively involved in the civic affairs of Winchester.

The Winchester College Club aims to support scholars in local schools and offers adults education programs.

The group offers several special interest groups, including: the antique study group, book exchange, history, literature, art, needlecraft. All these groups meet afternoons. The travel group meets evenings. Members are invited to bring their husbands as guests. New interest groups will be formed if there is sufficient interest.

Storyteller Weaves Her Magic At The Opening Of New Book Store

STORY SALESMANSHIP -- What better way for a bookstore to introduce itself to town, and ensure its future market than to create a love of stories and lore in Winchester youngsters? "Book Ends" owner Mildred Cook brought in local storyteller Sharon Kennedy Silverman to weave her magic tales at the grand opening of her new Winchester terrace shop on Saturday afternoon. The young (and young at heart) in attendance paid close attention to Silverman as she took on the characters in each of her stories, using voice and mime and other actor's technique in her one-woman performance. It remains to be seen if Silverman's Irish and American folk tales will make readers out of her listeners -- but owner Cook hopes to stick around a few years and find out.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

New Grapefruit 'Super Pill' Gives Fast Weight Loss

No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins

The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucosamin'
Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucosamin", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. W14, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard, and Amer. Express OK. (Send card number, expiration date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call toll free 1-(800)-862-6262, ext. W14.

St. Eulalia's Welcomes New Pastoral Visitor

Dorothy Riehm has joined the staff of St. Eulalia Parish as the new pastoral visitor.

Riehm was born and raised in Fargo, North Dakota, spent several years as a member of The Grail, an international Catholic lay movement for women, and received a B.A. degree in English and philosophy from The University of Illinois.

Since coming to the Boston area, she has worked as a staff assistant at the Harvard Divinity School and at Rosie's Place, a shelter for homeless women. Riehm received a master's of social work from the Boston University of Social Work and is completing a master's in theology, with a concentration in pastoral counseling, from the Boston University School of Theology.

Having specialized in individual, couple and family counseling during her social work and theology training, Riehm has had experience as a therapist at the Adult and Family Counseling Clinic of Catholic Charities in Somerville, and has worked on an inpatient psychiatric ward at the Boston VA Hospital and McLean Hospital. She has had particular experience working with the elderly in an outreach ministry to them at St. Ann's Parish in the Fenway, and as a social worker to elderly patients and their families in a hospital setting.

As the parish's pastoral visitor, Riehm will be committing her time to home visits — to the elderly, the sick, those confined to their homes. She will be available for hospital visitations and hopes to be of particular help to those suffering from bereavement or loss.

Riehm will also have office hours at the parish for consulting to individuals and families.

Bereavement Group To Form

For six Friday mornings, beginning at 10 a.m. on Sept. 28, a bereavement group will be conducted by Andrea de Mars, Christine Doherty and Marie Doyle as a service of Hospice Inc. Persons who have lost a loved one and who would appreciate support are welcome.

Experiences will be shared in an atmosphere of caring and trust. The group capacity is 10 and it is recommended that individuals signing up be at least two months from the time of death of their loved one.

Meetings will be held at The Church of Our Redeemer, 6 Meriam st. in Lexington. If you would like to become a member of this group, please contact Marie Doyle at 648-4470.

Phyllis Coglian

Phyllis (Fortunato) Coglian, wife of the late Louis Coglian, died Sept. 8 at Tewksbury Hospital at the age of 80 after a long illness.

Mrs. Coglian had lived in Winchester for 40 years.

She is survived by sons John and Felix of Winchester; sister Laura Rendazzo of Winchester; brothers Louis and Anthony Fortunato of Florida; seven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held from Robert J. Costello Funeral Home yesterday with mass celebrated at Church of St. Mary. Burial was at Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

Robert Welchlin

Robert Gary Welchlin died Sept. 6 after an automobile accident in Manchester, N.H. He was 54.

Mr. Welchlin was a native of Boston where he attended schools. He lived in Winchester for the past 20 years.

He was a driver for Fotomat Corp. and a member of the Somerville Lodge of Elks.

Mr. Welchlin is survived by his wife, Mary T. (Vinal) Welchlin; children Stephen Silva of Baltimore, Gary Welchlin of Winchester, Mrs. Sheila Broome of Rosindale and Linda Welchlin of Florida; and two grandchildren.

He was the brother of John A. Welchlin of Illinois, Mrs. Catherine Carroll of Burlington, Mrs. Edith Ernest of Dorchester, Mrs. Marie Dunne of Holbrook and Mrs. Lorraine Bishop of California.

The funeral was held Monday from Cincinnati Funeral Home in Medford, with funeral mass celebrated at The Mission Church, Roxbury. Burial was at Mt. Benedict's Cemetery.

Thomas Righter

Thomas McNair Righter III of Williamstown, a native of Winchester, died in North Adams Sept. 7 of injuries sustained in an automobile accident. He was 24.

Mr. Righter attended the Lawrenceville School and Shawnee High School in Medford, N.J. He was a carpenter.

Survivors include his wife, Cheryl D. Righter; daughter, Marinda S. Righter; mother, Linda Thompson Righter of Medford Lakes, N.J.; father, Christopher D. Righter of Plainsboro, N.J.; sister, Holly A. Righter of Medford Lakes, N.J.; and grandmothers, Miriam T. Joy of Sarasota, Fla., and Bette Righter of Boston.

Funeral services were held Monday in Williamstown at the Sherman-Burbank Memorial Chapel. Burial was at Eastlawn Cemetery, Williamstown.

Memorial donations may be made to the Marinda Snow Righter Trust.

Christina Reardon

Funeral mass was celebrated last Thursday for Christina W. Reardon, a lifelong resident of Winchester, who died Sept. 2 at New England Memorial Hospital after a long illness. She was 85.

Miss Reardon was born in Winchester. She had been employed as a sales person.

She is survived by a brother and sister, D. Irving Reardon and Mildred B. McLaughlin, both of Winchester, and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery. Robert J. Costello Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

OBITUARIES

Winifred Rutter

A memorial service was held Sunday for Winifred Annetta (Grayston) Rutter, 72, who died unexpectedly at Winchester Hospital on Sept. 6.

Mrs. Rutter was a native of England. She attended the High School of Commerce in Toronto, Mrs. Rutter previously lived in Portland, Maine, and Medford and Springfield before moving to Winchester about 34 years ago.

Her memberships in Winchester included First Congregational Church, Winchester Country Club, Friends of Winchester Hospital and the Women's Republican Club.

Mrs. Rutter was the wife of Frank W. Rutter. Survivors include her daughters, Claire E. Rutter of Winchester and Phyllis L. Ellickson of Los Angeles; sisters M. Annetta Grayston and Mrs. Ella Gibbon, both of Toronto; and grandson, Paul Ellickson of Los Angeles.

The Revs. Walter B. Davis and Oliver Black conducted a memorial service on Sept. 9 at First Congregational Church's Ripley Chapel. Norris Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Heart Fund.

Alvina Bruno

Alvina (Colarusso) Bruno, 79, died Sept. 4 at Winchester Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Bruno had lived in Winchester for 50 years. She grew up in Boston, attending schools there. She was a member of Immaculate Conception Church and a member of its Ladies Sodality for many years.

Mrs. Bruno was the wife of the late Angelo Bruno. She has two children, Dr. Louis A. Bruno, a Winchester dentist, and Marie C. Ferguson of Burlington; five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The funeral was held Saturday from Lane Funeral Home with funeral mass at Immaculate Conception Church. Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be sent to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation in care of David W. Donahue, 4 Alesworth ave.

Albert Whynot

Sixty-year resident Albert L. Whynot died Sept. 4 at Winchester Hospital after a brief illness. He was 87.

Mr. Whynot was a retired carpenter. He was a member and former business agent of Carpenters' Union Local 991.

He is survived by his wife, Elva G. (Joudrey) Whynot; daughter, Marion C. Roderick of Wilmington, and son, Graham A. Whynot of Malden; and three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral service was held last Friday at the Church of the Epiphany, with the Rev. John J. Bishop, assisted by the Rev. Robert Goldsmith, officiating.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Joan M. Della Iacona

Former Winchester resident Joan M. Della Iacona died unexpectedly on Sept. 4 in Philadelphia's Jefferson Hospital after a short illness. She was 66.

Miss Della Iacona had lived in Winchester for 50 years. She was born here and graduated from Winchester High School and nursing school.

A registered nurse, she worked at Winchester Hospital for five years, St. Francis Hospital and the South Shore Hospital for 15 years. She was director of nursing education at South Shore Hospital in Miami, Fla., and a member of the American Nursing Assn.

Miss Della Iacona was the daughter of the late Raffaele and Pasqualina (Latorella) Della Iacona. She was the sister of Mary G. Roberto of Winchester and the late Susan Donato; and aunt of Ralph M. Roberto of Marblehead and Marianne Sullivan of Winchester.

The funeral mass was celebrated Saturday at St. Mary's Church, with burial in Calvary Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Salvatore Migliaccio

Ninety-one-year-old Salvatore Migliaccio of Woburn, formerly of Winchester, died Sept. 8 at Winchester Nursing Home after a long illness.

A native of Italy, he had lived in Winchester for 35 years and Woburn for 40 years.

A laborer, Mr. Migliaccio had been employed at the J. O. Whitten Gelatine Co. for 40 years and with a Newton construction company for 20 years.

He was a member of the South End Italian Club in Woburn and Immaculate Conception Church.

He was the father of Salvatore Migliaccio of West Concord, Yolanda P. Bearden of Winchester, Anna Dinezzi of Lexington, Louise Ervine of West Virginia, Teresa DiPanfilo of Woburn and the late James A. and Albert Migliaccio. He also has six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home yesterday, with funeral mass celebrated at Immaculate Conception Church. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery.

Minuteman Home Care Corp. Plans Annual Meeting

The eighth annual meeting of Minuteman Home Care Corp. (MHCC) will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 2 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Heritage Hall in Lexington.

Alan G. Macdonald Democrat • State Senator

September 13, 1984

Dear Voter:

With your vote in the Democratic Primary on next Tuesday, September 18, I will be your State Senator — working for you to keep your property taxes down, to reduce your state income taxes, and to provide a cleaner, safer environment for the future.

I am a candidate for State Senator because I care about the problems of our communities and the future of our state. In particular, I am concerned about:

The Future of Proposition 2½. I have been endorsed by the Citizens for Limited Taxation and the Massachusetts Taxpayers Committee because I will provide a strong voice in the State Senate to protect the integrity of Proposition 2½. My opponent has sponsored legislation in the Senate to allow higher property taxes. His attempts to undermine Proposition 2½ have been unsuccessful so far, but those same attempts will be made again next year if we do not speak out in this election against higher property taxes.

The Future of the Surcharge on Our State Income Tax. In 1975, we began to pay an extra 7½% on our state income tax to erase a temporary state budget deficit. The state deficit has been gone for years, but the "temporary surcharge" remains. My opponent has voted to continue this surcharge. I will vote for its repeal.

The Future of Air Quality and Water Quality. For generations our communities have suffered from environmental neglect. As a former prosecutor for the Attorney General's Environmental Protection Division, I am familiar with the requirements for effective legislation in the environmental area. I will use that knowledge to help enact laws concerning cleaner air and water.

The Future of Individuals Whose Personal Safety Is Threatened. Throughout our state, many citizens do not feel safe even in their own neighborhoods. As a former Assistant Attorney General and member of the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement, I will put my experience to work in the Senate to help local police departments provide the highest level of personal safety in our communities.

In order for me to provide a strong voice on these issues and others that I have discussed during the campaign, I need your vote in the Democratic Primary. Vote for me on September 18, and we will begin the work!

Sincerely,

John F. Looney, Jr., 19 Perkins Rd., Winchester

Board Members Sought For Social Services Dept.

The Dept. of Social Services invites citizens in the Mystic Valley area, including Arlington and Winchester to become members of its area board. The full area board meets bimonthly and committees meet the alternate months.

Committee members focus on specialized areas of service delivery, including foster care, residential treatment, or day care. The board acts as a liaison between the Dept. of Social Services and the community. It acts as an advocate for good social services in the six towns. It monitors the provision of social services to citizens in the area, and, it assesses the need for new or different social services in the area.

The Dept. of Social Services is responsible for many types of services including:

- protective services and child abuse and neglect;
- alternative living arrangements such as foster homes, group homes and residential placements;
- homemaker services;
- day care services;
- counseling services and
- respite care, information and referral for specific social service needs.

If you have an interest in being a volunteer member of this Area Board, please call Carol Bushe at the Dept. of Social Services 641-1780 or Patsy Kraemer at 646-5880 for further information.

State Senate Debate To Air Tonight On Arlington Cable

Residents still trying to decide who they will select for the Democratic nominee for state Senate in this district next Tuesday have one more chance to look the candidates over tonight on local cable television.

Arlington Cablesystems will air a debate between the candidates for the Democratic nomination for the 4th Middlesex state Senate seat — Alan Macdonald, now a Winchester Selectman, and Sen. Richard Kraus of Arlington, the incumbent — on Channel 3 tonight at 6.

The debate, sponsored by Winchester's "News 19," a volunteer-produced and staffed monthly cable television newsmagazine, was taped during a live broadcast last Friday in Winchester.

The taped version of the debate is being aired in all four communities in the 4th Middlesex district — Arlington, Winchester, Lexington and Woburn.

Kraus and Macdonald responded to a panel of reporters who cover the communities in the 4th Middlesex district. Anne Marie Reidy from The Arlington Advocate and The Winchester Star, Daniel Kennedy from The Daily Times & Chronicle in Woburn, Lauren McFalls from The Lexington Minuteman, and Bob Gallant of "News 19."

Allan Eydien, executive producer and co-anchor of the "News 19" series, was the moderator for the debate.

The results of the primary election Tuesday may determine who will serve as state Senator for the district.

There are no other candidates listed on the November ballot, although Arlington resident Helen Metros is in the midst of court action to have her name placed on the ballot as an independent.

LWV Is In The Market To Register More Voters

The Winchester League of Women Voters (LWV), together with the Town Clerk's office, will hold a special voter registration session on Saturday, Sept. 22, from 9 to 4 at the Purity Supreme parking lot on Main St.

Any Winchester resident who is a United States citizen, and who will be 18 or older by election day, Nov. 6, can register to vote.

Residents who have recently moved to Winchester from another community, or who have changed their names must re-register. Residents who have moved from one Winchester address to another can simply notify the Registrar of Voters — in writing — of the change.

To register, individuals must bring with them identification and proof of residence.

If residents are unable to make use of this one-time special registration day, they may register at the Town Hall any weekday during business hours.

Recipes

If the prospect of gearing up to daily school lunches has you yearning for summer, take heart.

Packing varied and healthful totable lunches is mainly a matter of imagination (80 percent) and preparation (20 percent).

Throwing together a colorful array of neatly boxed and bagged goodies may be quick and easy, but all too frequently there's as much nutrition in the package as in the product.

It's time to get back to the basics.

Nutritionally that means packing lunches that combine a variety of fresh, natural foods.

Practically it means not waiting to the last minute to come up with new ideas. Spend some time thinking about the nutritious foods your child already enjoys and build on them. (Don't be discouraged if a dozen possibilities don't immediately spring to mind, they'll come. No child exists exclusively on bologna, potato chips and snack cakes.)

Make a list and use it as a guide for both shopping and packing.

Most lunches begin with two hunks of bread and something stuck between them. Peanut butter, egg salad, tuna, chicken salad, cheese and ham salad are all traditionals. Vary them with slices of leftover ham, fish, meat loaf and chicken.

When putting your sandwiches together, try some variations on the standard theme. How about substituting bananas for the jelly on the peanut butter sandwich, or raisins, lettuce or alfalfa sprouts?

Team up bacon with mayonnaise, sliced avocado, shredded lettuce and sunflower seeds, or match turkey with avocado dip, Monterey Jack cheese and alfalfa sprouts.

When regular sandwiches begin to pall, serve your child's favorite filling in pita bread, or try something different like a blend of cream cheese and crushed pineapple, diced bananas or peaches between two slices of banana or other quick breads.

Crackers and peanut butter or cheese offer another good variation on the sandwich theme, as do graham crackers spread with fruit-flavored cream cheese.

As an alternative to sandwiches, put together chunks of meat, cheese and fresh fruits on disposable kabobs; fill a wide-mouthed thermos with hot soup, stew, chili or macaroni and cheese; stuff peanut butter between two apple slices, or spread it on celery sticks. You also can use cheese spread, cottage or cream cheese.

For the child who exists solely on nibbling, buy or make your own trail mix out of dried fruits, sunflower seeds, cereal and nuts.

Raisins and sunflower seeds also make excellent accompaniments to a more traditional lunch, as do whole, sliced or diced fresh fruit, dried fruits, carrot and celery sticks, sliced zucchini, cherry tomatoes, olives, pickles, cucumbers, jicama, boiled or deviled eggs, string cheese, snack crackers, beef jerky, snack-size canned peaches or fruit cocktail and nuts.

Send milk or fruit juice in a thermos or pack liquid-proof beverage containers with frozen juice. In cold weather fill the thermos with spiced apple juice, hot chocolate or bouillon.

Vacuum bottles are ideal for keeping foods at the right temperatures. And you can pack ice bags or packaged commercial gel coolants with lunches. You may find that a lunch box is better than a bag since it offers some insulation.

As a general health rule, if food should be kept hot, keep it hot; if it should be kept cold, keep it cold, reports the U.S. Agriculture Department.

The use of mayonnaise is good in helping slow the growth of bacteria in sandwiches and salads. Despite past worries, mayonnaise does not spoil if unrefrigerated. The worst that happens is its flavor will deteriorate.

Peanut Butter Tips

For a change from jelly and marshmallow whip, try sliced gherkin pickles on peanut butter, or mix bacon pieces with the peanut butter.

Cream Cheese Tips

When the crowd gets tired of cream cheese and jelly, give them something new: add olives, chopped ham, dried beef or ground chicken to the cream cheese.

Boston Beans

Use up your leftover baked beans by mashing them and serving them in brown bread sandwiches.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-53102 for further information. 9/13/9/27

STOP GIVING AWAY MONEY

If you opted to rent instead of buying a home ten years ago, you would have made a gross financial mistake. You could have tripled your money. If you are still renting instead of owning, this could make you cry all the way to the landlord with your next rent check.

Are these days gone forever? Not by a long shot. Perhaps home prices will not soar at the same rate as they did in the last ten years during our era of hyper inflation, but most housing experts expect home prices to increase at about 6% per year for the next ten years. If you buy a home for $80,000, it would increase by $4,800 during the first year. The second year it should rise by 6% of the increased figure of $84,800, and so on. This is the beauty of compounding the increasing value of property.

Never look back and say, "Why didn't I buy a home ten years ago when it was cheap?" If you are now a renter and have any thought about buying — don't hesitate. A home is and will be a great investment for the foreseeable future.

'Chad' Mitchell Says:

President

The majority of our used cars have been on Full Maintenance Lease Agreements. They are better maintained than the average private car. We have been in the business of leasing vehicles (Cars and Trucks) for Twenty Seven (27) years. We believe in "Customer Goodwill All-Ways". Check our vehicles and prices before you make a decision to buy. You won't be disappointed — I guarantee it. Twenty Seven years in business is your assurance of our integrity.

Teen Talk

The Teen Talk column welcomes questions for teens, their families and friends about concerns and problems. Questions should be sent to Teen Talk, in care of The Arlington Advocate, P.O. Box 129, Arlington, 02174. Letters need not be signed. All questions will be treated confidentially.

The responses will be formulated under the direction of Patsy Kraemer, director of the Arlington Youth Consultation Center, with the assistance of area counselors, teachers, recreation leaders and clergymen.

Q. I am 16 years old and my parents are divorced. I live with my mother and have never had much communication with her. I want to talk to her more about my private life but how do you go about this with your mother who you never even talk to?

It’s a wonderful experience to be able to talk with a mother about sensitive and private matters. It’s also often very hard to do. Usually this means talking about sensitive feelings and sometimes about sex. Try to pick a time you know would be good — unhassled.

Let your mom know you would like to talk about important things. And try to talk about them in a way that you know won’t upset her so it can be a discussion, not an argument. If you take the risk to open up communications and it doesn’t work, think about using a third person to help you get started — someone you both trust.

Q. I am a 16-year-old boy and always have to put on an act in front of my friends and sometimes this makes me do things I wouldn’t ordinarily want to do. How do I go about changing this and keeping my friends?

It’s really important to have friends and be respected by them. It’s also important to like and respect ourselves. You have to have a lot of guts to say no to your friends or to back down from a challenge.

Picture yourself as a puppet with your friends holding the strings over you. As long as they get to pull the strings and get you to do whatever they suggest, they have the power. I hope you will take the power back.

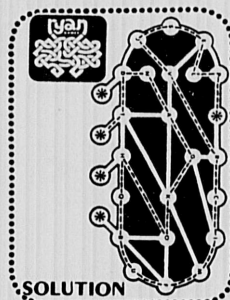

Q. I am 15 years old and I have been seeing this boy for a few months. Recently he started to pressure me into sleeping with him. How should I handle this without losing him?

Is he going with me for me as a person or for my body? It’s a hard question to figure out, but a good starting point is to be honest with yourself first about what you want.

If your answer to yourself is you don’t want to have sex now, then it’s important to listen to yourself and be proud of yourself and don’t. Your boyfriend will respect your decision if he wants “you the person” and will wait - frustrating as it may be - until you decide you are ready to enjoy sex maturely and safely.

Backyard Gardener

The 'Mysteries' Of Compost

By Patrick Denton
Copley News Service

There's always something of a mystical aura to that venerable gardening operation, the creating of compost. Just why that should be so, I don't really know, although I will admit it sometimes takes several attempts before a beginning gardener becomes adept at composting under his particular gardening conditions.

Compost is simply thoroughly decayed vegetative refuse that is transformed into soft and crumbly material so useful in our gardens as fertilizer and as a soil conditioner. Even indoor gardeners can produce it.

A valuable treasure in the garden, compost not only greatly improves the physical properties of a soil, but also adds to it both major nutrients and trace elements necessary for healthy plant growth, reducing a garden's need for additional, purchased fertilizers.

You may think that compost heaps are just for farmers, or home gardeners with large properties. Not so. Even a pocket handkerchief garden, or a balcony garden, can accommodate a compost heap in miniature enclosed within a double plastic bag.

Into the bag can go vegetable peelings, apple cores, tea leaves, coffee grounds — any clean vegetable waste. Avoid any dubious looking or diseased materials. Add a few handfuls of potting or garden soil and perhaps some shredded, dampened sheets of newspaper.

Placed in a warm spot, the materials will break down quickly at this time of year and be ready to use within a month. Turning and shaking the bag gently from time to time will help mix and aerate the decomposing material accelerating the process.

This plastic bag composting method is also a useful one to remember in the fall, when bags of leaves and vegetable waste can be brought into a heated garage or basement to keep finished compost and leaf mold coming along even during winter, when the breaking-down process slows down considerably or stops outdoors.

On a small city lot, compost can also be neatly contained in various kinds of bins, usually three-sided, made of wire, openwork bricks, framed screening or wooden slats.

The ideal is to have three bins, one to contain finished compost that is currently being used, another in the process of decay, the third being the one receiving fresh material for composting.

It's at this time of the year that home gardeners have the most abundant supply of composting materials — small weeds, lawn clippings, spent flower blossoms and vegetable plant parts we don't eat.

Most people also add to their compost heaps all vegetable and fruit trimmings, coffee grounds and tea leaves from the kitchen, though at our place we dig these straight into the garden to avoid flies and odors and for extra-fast breaking down. They usually go into holes dug between the pea rows, and the material is well covered with soil.

Avoid adding to your compost heap any meats, fats or sugars, diseased plant parts or any mature weeds. Do add layers of seaweed or lakeweed, or animal manures if you have access to them, as these hasten the rotting process. As you add vegetative waste to your heap, also add a shovelful or so of garden soil at regular intervals, to introduce the soil organisms that work on the material to break it down.

Soft and shredded materials break down quickly in warm weather. For this reason I try to finish off a heap or two during the summer. When the pile has reached the top of its enclosure, or around 4 feet high in the open, I take a garden fork to it, mixing the material as best as I can. Covered with a layer of soil and a sheet of black plastic, the compost can be ready to use in as little as six weeks.

There are a number of commercial compost activators on the market and it's just a matter of finding one that works well for you.

Cooking Corner

Say Cheese

By Linda Susan Dudley
Copley News Service

According to a Business Trend report, national cheese consumption is increasing 8.5 percent each year and will become a $23 billion market by 1993.

That's a lot of curds and whey. What is cheese, anyway?

A lot of cheese eaters say they love the stuff, but few have much idea how it is made beyond the fact that it all begins with milk. It takes just more than one gallon of milk to produce one pound of cheese.

Cheese is the fresh or matured product obtained by draining the whey after coagulating casein, the major protein in milk. The casein is coagulated by acid from selected microorganisms and by milk-clotting enzymes added to the milk. The resulting curd is cubed, cut, heated, drained and salted.

As for cooking, all cheese dishes should be cooked at a low temperature for a short time. Excessive heat and overcooking cause fat separation, stringing and toughening of the cheese.

Here are some recipes — including several with a Latin American flavor — which feature cheese as a main ingredient.

CHILIES RELLENOS DE ELOTE CON CREMA

- 4 tbsps. butter
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 5 whole cloves
- ¼ tsp. ground cinnamon
- 4 cups corn (kernels from 5 ears or frozen)
- 2 tbsps. salt
- ½ cup crema Mexicana (or sour cream)
- 14 ozs. (1 large pack) queso fresco (or ricotta cheese)
- 6 ozs. (½ pack) queso asadero (or Mozzarella cheese), cut into small pieces
- 1½ cups crema Mexicana (see note below)
- 12 poblano chilies, roasted and peeled
- 3 to 4 ozs. queso Chihuahua or mild cheddar, grated

Melt butter in medium saucepan. Add onion, cloves and cinnamon. Fry over gentle heat until onion is soft but not browned. Remove cloves. Add corn kernels and salt (if using fresh corn, add ½ cup water). Cook over medium heat 10 to 20 minutes depending upon whether fresh or frozen corn is used. Add ½ cup crema Mexicana or sour cream and cook an additional 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat.

In medium bowl, combine queso fresco, queso asadero and ½ cup crema Mexicana. Stir ½ of the corn mixture into the cheese mixture. Mix well and set aside. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Cut a small slit in one side of each chili. To remove seeds and clean, rinse the chilies carefully, leaving the stems intact. Stuff chilies well with corn/cheese mixture. The chilies should be fat but must close where they are slit open. Beat remaining crema Mexicana. Place the chilies in a shallow baking dish side by side. Pour the sauce over the stuffed chilies and sprinkle with grated cheese.

Cover the dish with foil and bake until chilies are heated through and cheese is melted. Serve the chilies on top of remaining corn mixture.

Note: Crema Mexicana is similar to the French creme fraiche. It is thick, rich and slightly soured. Sour cream makes an acceptable substitute.

Assembling chilies may seem like a long, laborious task but you can make the corn mixture and clean the chilies beforehand and refrigerate.

A topic of disagreement among Mexican cooks is whether or not the chilies for this dish should be capeados, that is enveloped in a batter. The rich filling and sauce may be too much for the batter; but some prefer the dish that way.

CHEESE MUSHROOM PIE IN A WOK

- 1½ lbs. mushrooms, thickly sliced (2 qts.)
- ¼ cup butter
- 6 slices bacon
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 1½ cups grated Swiss cheese (6 ozs.)
- 1 tsp. oregano, crumbled
- ¼ tsp. garlic powder
- 3 tbsps. flour
- Pastry for double crust 9-inch pie

Saute mushrooms in butter over high heat for 5 minutes or until tender. Drain mushrooms, reserving ½ cup drippings. Fry bacon until crisp; reserve drippings in pan; drain bacon on paper towels. Saute onion in bacon drippings until soft and golden, about 2 minutes.

Combine mushrooms, reserved mushroom drippings, onion, bacon, cheese, oregano, garlic powder and flour. Roll out half of pastry into 12-inch round. Place in bottom of small metal wok. Large wok may be used, just line bottom of wok with pastry. Turn mushroom mixture into pastry-lined wok.

Roll out remaining pastry into 11-inch round and place over mushrooms. Press pastry edges together. Cut slits in top. Bake in 350-degree oven 40 minutes, or until pastry is browned. Serves 6.

In 1983, the Markey for Congress Committee collected a total of $33,886.00 from 62 Political Action Committees including:

E.F. Hutton-PAC, Bache-PAC, MCI-PAC,
Merrill-Lynch-PAC, MCA-PAC, U.S. Tel.-PAC, Warner Communications-PAC, COMSAT-PAC,
National Cablevision-PAC

These funds were targeted for his presumed 1984 re-election bid.

During his detour in the U.S. Senate race, Ed Markey publicly pledged not to use PAC money.

In dropping back to the congressional campaign, he repeated his "PAC-free" promise. However, the $33,886.00 was not returned.

He now offers two excuses:

- 1) he was only talking about 1984 PAC money, 1983 PAC money is o.k.
- or, 2) he already spent it.

Rep. Markey is missing the point.

As the ranking member of a subcommittee which deals with cable, telephone and financial issues, Rep. Markey should return this money to avoid the perception—when E.F. Hutton talks, Ed Markey listens.

Sam Rotondi is the other kind. He keeps his word.

Sam Rotondi, during his six years in the State Senate, promised to be responsive to the needs of his constituents.

He kept that promise.

He promised to get property tax relief for the elderly.

The Elderly Property Tax Abatement was adjusted to counter the effects of 100% evaluation.

He promised to reform an antiquated and inefficient state personnel system.

The first Civil Service Reform since the turn of the century was enacted.

He promised to get legal protections for victims of rape.

The Rape Shield Law now protects them from harassment in court.

He promised to reform the state Pension System.

Pension funds are now invested in home mortgages and development in Massachusetts rather than the Sunbelt states.

And, women are now given fair treatment in the pension benefit structure.

He promised to make elected officials publicly accountable.

The State Ethics Commission now exists.

In his campaign for Congress, Sam Rotondi has promised to bring jobs to the district and to fight

- for curbing high health care costs
- for restoring higher education loans
- for assistance to the small business community
- and for a safe and healthy environment.

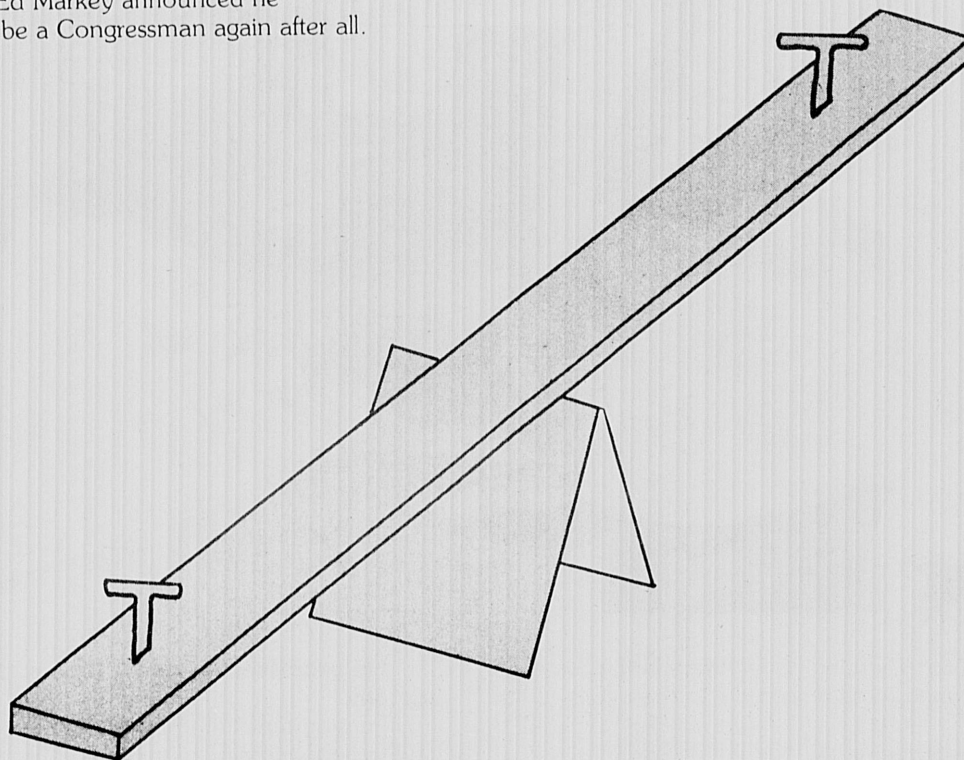

You know he'll keep his promises.

One kind has made indecision his political trademark.

January 14, 1984 - Ed Markey announced he wanted to be a United States Senator.

May 1, 1984 - Ed Markey announced he did not want to be a United States Senator anymore.

May 8, 1984 - Ed Markey announced he wanted to be a Congressman again after all.

It's been a confusing year for Ed Markey. But no less confusing for the voters of the Seventh District who are trying to make sense of his voting record. He's voted on both sides of the abortion issue... he changed his position on tuition tax credits... he made a U-turn on bussing... he switched on school prayer...

What's the issue? Political columnist Peter Lucas suggests, "if character is the issue—Markey's character—then Ed, who has waffled on major issues in the past, has a problem."*

* Boston Herald 5/6/84

Sam Rotondi is the other kind.

He never quits a tough fight.

Criminals have rights. They are read to them.
What about their victims?

As a State Senator, Sam Rotondi authored the Bill of Rights for Victims of Crime because he thought it was time to balance the scales. He fought hard to insure victims the legal considerations and protection they deserved. In Massachusetts, victim rights is now more than a good idea . . . it's law.

Sam Rotondi showed similar determination when he fought for state funds to assist Woburn in testing and neutralizing a devastating hazardous waste site. The people of Woburn didn't give up and neither would Sam.

When Ed Markey retreated from his fight for U.S. Senate and returned to take back "his safe seat" in Congress, some people told Sam it would be a tough fight. They said the incumbent would bring in Hollywood starlets and congressional pals to win votes. They said the incumbent would use PAC money and mailings at taxpayers' expense to keep his job. They were right.

But, Sam Rotondi wouldn't quit the race. Because Sam believes this Congressional seat is not the property of one person. It belongs to the people of the 7th district to fill as they choose. Sam intends to earn their votes.

One kind thinks talking about only one issue is enough.

"In spite of his nuclear obsession — or because of it — [Markey] has not been a distinguished congressman."

— Lowell Sun, Editorial, 5/3/84

Sam Rotondi is the other kind.

He shares people's concern for all the issues affecting our daily lives.

Sam Rotondi will strongly support the nuclear freeze and nuclear arms control. But, Sam knows that alone will not make him a truly effective Congressman and that is what he wants to be.

During this campaign, Sam has been to the 17 communities in this district. He's talked to hundreds of people: on front porches, on street corners, at factory gates and around kitchen tables. He's listened to older citizens worried about high health care costs . . . couples priced out of owning their first home by high interest rates . . . small business owners concerned about keeping a stable economic climate . . . workers left unemployed by a company's relocation . . . Sam thinks these are important issues, too.

As a Congressman, Sam Rotondi will keep in touch with the people he represents. His local offices won't be window dressing — they'll play a vital role in bringing services to the district.

Sam Rotondi is the kind of Congressman we need.

He has the experience.

Sam Rotondi is a 38 year old lawyer and a former three term State Senator who earned a reputation for being a hardworking, common sense and effective legislator.

Sam was Director of Legislation for the Massachusetts Bar Association before his election to the State Senate in 1976.

Sam Rotondi was born in Stoneham and grew up in Winchester where he attended the public schools. He is a graduate of Brown University and Suffolk University Law School.

Sam was named "Legislator of the Year" in 1978 by the Massachusetts Municipal Association for his efforts to make government more cost efficient, and again in 1980 by the Mass. Bar Association for his work on court reform.

Sam is a family man and resides in Winchester with his wife, Dee, and their four children: Lauren, Jeffrey, Sarah and Anne.

He'll fight to cut the budget deficit.

In Congress, Sam Rotondi will work to bring down the $180 Billion deficit that now threatens to send interest rates skyrocketing again. He will support necessary budget cuts to do this, but he thinks we should start cutting the waste and duplication in the defense department before cutting essential social services.

Sam will, also, give his strong support to restructuring the federal tax system to insure fair treatment for middle income families.

He'll be a Congressman who works for people.

The Malden Evening News expressed it best in its editorial endorsement of Sam Rotondi:

"Clearly from where we stand, Sam Rotondi deserves the congressional nomination as a citizen whose service in public life in the State Senate has been exceptional, and who, as a family man well aware of people's needs and problems, can respond to them as can only a man and a candidate who is one of them."

Sam, his wife, Dee and their four children.

Rotondi, Macdonald Primary Bids Fail

In Defeat, Rotondi Says He Taught Markey A Lesson

By LIZ WILLEN

A group of young Sam Rotondi supporters were hanging around outside the Knights of Columbus Hall on Main st. Tuesday night, anxiously awaiting the results of the primary.

"Is it close?" they asked Paul Davis, one of Rotondi's campaign workers. Davis shook his head dejectedly.

Incumbent Cong. Edward Markey's approximately 15 percent victory over Rotondi was a difficult one for Rotondi's supporters to swallow.

And although Rotondi himself later told a television reporter that he was "not at all devastated by the loss," he was clearly shaken and subdued when he conceded the race to Markey at about 10:15 p.m.

For almost five minutes, Rotondi's supporters cheered and screamed, not giving him a chance to say a single word. When Rotondi finally did speak, there were tears in his eyes.

"You never lose with people like you!" he shouted, regaining his characteristic energy and composure.

"We love you, Sam!" interrupted a husky, tearful voice.

"And I love you all, too!" Rotondi replied. "Remember, I didn't ask for this fight," he said, a reference to Markey's last-minute decision to drop out of the race for Sen. Paul Tsongas' seat and seek re-election instead.

"This was an important race for Ed as well," Rotondi added. "Perhaps he will start realizing that there is a district here. I think we taught Ed a good lesson."

According to Ward, the heaviest voting occurred after 5 p.m., apparently after people had returned home from work. Between 5 p.m. and

Local Voter Turnout Is Better Than State Average

By JILL M. HIGGINS

Less than half of Winchester's 12,695 registered voters went to the polls on Tuesday, but Town Clerk Carolyn Ward still thinks the turnout was decent for a primary.

A total of 6,124 votes were cast by local registered voters, with 185 of those being cast via absentee ballots. A total of 5,939 were cast at the four polling sites in town.

"Locally, it's better than average for a primary without the governor's race on the ballot. Usually, the bigger the race, the bigger the turnout," said Ward.

By 10 a.m., three hours after the polls opened locally, only 1,334 votes had been cast. By 3 p.m., 3,026 voters had passed through the polls.

According to Ward, the heaviest voting occurred after 5 p.m., apparently after people had returned home from work. Between 5 p.m. and when the polls closed at 8 p.m., 1,928 votes were cast.

Winchester Democrats gave 2,613 votes to local lawyer Samuel Rotondi who unsuccessfully fought to beat out incumbent Cong. Edward J. Markey of Malden. Rotondi conceded to Markey in an emotional speech at the Winchester Knights of Columbus Hall. (See related story.)

Rotondi reportedly said after the speech that while he may have underestimated the strength of his opponent, he still had given Markey a good run for his money.

On the Republican ticket, local voters followed the trend to upset Elliott Richardson and supported Raymond Shamie for the U.S. Republican Senate nomination. Winchester pledged 993 votes to Shamie, while only 805 went to Richardson.

In the Democratic Senate race, local voters backed U.S. Rep. James

M. Shannon with 1,896 votes, but challenger Lt. Gov. John F. Kerry still stole the overall victory. Kerry received 1,503 votes here.

Although state Senate candidate Alan G. Macdonald lost to opponent incumbent Richard A. Kraus (see related story), local residents favored him by a total of 2,740 votes to 1,310 cast for Kraus.

In the battle for two Middlesex County Commissioner seats, local Democratic voters favored incumbents Thomas J. Larkin of Bedford and Michael E. McLaughlin of Lowell. The two snuffed out efforts by three challengers in the Democratic camp. Sudbury Republican Nicholas S. Polio was the only name on that ballot. Larkin garnered 1,516 votes, while McLaughlin received 1,436. Polio received 1,294.

Citing The Freeze, Markey Claims Victory Of Issues

By LIZ WILLEN

By 8 on Tuesday night, there was already a big party going on at the Ramada Hotel in Woburn. Although polls all over the 7th Congressional District were just closing, Cong. Ed Markey's supporters were already predicting a big victory.

And they were right.

Markey defeated former State Sen. Sam Rotondi of Winchester by about a 15 percent margin as of midday Wednesday. Markey's campaign headquarters said he lost only Winchester, Everett and Wilmington, and carried six of the 17 district communities by better than 60 percent.

And Markey's supporters, who jammed into the Ramada to chomp on pretzels and potato chips and purchase cocktails at the four well-stocked bars, were quietly celebrating while they waited for more than two hours for Markey's victory speech.

Most were content to sip, nibble and chat. Several began dancing to the popular tunes played by a loud rock band in a corner of the banquet room. But all were united in their cheers when Markey bounded into the room at 10:45 p.m., grinning widely and giving a "thumbs up" gesture.

"ED-IE, ED-IE," they shouted.

"Thank you, thank you," Markey shouted back. However, the crowd was unrelentless.

"ED-IE, ED-IE," they continued. Finally, Markey broke in.

Winchester Only Town To Support Macdonald's Bid

By Catherine Walters

Voters in three of the four state Senate communities overwhelmingly voted to return incumbent Richard Kraus to his seat.

In Tuesday's primary, Kraus beat his opponent, Alan Macdonald, in all 21 of Arlington's precincts, won in Lexington and Woburn, and only lost in Winchester. Macdonald's hometown.

The total vote in the four towns shows Kraus with 16,395 votes and Macdonald 10,439.

The big margin surprised even Kraus and his supporters who were expecting a closer race. "It's very reassuring," said Kraus, who won his first race in 1982 by just 161 votes.

On Tuesday at Kraus' headquarters in Arlington Heights, supporters cheered as each Arlington precinct came in. In all cases, Kraus' lead over Macdonald was substantial, starting with Precinct 2 which came in at 9:43 p.m. with 377 votes for Kraus and 85 for Macdonald.

"I didn't expect to win every precinct (in Arlington) and I didn't expect to win by that margin," said Kraus, celebrating with campaign workers.

The last Arlington precinct, 18, came into the Town Clerk's office at 11:37 and, again, was typical of the other precincts giving 429 votes to Kraus and 148 to Macdonald. The total Arlington vote was 7,283 for Kraus and 2,905 for Macdonald.

Lexington went big for Kraus also, giving him 4,006 votes to Macdonald's 1494. "In Lexington, every single precinct improved its vote over last time," Kraus told supporters. "And lots of people thought that was the best we'd see."

The biggest question mark for Kraus during the campaign was Woburn where he had received few votes two years ago. The race was closer there, but still a victory for Kraus with 3,796 votes. Macdonald received 3,300.

"The margin of victory in Woburn is bigger than the total number of votes last time around," said Kraus. "The effort in Woburn was great. A lot of people were involved up there."

Kraus, who lost by 1,430 votes in Winchester, said he didn't expect to win in Winchester and during the campaign spent little money and resources there. The total was 1,310 for Kraus and 2,740 for Macdonald.

Workshop Offered For People With Aging Relatives

A series of six workshops for family members of the elderly is being planned by Mystic Valley Mental Health Center.

The workshop series is designed to help people with aging relatives in understanding the process of aging, how it affects family life, and how to deal with the special problems created by aging parents, spouses or other relatives. It will cover issues such as alternatives to nursing homes, managing depression in aging relatives and coping with changing family relationships.

Dates scheduled for the workshop are Thursday, Oct. 11, 18, and 25, and Thursday, Nov. 1, 8 and 15 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Church of Our Redeemer, 6 Meriam st., Lexington.

Workshop registration should be made by Oct. 4, by mailing name, address and phone number to Mystic Valley MHC, 441 Main st., Woburn. For information about the workshop or the fees call Muriel Ellman, director of the workshop, at Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn.

Pre-Retirement Program Set For Hospital

Men and women and their spouses who are planning to retire in the next several years are invited to attend a four-week pre-retirement program which the personnel and education departments of Winchester Hospital are sponsoring.

The meetings will be held in the seminar room of the hospital, and will run from 7 to 9 on Wednesday evenings, Oct. 3, 10, 17 and 24. It is free of charge, and refreshments will be served.

Information will be provided for people who are about to assume a new role, that of a retired person who faces new financial arrangements, new insurance plans, or possibly different housing facilities.

Representatives from the Social Security Administration, Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Mutual of America Life Insurance will be speakers at some meetings.

The program will also include representatives from Winchester Hospital's social services and nutrition departments.

A physician will address the group on medical concerns, and the chairman of the education committee of the Winchester Seniors Association will be a guest speaker.

An attorney will discuss taxes, wills, trusts and legal matters which are of interest to the retired person.

Interact Flea Market Sept. 29

Winchester Interact will sponsor its big annual flea market on Saturday, Sept. 29. This year's offerings include crafts, bric-a-brac and a whole lot more. To reserve a table please contact either Pat Malcomb 729-2885 or Linda McLellen 729-4385.

Reading Program Offered Oct. 1

A movement which has gained nationwide attention and acclaim will be introduced to residents on Oct. 1. "Reading Is Fundamental" addresses the issue of motivating and encouraging young people to discover the life-long rewards available to them through reading.

Founded in Washington, D.C., in 1966 by the late Mrs. Robert S. McNamara, "Reading Is Fundamental Inc." has worked at the grassroots level helping to develop projects that give children a chance to choose - and to keep as their own - books that interest them. These projects involve parents, educators, librarians, and business and civic leaders.

Such projects provide year-round reading activities for young people of pre-school age through high school. The organization is counted as an honored partner of the Smithsonian Institution for the diffusion of knowledge. It maintains offices at the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C.

Anne Richardson, who is the chairman of the board, will describe this approach to getting books to children and children into books. In an interview published recently in the monthly newsletter for parents by Dr. Lee Salk, Professor of Clinical Psychology and Pediatrics at Cornell Medical Center, Anne Richardson stated, "Nothing demands a child's active participation like reading. Books help a child learn to conceptualize and to reason." "Reading Is Fundamental" began as a "modest experiment" in one city. Today there is nothing small - and nothing unambitious - about the program. It now operates in over 9000 locations, and involves nearly 100,000 volunteers.

Mrs. Richardson will speak at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Philip Woodward at 13 Sheffield rd. Refreshments will be served and the meeting will be open to the public.

The committee, whose efforts make possible this unique opportunity, is composed of Mrs. William Fuller, Dr. Martha Grenzback, Mrs. Warren Haley, Mrs. Lane McGovern, Mrs. John Nevins, Jan Pavliska, Mrs. Alan Rodgers, and Mrs. Philip Woodward all of Winchester, and Mrs. H. Dunster Howe of Belmont, and Mrs. George Morey of Lexington.

Anne Richardson, in private life, is Mrs. Elliot Richardson.

Town Counsel Appointed Special D.A. In Suits Against USA Today By Towns

Town Counsel Douglas A. Randall has been appointed Special Assistant District Attorney to represent the commonwealth in municipal suits against the national newspaper USA Today.

According to a memo to Randall from District Attorney Scott Harshbarger, Randall will represent the commonwealth in the pending jury-of-six session in Lowell that involves Winchester.

For about one year, the town has been trying to force the newspaper to pull its news vending machines off local streets. The town has argued that the news boxes were installed without the proper permits and that they violate town bylaws.

Pretrial arguments in the town's case were heard by Judge John Murphy on Friday at Lowell District Court. According to Randall, more pretrial reports are due there on Monday.

Depending on Judge Murphy's decision, the case would then be heard by a six-member jury, possibly within several weeks.

Earlier this summer, Woburn District Court Judge Louis Gonnella found USA Today guilty of several violations and assessed $7,902 in fines against newspaper publisher Gannett Satellite Network Inc.

Immediately after that ruling, Gannett appealed the case. The town agreed to keep the five racks on the streets until litigation in the case is ended. The stands have been subjected to some minor vandalism lately, including the tacking of posters on top of them.

Town prosecutor Andrew Crawford declined to speculate on what the judge may decide after Monday's hearings, saying he "wouldn't like to pre-judge a judge." Crawford did verify, however, that the jury trial could be the next step in the case.

Downtown Renovation Snagged

By Jill M. Higgins

It seems a case of dollars and dilemmas.

Should the town allocate $30,000 to hire an architect now, or wait until officials hear more about stipulations that could snag downtown renovations?

After much discussion, Selectmen on Monday agreed to stall awarding the designing job until members meet with state officials in Boston today.

At issue is a regulation ordering the town to present architectural designs to the state by Oct. 15. According to Selectmen, the problem lies in meeting state rules while allowing architects enough time to come up with the plans.

Two weeks ago, the town was notified that it could receive up to $740,000 for town improvements through an Economic Development Grant. However, the state also stipulated that town proposals for low- and moderate-income housing must be received before Winchester could be considered eligible.

The money would be used for brick sidewalks and other renovations along north Main St. and in the Abernethy River areas.

Town officials have expressed confidence that the downtown grant is not in jeopardy. Officials are expected to meet today with Carol Ford of the state's Community Affairs office to discuss plans to present housing proposals.

On Monday night, residents are expected to air their views on the subject at a joint meeting of the Selectmen, Housing Authority and Planning Board. The 7:30 p.m. meeting is scheduled to be held at Town Hall. This week the board received a petition from residents opposed to acceptance of the grant.

In other action this week Selectmen:

- Granted permission to the Chamber of Commerce for its annual fall Haunted House event. The house at Wedge Pond Beach will be open for tours from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Oct. 25 through Oct. 31. The event was formerly held at Camp Joy, but that structure was destroyed by fire last year.

- Heard a report by the Town Treasurer and Tax Collector about the procedures used for excise and other tax collections.

- Agreed to allow Continental Cablevision to air Monday night Selectmen's meetings live from Town Hall. The board will also allow the cable firm to use a temporary computer hookup at its Winchester site.

- Were informed of a potential hazard at Cross St. Resident John Walsh told the board that a truck turnaround area near the bridge is being blocked off, which could pose a problem for drivers who are unaware of that change.

- Tabled discussion on naming a new Acting Town Manager.

- Tabled discussion on allowing right turns on red lights at Bacon St.

- Accepted articles for the fall Town Meeting warrant and voted to close the warrant, pending any further articles to be received by Monday.

POLICE LOG

Wednesday, Sept. 12

Winchester police joined Medford officers in arresting four juveniles in a stolen car. The car, leased by a Melrose man from a Newton firm, and stolen in Melrose, was spotted in Winchester at 11:34 a.m.

A chase began on Main st., and went into Medford on several residential streets before the two males and two females were stopped.

Thursday, Sept. 13

Police responded to a call that a 7-year-old bicyclist was knocked off his bike on Yale st. at 11 a.m. by a black curly-haired man in a white station wagon with wooden sides and a Mondale sign on the roof.

Sunday, Sept. 16

Two youths from North Reading and Woburn were due in court yesterday on charges of attempted larceny of hub caps at Bossi's Service Center, Swanton st. They were arrested shortly before 10 p.m.

Monday, Sept. 17

A house on South Border rd. was broken into between 7 and 9 p.m. The owner reported that three rooms were ransacked. Clothing and papers were strewn about. It was not known at the time if anything was stolen.

Tuesday, Sept. 18

A small brush fire was reported at Johnson and Bigelow sts. at 12:09 p.m.

A Cambridge bicyclist was treated at Winchester Hospital for a bump on the head after her bike and a car operated by a Washington st. woman collided at Webster and Washington sts. at 8:15 p.m.

The car driver was cited for failure to use care when turning.

The theft of a $175 bike during the previous two weeks from Winchester Swim Club was reported.

By CAROL E. MAHONEY

Winchester's continually declining school enrollment, averaging 5 to 7 percent a year, appears to be leveling off, according to officials.

A total of 3,148 students attend public school classes, a drop of 3 percent from last year's enrollment figures. The figures were announced last week at the School Board's first meeting of the season.

'We don't know if this is a trend, but it is against our projections,' said School Supt. Dr. Charles L. Mitsakos. In his report to the School Committee, Mitsakos said officials are planning an analysis to determine the possibility of a trend.

Mitsakos attributed the change in part to a 10 percent student increase in grade 9 (301 against a projected 271) and a 20 percent increase in kindergarten registration (170 against 143 estimated). Systemwide totals from opening week are: elementary, 1,418; junior high, 520; and senior high, 1,210.

The elementary breakdown included: Ambrose, 253; Lincoln, 404; Lynch, 229; Muraco, 249; and Vinson-Owens, 225.

Several School Committee members reviewed staffing with Mitsakos and voiced concern about overcrowding in elementary schools.

Committee member William

Jervy pointed out that the fourth grade at Muraco has 34 pupils and the fifth grade at the school has 29.

Committee Chairman Michael Ronayne said that he had 'a real problem' with kindergarten class sizes being 28 at Vinson-Owens and 29 at Lynch. 'I have had several calls concerning kindergarten levels,' he said.

Mitsakos said he had received calls about classroom sizes at the Lynch School. However, no parents attended the Schoolboard meeting. Member, Cathy Alexander observed that previous opening fall meetings have been better attended.

Citing a 31-student second grade at Ambrose, Ronayne said that 'this triggers a reaction about the number of students associated with one teacher. We have a long way to go on this one real problem with class sizes.'

The assignment of teachers and aides is based on a recently revised formula that aims for 22 pupils per teacher for lower grades and 24 students per teacher for grades four to six. Even though the formula was followed, said Mitsakos, some disproportionate 'bulges' or 'sore thumbs' appeared in class sizes.

Principals Richard Young of Muraco and Andrew Allen of Lynch, suggested that the Schoolboard consider evaluating the program of split classes to achieve lower per pupil ratio.

Committee member Dr. Roger A. Bauman called the formula 'equitable,' but he warned against schools 'vying with each other for teachers.'

He urged a cap on class size and supported the principal's flexibility in staffing and pupil grouping. 'I would not support additional staffing unless there was a strong recommendation from Dr. Mitsakos,' Bauman said.

The Superintendent is expected to forward his recommendations to the School Committee, including suggestions for teacher aides.

Assistant Principal

In other school news, Karen M. Koon was unanimously elected assistant principal at Winchester High School. She replaces Evander French Jr., principal at McCall Junior High. A head teacher at Andover High School, she has served as supervisor for the Palatine School District in Illinois.

An accomplished artist, she also is a part-time associate professor at the Massachusetts College of Art. She is the first woman to serve in a principal/assistant principal role at the secondary level in the 135-year history of Winchester public schools, according to Mitsakos. She was chosen from a field of 40 candidates. Before joining the committee members in filling this position, member Cathy Alexander went on record with a statement that 'I was not in favor of filling this position at this time.' She said that two assistant principals are a bit rich in this day and age.

She suggested waiting to fill the spot until the administrative reorganization plan is in place in early November. Ronayne agreed with Alexander. 'I might have preferred discussing filling this position before planning to fill it.'

Miscellaneous

In other schoolboard news, Supt. Mitsakos reported transportation problems on opening day. Mitsakos said, 'In reducing buses by one-third we may have cut ourselves too tight.'

There were delays between St. Mary's and other delays in arrival times for the six buses, he said. No other major problems were reported in opening day, he said.

The major repairs to fire-damaged Ambrose School are 'essentially complete,' according to Mitsakos. He reported that the 5000-volume library had been saved. 'The library is in very good shape.'

He commended the custodial staff and Dept. of Public Works for their assistance in the school following two arson fires this summer.

In other business, Mitsakos noted that the roof at Lincoln School was nearly completed, ground work and painting at the high school is done and a word processing laboratory for sophomores was installed at the high school.

A keyboard instruction area also was installed at McCall Junior High. Computers, approved by voters at Town Meeting last spring, have been delivered and installed at each school.

Personnel Action

The School Committee also ratified appointments made during the summer, including the establishment of a learning disabilities class at McCall Junior High. The board also approved a leave of absence until Dec. 21 for Shirley Mulvaney, New teachers and their class appointments include: Leslie Howell, high school foreign languages; Wilbur J. Johnson Jr., high school English; JoAnne Donlon, special education at McCall; and Carol Romboli, Vinson-Owens.

Instructional aides appointed include: Ellen Gaiero, Susanne Mahoney, Constance Maney, Patricia Shinopoulos, Patricia Adreani, Kathleen Ford and Margaret Gagnon.

The committee also accepted proposed revision in job descriptions and classifications of secretarial and clerical staff at the Administrative Center.

Florence Legris, president of the School Secretaries' Assoc., asked for a systematic re-evaluation of all secretarial positions in the system.

Why we closed one of America's finest restaurants.

For years, Dertads was a small, continental restaurant serving fine cuisine to a small, continental group of diners.

The outstanding food and impeccable service earned Dertads a coveted 3-star rating and a national reputation. And also earned it more customers than it was ever intended to accommodate.

So we're closing it.

And opening—Brandywine. A more spacious, elegant restaurant with a fresh approach to continental cooking. A menu you can explore visit after visit. And the same standard of excellence you may have come to expect from us.

Why the change in name? You wouldn't change the ingredients of your favorite recipe and call it by its former name, would you? Of course not.

Now that we've opened your eyes to why we closed our old restaurant, come visit us at our new restaurant, Brandywine.

Brandywine
The best of everything.

Workshop Offered By Rec. Dept. On Wed. Afternoons

It's January in September this month at the Winchester Drama Workshop as the Recreation Dept. offers a series for grades 4 to 6 usually held in the winter months. Third graders may join the group which starts Sept. 26 if space is available.

This group experience aims for "Whole Brain Education," the theme of the unique Tarrytown seminar attended by leader Paulett Taggart in July. The keynote address by Jan Houston calling for tuning the human instrument nearer to the superior Stradivarius violin instead of the mediocre plastic fiddle was borne out by a cross section of the world's most innovative educators.

The Winchester Drama Workshop strives to supplement traditional Left Brain cognitive learning with Right Brain intuitive stimulation. Yoga exercises stretch, relax and tone the body and nervous system; focus on the five senses brings awareness of human potential; mime and movement facilitate organic communication; theater games educate spontaneity; and finally, improvised scenes give form to feeling.

The workshop will meet 10 Wednesday afternoons from 3:15 to 5:15 in the Social Studies Area of the High School, second floor, front. A culminating demonstration is tentatively set for Thursday evening, Dec. 6.

Other leaders will be Auliya Westcott, experienced in dance and movement, and junior assistant John Segota, who played the resourceful butler in McCall's recent production of "The Man Who Came To Dinner."

Registration for this and other programs takes place with Stephen D'Onofrio at the Recreation Office located at McCall Jr. High School near the auditorium door. Because the Drama Workshop is partly financed by the EnKa Society and the Rotary Club, the user fee is minimal with tuition assistance available to individuals indicating a need.

For further information contact Paulett Taggart, Winchester Drama Workshop, 17 Ridgfield rd., 729-6669.

Noted Author Of Young Adult Books To Speak At Library Oct. 3

Robert Cormier, noted author and journalist, will speak in the Meeting Room of the Winchester Public Library on Wednesday, Oct. 3, at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

Cormier is best known for his suspenseful, hard-hitting novels for young adults. They include: "The Chocolate War" (1974), which deals with peer pressure and the abuses of power; "I Am the Cheese" (1977), which depicts governmental invasion of an individual's privacy; "After the First Death" (1979), which involves terrorism and power and its abuses; and "The Bumblebee Flies Anyway" (1983), which deals with medical ethics in an experimental hospital.

He has also published a collection of short stories, "Eight Plus One" (1980), and is at work on a sequel to "The Chocolate War," tentatively titled "In the Darkness."

Cormier's books relate especially to a young adult teenage audience. Teenagers respond to the essential honesty of his novels because of their uncompromising examination of teenage fear and confusion. His sensitive, youthful protagonists often undergo hardship, but their actions in the face of impossible circumstances are life-affirming and heroic.

In the 1960s, Cormier wrote three novels for an adult audience. They are "Now and at the Hour" (1960), "A Little Raw on Monday Mornings" (1963), and "Take Me Where the Good Times Are" (1965).

His short stories and articles have been published in McCall's, Redbook, the Saturday Evening Post, and Woman's Day. In the 1970s, he wrote a warm, family-life column, "1177 Main Street," for the St. Anthony Messenger.

As a teenager, Cormier's sole ambition was to be a writer. A newspaper reporter and columnist for 31 years, he worked as a reporter at The Worcester Telegram and Gazette from 1948 to 1955.

In 1955, he joined the staff of the Fitchburg-Leominster Sentinel & Enterprise where he was a reporter, wire editor, and freelance writer until 1973. In that year, he left his successful journalistic career to write full time.

His many awards include New York Times Outstanding Book of the Year Awards for "The Chocolate War" (1974), "I Am the Cheese" (1977), and "After the First Death" (1979).

He also received the American Library Assn. Best Books for Young Adults Award in 1974 for "The Chocolate War." In 1959 and 1973, he received the top prize for news writing of the Associated Press of New England.

The 1983 movie "I Am the Cheese," based on his novel, premiered in his hometown of Leominster, last year. It stars Robert MacNaughton (of ET fame), Hope Lange, and Robert Wagner.

Cormier enjoys speaking with young people about his books and giving them an idea of what a writer's life is like. Everyone is encouraged to take advantage of the opportunity to meet this popular contemporary author.

Winchester Trails Opens The Fall Season

Winchester Trails is beginning the fall season with three walks in the Winchester woodlands to train volunteers to lead field trips for elementary school children.

After the walks, slides by Sally Wund, a photographer and naturalist, will be shown to help the volunteers identify the plants seen on the trails.

On Monday, Sept. 24, guides will meet at the Girl Scout Cabin on South Border rd. to walk the Long Pond Trail. On Wednesday, Sept. 26, guides will meet at Cox rd. and Johnson rd. for the Smith Pond walk.

On Thursday, Sept. 27, guides will start at Cox rd. and High st. extension for the Locke Farm walk. All walks will begin at 9 a.m. and last about two hours. The rain date is Friday, Sept. 28.

Slides will be shown after the walks at Betty Vanderbilt's, 332 Highland ave., on Monday and at Jean Smith's 27 Mayflower rd., on Wednesday.

On these walks, volunteers will study the plants and animals living in the woods, fields and ponds and will learn strategies to encourage the children to discover and apply concepts taught in the science classrooms.

New volunteers, experienced guides and any interested residents are welcome. For more information call Betty Vanderbilt or Eva Arnott.

Girls Scouts Down The Field To Break Ground

The Reading Council for Girls and the Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council are holding groundbreaking ceremonies for Camp Rice Moody in Reading on Sept. 22 at 1 p.m.

Located on Rice rd. off Forest st., the camp is owned by the Reading Council for Girls and is operated by Patriots' Trail. Camp Rice Moody is being reconstructed as a year-round outdoor program center. The original camp building was destroyed by fire in 1981. The cost to rebuild the center is $225,000. This money was raised through the sale of 4.85 acres of land adjacent to the campsite.

When completed in the spring of 1985, the facility will serve Girl Scouts from 65 cities and town in the metropolitan Boston area and provide day camp for girls from Arlington, Winchester and area communities. For the past three years, girls from these areas have attended day camp in Waltham.

The design features include an entry foyer that functions as a reception and program space year-round. The main assembly hall will seat 150 people for meetings and meals. In addition, this area can be divided into four spaces which can be used for training, program activities and sleeping space for 60 girls overnight.

Also contained in the building are showers, dressing areas and a large kitchen. The entire building is handicapped accessible and a live-in caretaker will be on the premises year round.

CSA Committee Plans An Active Fall

Although the Winchester Community Schools Assn (CSA) Enrichment Committee was started more than 10 years ago its goals essentially remain the same...to act as a resource and exchange of ideas committee in planning Enrichment programs according to the needs of individual schools.

The Enrichment Committee is comprised of the enrichment coordinators from all of Winchester's schools. As well as networking locally, the enrichment committee networks with enrichment administrators in 50 other suburbs through the West Suburban Creative Arts Council.

This affiliation creates opportunities to preview enrichment programs in various towns, to share information about Arts grants and to block book programs with other towns to obtain multiple performance discounts.

During October, which has been designated as Handicapped Month, Muraco, Lynch, Ambrose, Bartlett and Lincoln Schools will host "See What I'm Saying," a hands-on sign language workshop.

The students will participate by learning how to sign words, phrases and sentences and will end the program by singing and signing a familiar song.

On Sunday, Oct. 28, the Enrichment Committee will sponsor a fundraising community performance of "Dracula, a Transylvanian Puppet Show," performed by the Bennington Puppets. This program is partially funded by a grant from the EnKa Society.

In November, the elementary schools will be seeing "Dance Works," a contemporary dance program which focuses on dance as an art form and a sport. This program is partially funded by a grant from the Institute for the Arts which represents funds from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

Diane Munini, the chairperson of the Enrichment Committee, is assisted by Kris Dodson who is also the enrichment coordinator for Lynch School.

The following people are Enrichment Coordinators for their schools:

Winchester High, Sylvia Cortina; McCall Junior High, Judy Bush, who also coordinates enrichment with Laura Beth Foster at Vinson-Owen School; Lincoln School, Marge Harvey and Pat Byrne; Ambrose School, Marti Hood and Carolyn Vernaglia; Muraco School, Jane D'Entremont; Bartlett School, Kathy Kassner and St. Mary's School, Jim Moritz.

Enrichment programs are planned to satisfy town-wide and individual school curriculum goals and are funded through PTO donations, fundraisers and local and state Arts grants.

Wellesley Club Previews Annual Fall Show Recently

Baritone Frederick Fairfield Jr. dazzled Winchester Wellesley Club members with a rousing performance of songs from "Oklahoma!" at a recent wine and cheese party. The party, hosted by Grace Chase at her home on Lawson rd., previewed the club's benefit performance by the singing group The Sounds of Music to be held Oct. 17.

The Sounds of Music, a trio which consists of Fairfield, soprano Diane Caldwell, and accompanist Patricia Reynolds, performs musical revues throughout the Boston area and Cape Cod. They recently completed a long engagement at the Warren Tavern in Charlestown and also perform regularly at the Garden Court Dining Room of the Sheraton-Mansfield.

The Wellesley Club benefit will start with a musical revue, complete with costumes and some dialogue, of Rodgers and Hammerstein songs from such shows as "Carousel," "Oklahoma!," and "The Sound of Music." This will be followed by a salad bar luncheon.

The club's traditional fall presentation will be held at the Parish of the Epiphany, Hadley Hall. Proceeds will benefit the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and Wellesley College. Tickets are available from club members or from Celena Bradlee of Lorena rd.

This house pulls its electricity out of thin air.

This is Boston Edison's new IMPACT 2000 House—a living laboratory of energy innovation.

Here, photovoltaic solar panels may generate 40%-50% of the future homeowners' electricity needs, while solar water panels will provide 80% (based on a family of four) of the hot water needs.

A Sun Shower:
Water flows through a series of solar collectors, absorbing heat directly from the sun. It is then stored in hot water tanks, until it's time for a sun shower.

Solar Electricity:
Photovoltaic cells, made of crystal silicon, convert sunlight directly into electricity. This technology has already been used to power NASA satellites.

We've also incorporated a host of other energy technologies into the design of the House. Technologies that will help each of us save and produce more energy in the future.

That's why Boston Edison built the IMPACT 2000 House in the first place. We want to generate the information that will help us all lessen our dependence on foreign oil and use energy more wisely.

Information is power. And we want you to have all you need.

A Lot Of History — And The Future — Punch Wrapped Up In Our Christening Dress

By TERRY MAROTTA

One of the most remarkable things I remember seeing during my first trip to Europe last year was a garment - a kind of dress worn by the great King Louis IX of France in the 1200s.

It seemed so remarkable to me not just because of its great antiquity, but because it was an article of clothing, one of the most intimate possessions of a man about whom the world knows quite a lot, considering how long ago it was that he lived here. He wore it next to his skin, gave it form with the bulk of his bone and muscle, inhabited it, you might say, with his living spirit.

Circumstances in my own life have reminded me lately that we have such an article of clothing in our family as well, though not so ancient as one as this shift worn by the French saint and regent.

Ours is a christening dress, whose miniature parts were envisioned, cut out and assembled in the 1860s by my great-grandmother, Katherine. She stitched this little dress as a woman in her 20s, a dozen years after migrating here from Ireland and mourning still the ones she had left behind, a young girl especially, her best friend at the time of the move.

This great-grandmother of mine brought 10 children into the world, in what seems to us now to be alarmingly rapid succession. Only five grew up: the twins Thomas and Theresa died shortly after birth; William died at a year; Katy's faint flame was extinguished at 13 when some boys dressed up at Halloween and appeared in her window as ghosts — they called it heart failure; and John succumbed to consumption as an 18-year-old.

They wore this dress that I hold in my lap now. They were born and wore it, each one in his turn. My grandmother wore it too, when she came along. She was named for that special friend that her mother refused to forget back in Limerick.

My grandmother was named for her, and my mother named the same and I the same and my daughter after me — we are all named the same. And we all wore this dress, each in her turn, as babies with bracelets of fat upon our boneless wrists.

Thirty people in our family have worn the dress as infants, and my own final baby wore it last Saturday.

It looks like 30 babies have worn it. The fabric is beginning to thin across the chest, and the cuffs have frayed and pulled away. In some places it seems to be disintegrating spontaneously, having lost the battle finally to the insidious damp, to the purifying fire of the sun that burns all things clean in the end. It carries the stitch-marks of a dozen patient needles across its narrow breadth.

Our baby wore it last Saturday, with its skirts extending down twice as far as his feet did. He wore the dress with its little slip, and he peeked over his mother's shoulder at the world as the old words were recited and the water laved gently upon the tender brow.

It was asked of God that He bless this baby. He pedaled his little feet and punched himself in the eye. It was asked of us gathered that we sustain him and instruct him in God's ways. He gurgled, and grinned ecstatically at his grandma.

The magic took, I think, all the same: a late shaft of incomparable September sunlight bathed him its glow. And we all felt something larger than ourselves in the room.

Perhaps it was the spirit of the woman who made that dress for her first baby, in all hope and joy and expectation. Perhaps it was Katherine's spirit after all.

It was a lovely ceremony in any case. When it was over, we laid the dress away again, wrapped and padded in breathing cotton, fleshed out as much as possible against the wounding thorn of hangers and gravity.

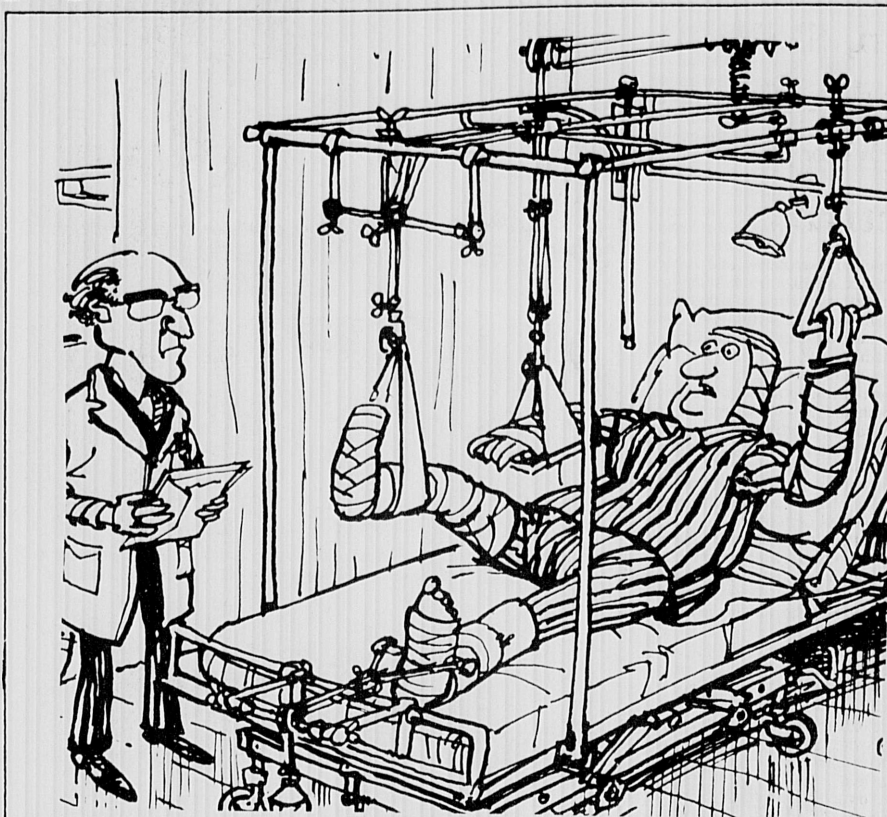

I have a friend who is an expert on the subject of antique textiles. Hers was one of the dozen patient needles plied upon its cloth. She tells me that its days are numbered.

It we are very lucky, she says, and if we treat it just so, the dress may last until the time that our children have babies. There are no guarantees on this score, however.

But there are no guarantees on any scores, as far as I have been able to tell in this life.

It's enough that the dress has lasted this long. It's a wonder to us, document and testimony both to things past describing.

To us, at least, it's worth as much as the garment of any saint or regent. As much, did I say? It's worth more.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

The House and Senate are still meeting in informal session. Formal sessions and roll calls are expected to resume Oct. 1.

During the last few months, there has been renewed interest in the idea of limiting legislative sessions to six months. This year, several legislators filed House Bill 2365 proposing a constitutional amendment to limit the length of legislative sessions to six months. The bill provides that the session begin the first Wednesday in January and end on or before the day before the first Wednesday in July.

It allows the governor or a majority of the members of each branch to call the legislature into special session when necessary. In addition, it stipulates that at the end of the regular session, all matters on which legislative action has not been completed shall be considered rejected.

The bill received an adverse report from the Judiciary Committee. In order to be brought up for consideration at the 1984 Constitutional Convention, supporters in either the House or the Senate had until May 9 to make a motion to place the proposal on the convention's agenda. A majority vote by either branch would have brought the matter before the convention.

Supporters did not make the motion and therefore the bill is effectively dead for the current session. Sponsors say they plan to refile the bill in 1985 and make a serious effort to have it considered by the convention.

During the hearing before the Judiciary Committee on the proposal, supporters, including former and present lawmakers, said the proposal would encourage more people from a wider variety of backgrounds to run for the House and Senate and make the legislature more accountable. They claimed "citizen-legislators" would be a reality and that those elected would still have a reasonable amount of time to devote to other jobs.

Opponents questioned how much impact the limitation would actually have on the diversity of candidates. They pointed out that since the legislature serves two-year terms, anyone who would get a leave of absence to serve six months two years in a row, could also likely get a straight two-year leave.

The debate continues today and is likely to intensify as consideration of the bill in early 1985 gets closer. Sponsors point out that the now common practice of the General Court remaining in session 12 months is a recent phenomenon which goes hand in hand with the assumption that the job of a legislator should be a full-time one.

Many supporters dispute that assumption and say part-time "citizen legislators" was the idea of the founding fathers. They claim many legislators have lost daily contact with the people in their communities and urge the legislature to ensure representatives and senators are working for their constituents and not for the state government.

Opponents say an $8 billion budget and the increasing complexity of the state's laws require full-time legislators and a year round session. They also note that legislators not only act on the budget and proposed laws, but perform important constituent work for their district's residents all year round to help citizens through the maze of government bureaucracy.

Supporters respond with the fact that each legislator now has at least one full-time aide who could handle the constituent work. Some supporters even propose a cut in the current salaries of legislators, noting most could supplement their income with another job during the rest of the year if six month sessions became a reality.

Another key argument of supporters is that there is a danger of mischief when the legislature remains in session all year, particularly when lawmakers are safe from the voters' wrath following a September primary or November election. They point to the so-called "feeding frenzy" after the 1982 election when dozens of bills were passed and millions of dollars were spent in the wee hours of the morning.

Noting that some 30 other states have some kind of limitation of their sessions, supporters point out that although the House was in session 12 months in 1983, it worked only a total of 48 eight-hour days. Opponents say that figure is distorted and point to the hundreds of hours legislators put into committee hearings, meetings, and constituent work.

Sponsors say they just did not have the votes to put the proposal on the Constitutional Convention agenda this year, but feel that things are beginning to change and that they will have a better chance next year. They also have not ruled out going the route of an initiative petition to collect signatures in support of the proposed amendment as the first step toward getting it on the ballot in the future.

A motion to put a proposal calling for a six-month legislative session on the Constitutional Convention agenda came to a roll call vote in the House in 1982.

SIX MONTHS (H 4545) — House 111-35 refused to place on the 1982 agenda an amendment limiting the legislative session to six months. It is similar to the one proposed this year. The motion would have placed the matter on the agenda of the ConCon for consideration by a joint session of the House and Senate.

A "Yea" vote is for placing it on the agenda. A "Nay" vote is against placing it on the agenda.

A motion to put a seven-month session on the agenda sparked a roll call vote in the Senate the same year. The Senate motion also included placing two other amendments on the agenda.

Kraus was not yet senator.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New Arts Resources Are Listed

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Last spring a resource list of teachers and professionals in the arts in Winchester was compiled and placed on file at The Winchester Public Library.

Since September is a time for planning lessons and other activities, I would like to mention that six new names have recently been added to the list in the areas of art, drama, music and writing.

A brochure entitled "The Arts in Winchester," which describes organizations and other community resources in art, dance, drama and music, is also available at the library. The publications were funded by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council.

As the compiler of the brochure and resource list, I welcome suggestions and additions at any time, and hope that these listings will be useful to the community.

Sincerely,
Corie Nichols

Defend Town's Open Space

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing to respond to the recent article on the acceptance of the $740,000 state grant for the extension of the downtown beautification project.

Can it be true that "the town" has promised to give up its few green spaces in exchange for some more bricks and lights? I don't recall being asked for my opinion on this matter, but here it is anyway.

I value the little bit of open land that is still left in town and I feel that it is part of what gives this town its unique character. I can see no greater purpose for the remaining open town land than to be preserved for public use.

Residents, please come to the Selectmen's meeting at 8 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 24, to find out for yourself and to be heard.

Sincerely,
Ann Hathaway
Dennis C. Merritt

Show Consideration For Neighbors

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Winchester has a by-law that prevents the parking of recreational vehicles in the front area of one's home. Another by-law forbids political signs on houses and lawns.

There is also a ban on unregistered cars remaining on residential property. Carports are not allowed. Strict rules govern setbacks of buildings from lot lines. Frontage requirements are specified.

I'm sure that if I were to start hanging my laundry on my front lawn, the town fathers would find some way to put a stop to it — fast.

With all these and similar safeguards to keep up the appearance of Winchester, why is it so difficult to prevent one person from leaving a partially boarded-up wreck of a house, an eyesore surrounded by staging and piles of dirt, with unused cars in the yard, for years and years?

The homeowners in the neighborhood of 41-43 Water St. have tried in every normal way to get some relief from this disgrace.

We live in fear of a conflagration that will endanger us all, but town officials tell us there is nothing more they can do to force an individual to show some consideration for his neighbors.

Our only recourse now appears to be filing for a tax abatement, since our property values are being ruined.

Selectmen Vote Inequitable Tax Rate

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I read with interest the article in last week's papers on how businesses and homeowners in Winchester will pay the same tax rate. The more I read the more I couldn't believe that something like this had been voted by the selectmen.

It appeared that all previous planning of an equitable tax rate between homeowners and local businesses was "thrown to the wind." Quoted statements by Selectman Michael Saraco and Mark Lombardi showed the injustice of the 3 to 2 vote on this important tax matter — which didn't have sufficient publicity for the public to appear and speak against the proposal.

Should the vote of one selectman set a town's tax rate?

The Season's Over But Memories, Lessons Linger On

Girls Softball Program Focuses On Fun, Skills And Lifelong Athletic Activity

By Malcolm Campbell

Imagine a ballgame. It's the bottom of the sixth with two outs and a runner in scoring position on second. The game has been scoreless since both teams exchanged a couple of runs in the first inning.

Now the pitcher is in trouble. With the go-ahead run on second, the pitcher is facing a batter who has successfully hit in two out of three trips to the plate.

The batter takes a few practice swings to shake out the jitters and steps up to the plate. Casting a quick glance at the third-base coach, the batter sees the sign to swing away. Feet planted and elbows cocked, the batter concentrates on the pitcher.

The pitcher checks the runner on second and looks to the shortstop who is playing deep to try to keep the ball in the infield. The pitcher faces the plate, winds, and releases a gracefully arching pitch.

The batter knows this is the pitch, steps, swings, and knocks a looping line-drive into the gap in left-center. The leftfielder, charging the ball, takes it on one hop and hurls it toward home as the runner is rounding third.

The throw comes in wide of the plate and the runner scores standing up, breaking the tie, and winning the game.

Winning the game? But it was only the sixth inning.

The game was won in the sixth inning because it wasn't a contest between the Sox and the Yanks; it wasn't even a baseball game. It was softball game — a girls' softball game.

Softball is one of the most popular recreational summer sports among both men and women. Millions of adults play in amateur leagues throughout the country. There are usually long waiting lists of new members for each team. Some leagues take their softball very seriously while others prefer to simply have fun playing the game.

Winchester Girls Softball adopts the philosophy that winning isn't the be-all and end-all of the game. Instead league organizers place greater emphasis on enjoyment of the game and the camaraderie of a team sport.

One Girls Softball founder and administrator, Helan Pottak, asks, "What happened to fun? The world should not end just because a team doesn't come in first."

Pottak says that the most important goal of Girls Softball is helping the girls feel good about themselves. She hopes the girls gain a sense of self confidence in their ability while also picking up a good image of adults.

Yet Pottak notes that the leagues are only as good as the coaches. She feels that a danger of coaching exists if egos get involved when the coaches bring their needs to the field. But Pottak says that the leagues have never come up against that problem. Both she and fellow softball organizer Susan Taylor commend the coaches for making the program so successful.

Most of the coaches are men who, as Pottak says, have spent so much time with their sons that they desire to devote some attention to their daughters. She says she would like to see more women get involved but as many haven't played the game they don't come forward.

In keeping with the philosophy of fun, the American Softball Assn. rules have been eased a bit by league organizers. For instance, there is no stealing of bases and in the junior and intermediate leagues (grades 3 to 4 and 5 to 6 respectively) the batting order can be gone through only once each inning.

Moreover, there are no try-outs. Each girl who wants to play can. Accordingly, every girl must play at least three innings of the six-inning games and no one bats twice before everyone bats once.

Taylor says that league organizers try to balance each team so no one team has a monopoly on ability. She feels this is the biggest loophole in the system because there is no perfect system for rating the players according to ability. Inevitably, there are some teams which are simply better than the others.

Fun notwithstanding, Taylor wants to begin upgrading the competitive level of each league to bring them more in line with the intensity of high school softball. Taylor feels this step is necessary because the Girls Softball acts as a feeder system into the high school softball team. Taylor would like to prepare the girls for the greater competition and pressure of high school softball.

Taylor admits that it is difficult to get more girls interested in playing with a greater degree of competition. "Sometimes they're more interested in brushing their hair than playing the game," Taylor quips. "Some play just because their friends are there. But I guess it's the age group" which explains their indifference.

Regardless of the level of competition, there would not have been any competition if Pottak, Taylor, and Anne Moore had ignored the Winchester Recreation Dept.'s decision to eliminate softball from its list of sports programs three years ago.

As a result of budget constraints and a lack of personnel, the Rec.

Dept. decided to cut softball. The decision came two weeks before the season was to begin, raising the ire of these three softball fans.

"Originally I was upset that a girls' program was getting dropped," says Pottak. "It is a good sport and the girls deserved a chance to play."

Taylor concurs with Pottak and adds that when the girls get to high school and college they play softball, not baseball.

In the two weeks following the Rec. Dept. decision, Pottak, Taylor and Moore put together three leagues consisting of 16 teams for 115 girls. Today Girls Softball serves 250 girls.

Recently, the Girls Softball program has fallen under the aegis of Youth Baseball. Taylor commends William Morton, former president of Youth Baseball, for being instrumental in incorporating softball into the well-established Youth Baseball.

Taylor feels that bringing the two organizations together will ensure the longevity of Girls Softball. "This way we're confident that 10 years from now it will keep going," says Taylor. "As long as the boys are playing baseball, the girls will be playing softball. And that will probably be for a long time."

Judging by the number of adults who play softball, whether on an occasional weekend or on league teams, softball is everything a sport should be. And Winchester has reason to feel fortunate for having a group of residents who understand just that.

Town Tennis Tournament Sees Many New Champions

Only Singles Champ Diane Intravia Repeats

The annual Winchester town tennis tournament concluded last weekend with some very exciting tennis. Play was forced indoors Saturday due to the remnants of hurricane Diana. The soggy weather did not dampen the spirits of the players, however, and some fine matches ensued.

The two mixed doubles matches where Mary Golden and Terry Fuller defeated Pinky and Al Samoiloff, and Judy and Gordon Nicholson beat Diane Intravia and Steve Brosnan were particularly exciting. Also, Joan Byrne's 3 set victory over a plucky Patty Lavin and Carmen Elio's win over Ron Salter were a great delight for the spectators. Sean Herlihy's injury in a soccer match prevented what might have been a great match with Jim Willing, but he gamely tried anyway. Luckily, Sunday saw the return of the sun so play was able to resume on the outdoor courts.

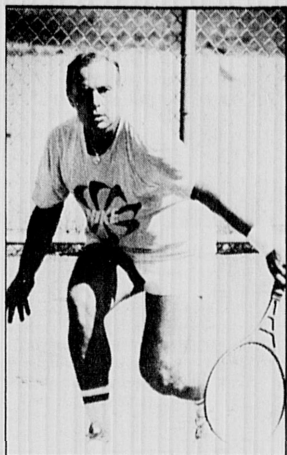

New champions were crowned in every event except the women's singles, where triple champ Diane Intravia took time off from her freshman studies at Tufts to defeat Joan Byrne in 3 tough sets. This was one of the best matches of the tournament — see-sawing many times.

Byrne was more successful in women's doubles, where she teamed with Mary Golden to oust Ann Ferry and Pinky Samoiloff. Joan and Mary had been bridesmaids the past 2 years, so it was a particularly enjoyable win for them.

Mary was one of three people to win two events, as she and Terry Fuller combined to win the mixed doubles title over newcomers Judy and Gordon Nicholson. This match was decided in the third set, when Bob Horne lost to Carmen Elio in the men's over 45 singles.

Carmen Elio beat Bob Horne for the men's over 45 singles title.

Katherine Dunn gives Lou Desmarteaux the trophy for winning the men's single division in the town tennis tournament finals Sunday.

Golden and Fuller raced to a 5-0 lead and barely hung on for the win. Terry, who would run through the fence to get a point (he actually did once playing volleyball) continually retrieved seemingly lost points and turned them into winners. Coupled with Mary's consistency, they were a strong team.

The Nicholsons are to be commended for their fine showing the first time out, and will certainly be heard from in the future.

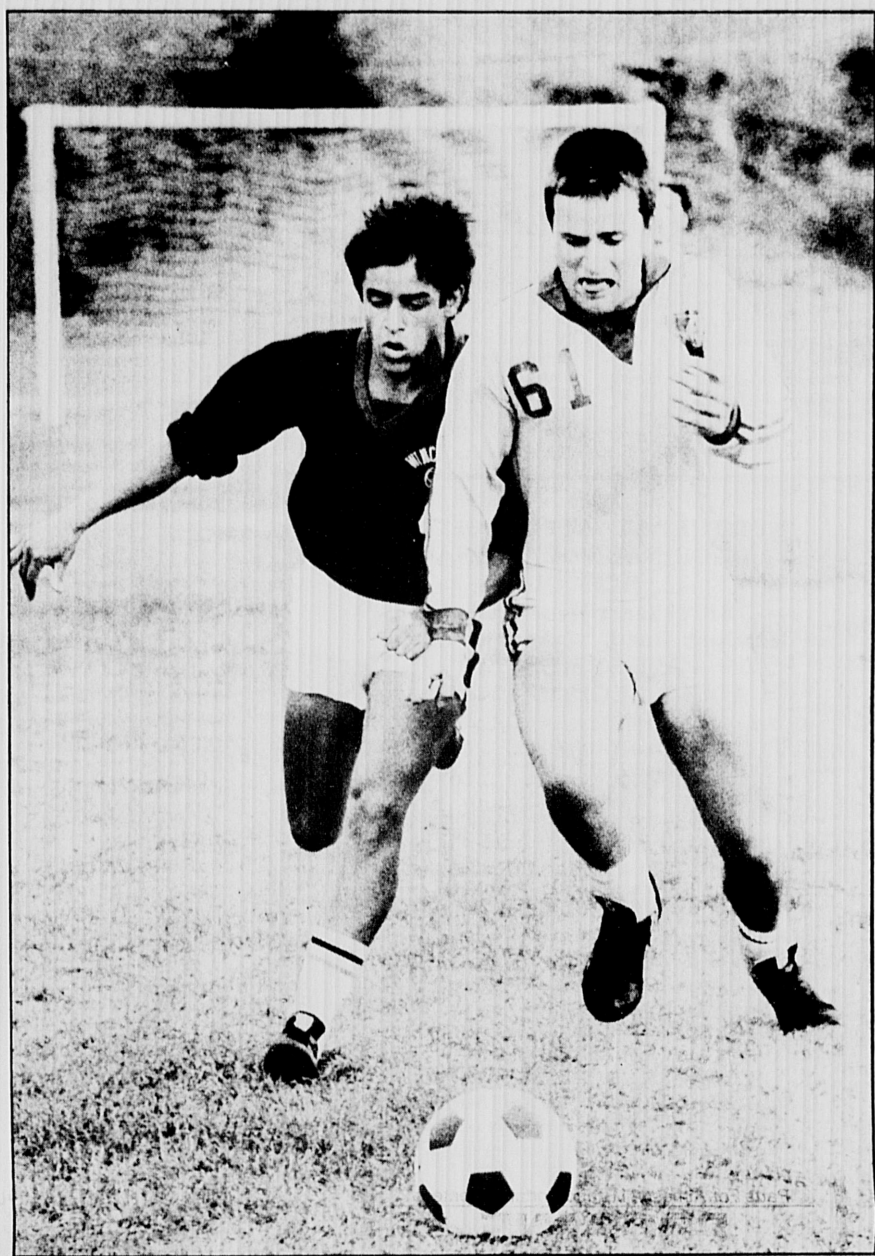

On the men's side, another newcomer to town, Lou Desmarteaux won both the singles and the doubles. Lou won handily over Jim Willing in the finals. This was Jim's initial try at the singles title, and he just never got his game on track. Lou's backhand slice and powerful overhead kept Jim under constant pressure. The tennis Lou played in this tournament was a great pleasure to watch and gave the other players something to aim for in the future. His addiction to junk food (a direct quote from his daughter Lauren,) didn't seem to slow him down at all, as he coasted through a very tough draw.

In the doubles, Lou and Carmen Elio staved off a determined bid by Bob Horne Sr. and Bob Horne Jr. 6-4, 7-5. This match was punctuated by crisp volleying and hard hitting. The Horne's strategy of hitting almost everything at Elio almost worked, but the cagy veteran lifted his game at the appropriate times to preserve the victory.

Bob Jr. showed some great tennis in his match and looks like a great prospect for future town tournaments. His father is probably still dreaming of a missed overhead late in the second set that might have turned the match around, but it was just not Bob's day. He's had many good ones in the past and will probably have more in the future, but it sure was a tough one.

Carmen must have discovered the fountain of youth this year. In addition to his doubles triumph, he came from behind in both the semifinals and the finals to win the Senior's championship. He beat Bob Horne Sr. in the finals in an endurance contest which featured good ball placement. Carmen's 2 wins, and a new daughter, indicate that he can still come through, on the court or off.

As usual, the many spectators in attendance enjoyed the excellent play. This tournament is one of the many things that make Winchester such a great town.

Sachems Play Well But Still Bow To The Lexington, 1-0

By Paul Ferullo

What does the boys' soccer team have to do to win? They outplayed arch-rivals Lexington and ended up on the short end as they lost 1-0.

The Sachems came into the game with a positive attitude and lost control of the game from the first whistle.

Most of the game was played at midfield and produced few scoring opportunities for either team. It was a typical Winchester-Lexington game in that neither team could gain the upper hand scoringwise.

"Our inexperience at forward showed as we could not put the ball in the net," said Sachem Coach Gene Bouley.

The Sachems had a few excellent scoring chances, but could not capitalize. Lexington's defense played a strong game and gave the Sachems a tough time getting the ball near the goal.

Lexington's offense came from the Korean connection who had many scoring chances. The Sachems' defense held strong, led by Matt Williams who played an outstanding game at fullback for the Sachems. Sachem goalie Mike Rice turned back almost everything that was shot at him.

The Sachems soccer team's lack of enthusiasm showed in the first half of play as the Red Devils of Burlington took a 1-0 lead, even though the Sachems were in control of the recent game.

After the halftime break, the Sachems roared back and dominated the play to win 4-1. The first goal was scored by right winger David Swanson as he put a long shot into the far corner of the net.

A short time later, Chris Verhaegen headed the ball into the net on a pass from Swanson who played his best game of the young season.

Swanson was also involved in the third goal as he was tripped inside the penalty area, resulting in a penalty kick. Rick Suvak closed out the scoring as he netted the penalty kick.

Coach Gene Bouley gave his starters a rest after the third goal as the Sachems continued to control the game.

The elected tri-captains for the 84-85 season are Rick Suvak, Matt Layden and Paul Ferullo.

The Sachems take on Stoneham today at 3:30 at Skillings Field. Also the Sachems will meet Watertown at home on Saturday morning at 10. They would welcome supporters at both games.

Massacre!

Sachem Gridders Crush Somerville 34-0 With 300-Yard Offense In Season Opener

By Diego Sanchez-Elia

Winchester's Sachems opened the football season with a 34-0 blowout against Somerville.

The Sachems dominated the entire game, allowing the Highlanders only the first down. With Somerville's sad offensive showing, the Sachems amassed over 300 yards of total offense.

Winchester kept the ball on the ground most of the time. The leading ground gainer for the Sachems was Brian Carroll, with 105 yards on 13 carries, followed by quarterback Bob Palmer's 41 yards on five carries.

Using a wishbone offense, the Sachems kept Somerville's entire defense off-balance. Palmer repeatedly rolled out to his right and either passed, pitched, or kept the ball. One option was usually open, as the offensive line effectively prevented defenders from pursuing the developing option plays.

Winchester had no trouble scoring on its first possession, after Dave Koffman returned the opening kickoff to the Sachem's 42-yard line.

After two short runs netted 6 yards, Palmer made the first big play of the drive, gaining 14 yards on a quarterback keeper to the Somerville 38. Three running plays advanced the ball to the 19, before Palmer scored on another keeper.

After Somerville failed to move the ball on its first try, Winchester had even less trouble scoring on its second possession. The drive consisted of three plays, including a 45-yard touchdown pass to Dave Mangano. The two-point conversion was good and the Sachems led 14-0 with little more than five minutes into the game.

Winchester began its third possession on its own 20 and ran eight plays to score the game's third touchdown. Carroll sparked the drive with a 28-yard run to the Highlanders' 40. A personal foul penalty was tacked on at the end of the play advancing the ball to the 25. Three plays later, Carroll scored on a six-yard run making the score 20-0.

On the next set of plays, Somerville was unable to move the ball and was forced to punt deep in their own territory. Scott Falzano broke through Somerville's line and blocked the kick, recovering it in the end zone for another touchdown.

Chris Costello was set to try an extra point kick but the snap slipped through the holder's hands. Costello quickly seized the ball and completed a pass into the end zone for two more points. With nearly eight minutes left in the half, the Sachems held a comfortable 28-0 lead.

Winchester almost scored another touchdown before the end of the half, but an illegal procedure penalty on the Somerville 2-yard line and some good defensive plays foiled the drive. The outstanding play of the drive came on a 62-yard line and some good defensive plays foiled the drive. The outstanding play of the drive came on a 62-yard completion to Carroll. Most of the yards came after the catch as Carroll ran well in the open field, taking the ball to the 2-yard line.

The second half was a defensive struggle as neither team was able to move the ball on the rain-soaked field. Somerville solved the mystery of defending against the wishbone offense, holding the Sachems to one touchdown on a 46-yard run by Chip Kelly.

Winchester was never really tested during this game.

Although the Sachems played well, Coach Manny Marshall feels the team can improve on Saturday's performance. "One is never really satisfied," he said. "There is always room for improvement. We made some mistakes like going offside on their 2-yard line, but the kids' enthusiasm made up for any mistakes. Winchester will open the Middlesex League schedule next Saturday against Belmont — a commitment Marshall takes seriously.

"It's the first league game and scouts say they have a talented squad, even though they lost their first game," said Marshall.

Girls Are Awesome In Three Straight Blowout Victories

By Bonnie-Jeanne Casey

The Sachettes know how to play soccer. They have won their first three games, each by a margin of four goals or more. Their most recent victories have been over Lexington (5-0) and Burlington (8-1).

The Lexington game proved to be a stepping stone for the Sachettes, as scoring was attributed to many players. The most memorable goal of this game was perhaps Ellen Donahoe's dangerously low head-ball pass in the Minutemaid goal.

"It was a strong game for us," comments coach Chris Scanlon concerning his team's performance. "Our team has depth."

On Tuesday Winchester won their home opener. Burlington was the victim of the Sachette's awesome execution. Again, the goals came from a lot of players. Michelle Powers, Julie Guarnotta, and Tara Gurry all contributed two goals each. Paula Russo blasted a shot into the lower left corner also.

Carey MacDonald, with four assists on Tuesday, demonstrated how teamwork can be effective. She was the main catalyst to what started a chain reaction of smart playing.

Defensive players, Debbie Nowell, Debbie Maida, and Theresa Ducharme should also be recognized for going to the ball hard, determined to gain possession. Lately, there is Julie Conley who, with soaring throw-ins and corner kicks, created numerous opportunities for the forward line to score.

"Julie is a versatile soccer player.

Whether at right fullback or right halfback, she comes through," coach Scanlon asserts.

But what gives these players their edge is the daily competition the second line gives them in practice. Coach Scanlon believes that the pressure of possibly losing that starting position is healthy and helps the girls to stretch themselves.

Every opponent Winchester faces will be out to beat this championship team, but if the combination of heart, sacrifice and skill comes together, as it has been, the Sachettes will be winning. The Sachettes are excellent athletes individually and an outstanding soccer team collectively.

Sachettes play tonight at 7 under the lights at Peabody High School.

LWV Is In The Market To Register More Voters

The Winchester League of Women Voters (LWV), together with the Town Clerk's office, will hold a special voter registration session on Saturday from 9 to 4 at the Purity Supreme parking lot on Main st.

Any Winchester resident who is a United States citizen, and who will be 18 or older by election day, Nov. 6, can register to vote.

Residents who have recently moved to Winchester from another city or town, or who have changed their names must reregister. Residents who have moved from one Winchester address to another can simply notify the Registrar of Voters — in writing — of the change.

To register, individuals must bring with them identification and proof of residence.

If residents are unable to make use of this one-time special registration day, they may register at the Town Hall any weekday during business hours.

Hospital Offers Free Clinic

A free genitourinary clinic will be sponsored by Winchester Hospital and the American Cancer Society on Tuesday, Sept. 25, from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the oncology area of the hospital.

Males of all ages, from 15 years old upward, may attend the free clinic, and no appointment is necessary.

The entire screening takes less than 15 minutes. Participants will be given a questionnaire, and examination by a physician, and see a film on genitourinary cancer which includes tumors of testis, prostate, bladder and kidney. They will be taught self-examination of the testis. Genitourinary cancers are the major cause of death among American males.

Guild Opens Season With Mass

The Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour will open its 1984-85 season with a memorial mass for deceased members at St. Mary's Church on Tuesday at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Richard Keating, president, will welcome Guild members and guests.

The mass will be celebrated by Monsignor Eugene McNamara, M.S.W. spiritual director of the Guild.

Monsignor is head of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston, with which the Guild of the Infant Saviour is affiliated.

The Rev. Arthur Reardon, pastor of St. Mary's will concelebrate the mass with Monsignor McNamara. James Moritz, music director for St. Mary's Parish, will be the guest soloist, accompanied by Mrs. James Daschbach, a Guild member, as organist.

Mrs. William Wadden will be the lector. Ushering honors at the church will be shared by past presidents Mrs. James Marchant, Mrs. Jeremiah McCarron, Miss Alice O'Leary, and Mrs. Frederick Connor.

Mrs. J. Raymond Murphy and Mrs. Edward Connors are co-chairpersons of the affair.

Following the mass, luncheon will be served at the Winchester Country Club.

Cub Pack 525 Opens Year With Meeting

Winchester Cub Scout Pack 525, chartered by the Vinson-Owen Elementary School of Winchester, will begin its 1984-85 scouting season by meeting in the Winchester High School cafeteria on Monday, Sept. 24, at 7 p.m.

Plans and schedules for this year's activities will be announced and information on the pack's scouting program will be offered. Boys who are interested in joining Pack 525 are invited to attend the meeting with their parents.

The pack's scouting program will be planned around a different theme for each month: Wild and Woolly West, Turkey Day, Do a Good Turn, Working with Wood, Diamond Jubilee, Step into Shape, Farmer

Brown and His Friends, Living in A.D. 2030, and Backyard Fun.

The scouting program is open to all boys between the ages of 7 through 11 years who have completed the second grade. If any family is unable to attend the meeting, they can obtain information by contacting the Cubmaster of Pack 525, Paul Gleason, evenings.

Estates Garden Club Holds Annual Buffet

The Winchester Estates Garden Club recently held its annual "Fall Buffet" at the home of Marie Johnson of Thornberry rd. Co-hostess for the evening was Ginny Germain.

The 36 members in attendance enjoyed a main course of quiche with salad, gelatin and various desserts.

The club, founded in July 1963, was organized to maintain and beautify the strips located on Wincrest dr. and Capri terr. Membership is open to all residents in the Winchester Estates area.

Some of the programs planned for this year's meetings include Japanese Floral Design, Creative Garnishes, and Interior Decorating.

Officers for the 1983-84 season are: president, Judy Bees; vice president, Ruth Null; secretary, Diane Antiero; treasurer, Mary Perry; programs, Jayne D'Ambrosio; publicity and hospitality, Carol Boutwell; maintenance, Ginny Germain and Phyllis Daugherty; ways and means, Herta Botz and Florence Zirakian.

College Program Is Offered Every Wed.

Every Wednesday after school at 2 p.m. in the cafeteria of the High School, the Guidance Office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Sept. 26, the following institutions will be represented: Boston University, Bridgewater State College, Bryant College (R.I.), Bryn Mawr (Pa.), Harvard-Radcliffe, Lesley College, Marymount College (N.Y.), Mass.

Maritime Academy, Merrimack College, New England Deaconess Hospital, Rochester Institute of Technology (N.Y.), St. John's College (Md.), Tufts University, Western Maryland College (Md.), Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

On Wednesday, Oct. 3, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend: Bay State College, Becker Junior College, Castleton State College (Vt.), College of St. Joseph (Vt.), Colorado School of Mines, Fairfield University (Conn.), Johnson State College (Vt.), Katharine Gibbs, Northeastern University, Norwich University (Vt.), Portland School of Art (Maine), St. Anselm College (N.H.), Simmons College, Western New England College.

Seniors Trip Will Visit Museum

On Oct. 10, the Winchester Seniors Assn. trip leads to the famous Higgins Armory Museum in Worcester after a luncheon at Franklin Manor in West Boylston. This excursion through the fall foliage areas will be rewarding in terms of beautiful scenery and interesting historical exhibits.

The museum is in a gothic castle setting with medieval and Renaissance finery such as tapestry, stried glass, wood carvings and banners of Knights of old. Featured are arms and armour from Medieval and Renaissance Europe, feudal Japan, and Ancient Greece and Rome.

A short program will be presented and there will be ample opportunity to browse in the museum gift shop. If interested, contact Jenks Senior Center by Sept. 28. The trip leaves at 10:30 a.m. on Oct. 10, via VIP bus, returning between 4:30 and 5.

Women To Meet

The first Church Women United luncheon of the year will be at St. Mary's Parish hall on Tuesday, Oct. 2, at noon. The cost of the luncheon is payable at the door, but reservations must be made with Marjorie Berger, 729-4693, or Alice O'Leary, 729-3020, between Sept. 24-29.

Orientation Set

The Friends of Winchester Hospital will be conducting their fall orientation for prospective volunteers on Wednesday, Sept. 26, at 9:30 a.m. and in the evening at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital board room.

Residents are invited to join the group for coffee, a brief presentation and a tour of the hospital.

Volunteers are needed in most areas of service, particularly the messenger service. Men as well as women are needed.

For additional information about the orientation call the Volunteer Dept. at Winchester Hospital.

Pizza Night Friday

Winchester Women's Lodge 1592 is holding its annual Family Pasta Night on Friday, Sept. 21, at 6:30 p.m. at Sons of Italy Hall, 117 Swanton st.

The public is invited to this event which has proven very popular in the past.

Dinner will be ziti with meatballs, served family style, salad, pastries and beverages. After the meal there will be entertainment for all ages — games and prizes for the children and dancing and singing to the music of Bob Caruso and his accordion.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Mary Nio, 567 Winthrop st., Medford, or they may be purchased at the door.

Need Licenses

Dog Officer Nick Molea is now checking with the Town Clerk's Office to find the residents who do not have their dogs licensed for 1984. If your name is on the list, there will be a $20 fine plus the fee for the license.

The law requires all dogs over 3 months old to have a license. They may be secured at the Town Clerk's Office, Monday, through Friday, 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Fees are as follows: male dog - $4; female - $7; spayed female - $4. All dogs must have rabies shots before being licensed.

YOU CAN HELP!!

Know what to do if an emergency situation arises — the following safety tips provide a good guideline:

KNOW WHERE TO CALL FOR HELP
USE EMERGENCY PHONE NUMBERS FOR EMERGENCIES ONLY LEARN TO RECOGNIZE AN EMERGENCY SITUATION

an emergency is any illness or injury which is life threatening and needs immediate attention

LEARN TO PERFORM CARDIOPULMONARY RESUSCITATION
TAKE A BASIC FIRST AID COURSE
KNOW THE MEDICAL HISTORIES OF YOUR FAMILY MEMBERS

Even the most sophisticated medical technologies and professionals can not be effectively employed unless citizens take the responsibility before an emergency occurs to know how and when to access their local Emergency Medical Service System.

Junior Volunteers Helped Many During Summer

Dozens Of Winchester Youths Contribute To All Areas Of Hospital

A total of 148 young people from eight area communities recently completed a summer of work as Junior Volunteers at Winchester Hospital. From late June through Labor Day, these young men and women ages 14 to 18 worked mornings, afternoons, evenings and weekends at the hospital, assisting both the hospital staff and patients.

Junior Volunteers waited on customers in the hospital Coffee Shop, served patients their morning coffee from the coffee cart, greeted patients in the office of the hospital Laboratory and at the Patient Registration Desk, made beds, transported patients from floor to floor, and delivered flowers and supplies throughout the hospital.

Preparation for the Junior Volunteers' summer job assignments begins in February, when they are interviewed by Marie Johnson, Director of Volunteers, and then attend several orientation sessions as well as on-the-job training throughout the spring months.

"The work these Junior Volunteers do for Winchester Hospital is an invaluable service to the hospital," said Johnson. "And the experience is also an opportunity for each young man and woman to gain job training and experience while learning the importance of dependability and cooperation."

"They are enthusiastic and conscientious, and they are a welcome addition to our hospital family each summer."

Junior Volunteers from Winchester were:

Andreas Coppi, Susan Cunningham, Lisa Dewar, Maria DiChiapari, Risa DiVincenzo, Paige Elwell, Denise Finneran, Beth Flavin, Valerie Fleck, Verne Fryklund, Heather Graves, Kate Green;

And, Christine Guarino, Nicola Hagerty, Susan Hagerty, Wendy Hinckman, Holly Johnson, Kate Johnson, Jennifer Joyce, Diane Kakridas, Penny Kapanika, Beth Karis, Jennifer Konash;

Arwen Kraus, Adam Laats, Christine Looney, Kristin McKay, Paul McLaughlin, Ann Mueller, Colleen O'Connor, Patricia O'Neill, Subhasis Pal, Ted Papalimberis, Jennifer Perkins, Sandra Powers;

Also, Erin Quill, Tina Ravanis, Jane Reardon, Caroline Reich, Anne Reno, Linda Rossettos, Kristin Rothmann, Laura Rutherford, Nancy Spencer, Louise Terciak, Ann Marie Venuti and Heidi Worthen.

Volunteers In Action

The annual Vinson-Owen School Book Fair, sponsored by the Parent's Assn., will be held Monday through Thursday Sept. 24-27 from 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. in the school gym.

This year as last year there will be a wide selection of books from which to choose. The association suggests that youngsters in grades K to 6 select their books from the list which was sent home. Payment may be made by cash or by a check made out to the Vinson-Owen Parents' Assn. A schedule listing the time each group will visit the fair will be posted in each classroom.

Parents are welcome to join their children in the gym during their visit to the book fair.

Camelio Award

Artist Carol L. Camelio, a member of the Winchester Art Assn., took second-place honors in the merit competition in the Medford Arts Council's Annual Festival by the Mystic held last week. The award winning painting, entitled "Fatsia II," is a 40-inch by 30-inch acrylic on canvas, microscopic detail of a plant leaf. The painting is bold and enchanting and reflective of Camelio's highly-acclaimed style.

The artist is also exhibiting other of her works throughout the state. At the Provincetown Art Museum, "By the Window," an acrylic on canvas, is being exhibited as part of that association's Annual Prize Painting Show. The show will continue until the end of September.

"Lily Pads" is being exhibited at the Cambridge Art Assn.'s Fall Salon, while "Logs in Winter" is being displayed at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset. The Cambridge exhibition runs until the end of the month while the Cohasset exhibit continues through the end of October.

Beginning next week at the Medford Public Library in Medford Square, the series Seasons of Medford will be shown. The four paintings in the series are "Slave Wall," "Footbridge Across the Mystic," "Hastings Heights Tower" and "Summer on the Mystic."

Locally, at the Winchester Art Assn.'s Prize Painting Show, held Sept. 29-30 at Winchester Town Hall, Camelio will exhibit a number of her works, including "Fatsia II."

Hospital Will

Honor Dr. Fahey

The Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford Auxiliary will host its annual dinner dance on Nov. 9, at Colonial-Page's Restaurant in Wakefield. This year's event, entitled the "Crystal Ball," will be held in honor of long-time Winchester resident Dr. Robert J. Fahey, LMH chief of staff, for his more than 35 years of service to LMH.

The Crystal Ball will feature cocktails at 7 p.m., dinner at 8 p.m. and music by Les Smith. Proceeds will benefit the Lawrence Memorial Assn., which raises funds to meet patient care equipment of the hospital.

For more information on the Crystal Ball, call Cathleen Palmer Flint at 396-0976.

Worobey Award

Jacqueline Lowe Worobey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Lowe of 71 Church St., was awarded the Robert J. Kibler Research Prize at the recent meetings of the International Communication Association held in San Francisco.

Her paper, entitled "The assessment of a multi-strategic approach to reducing communication apprehension," was judged as the outstanding entry authored solely by a graduate student.

Ms. Worobey, a 1976 graduate of Winchester High School, is currently working toward her doctoral degree in Communication at the University of Oklahoma.

In addition to her award winning presentation, she coauthored a paper with her husband, Dr. John Worobey, entitled "Life-span developmental communication: An infancy perspective."

Pynn Family Reunion Draws Five Generations

Seventy-three members of the Pynn family recently met at the home of Mrs. Howard E. Chase Jr. (Florence Pynn) for a family reunion.

The Pynn family goes back to the year 1629-30 when King Charles I gave a land grant in Massachusetts Bay Colony to Henry Pynn from The Isle of Wight in England.

The grant referred to a piece of land believed to be in the general area of what is now Winchester/Woburn.

Being loyal to the crown and the Church of England, the Pynns fled north when the American Revolution started.

They remained there for many generations until early in 1900 when grandfather, S. Frederick Pynn came to find the land grant as described to him by his grandfather that had been passed on for those several generations.

Frederick believed Winchester was the place, although it has never been exactly pinpointed. He settled in Winchester with his wife Agnes and two sons, and lived out his life here. He is buried in Wildwood Cemetery.

His two daughters remained in Canada, raising their families there. His son, Franklin, and his wife, Anne, lived out their lives in Winchester, and are also buried in Wildwood Cemetery. They had six sons, Ronald, Woodrow, Carl, Robert, Russell and Franklin Jr., and two daughters, Marion and Florence, all born, raised and educated in Winchester.

Five sons served the U.S. in World War II and all returned. Florence and her family still reside in Winchester, while the rest of the family is scattered from coast to coast.

Because of the history, it was deemed fitting that all would return "Home to Winchester" for the first time in more than 40 years.

Family members came from Pleasanton and Anaheim, Calif.; Seattle, Wa.; Florida, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, as well as Toronto, Ontario and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Five generations of Pynns gathered at the Winchester/Woburn Masonic Hall for the main banquet which featured table centerpieces of crossed American and Canadian flags. The meal was prepared and served by the members of the Order of the Eastern Star under the direction of Barbara McSweeney. The centerpiece for the banquet table was a huge cake inscribed "Happiness is Family."

Delicious food, good music, reminiscing by pictures and words, videotaping for a permanent record and just plain visiting among brothers and sisters, aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, nephews, grandchildren and grandparents, and everyone agreed a pilgrimage "home" should be more frequent.

Ann Corey Becomes The Bride Of William Raphael

On Sunday, Aug. 5, Roberta Ann Corey became the bride of William R. Raphael. The wedding took place at the First Congregational Church in Winchester and was officiated by the Rev. Walter Davis.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Giustino Baldacci. She wore a white satin gown with a sweetheart neckline, elbow-length puff sleeves, a fitted applied yoke bodice, with a chapel-length train. Her headpiece consisted of a tiara with full-length veil.

Andrea Corey, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, Sandra Moranian, a cousin, Connie Raphael, sister of the bridegroom, Leslie Ewing and Marion Alvino. Her attendants wore deep rose full-length gowns, while the maid of honor was in pink.

Best man for his brother was Alan Raphael of Long Island. Ushers were James Kilroy, Roger Dantes, Rick Provinzano and Sam Novell.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Ship. After a honeymoon in New Hampshire and Vermont, the couple reside in Wakefield.

The bride is the daughter of Elmira Corey of Winchester and the late Walter Corey. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Raphael of Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Raphael

Buglass Girl

Karen and Ralph Buglass of Winchester became the parents of their first child, Amy Heather, on Sept. 6. Grandparents are Phyllis and Martin Zelkind of New York and Marion and Donald Buglass of Maryland.

OBITUARIES

Barbara MacDonald

A funeral mass was celebrated at St. Barbara's Church, Woburn, on Tuesday, for Barbara A. (Kelley) MacDonald, 56, wife of retired Winchester School Supt. William C. MacDonald.

She died Sept. 15, at the Winchester Hospital after a long illness. A Weymouth native, Mrs. MacDonald was educated in the Weymouth Schools and Hickox School, Boston and later resided in the Marshfield area.

She lived in Winchester for the past 13 years, and was executive secretary for several years at the New England Association of Secondary Schools in Winchester.

She was an avid boater who spent time each year on Cape Cod with her family.

She is survived by her husband; two sons, W. Timothy and wife Donna, and Michael of Winchester; two daughters, Lynda A. Perry and husband Alfred of North Andover, Jeanne M. Taylor and husband David of Cambridge; a sister Marie McEachern of Scituate; two brothers, Francis Kelley of Philadelphia, Pa., and The Rev. Lawrence Kelley, Chaplain, U.S. Air Force, of Scituate; mother-in-law, Florence MacDonald of Duxbury; and eight grandchildren.

Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery. Arrangements were by the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home.

Contributions may be made in her memory to the Oncology Dept. at Winchester Hospital, c/o Dr. Alan Edelstein, 41 Highland ave.

Evelyn Garvey

Evelyn L. (Morin) Garvey, wife of late Middlesex County District Attorney Leo F. Garvey, a prominent Winchester attorney, died unexpectedly in Winchester Hospital on Sept. 17 at the age of 77.

Mrs. Garvey, a 54-year resident of Winchester, was born in Rochester, N.H. She was a member of the Winchester Seniors Assn., Guild of the Infant Saviour, Ladies Sodality of St. Mary's Church and the senior citizen bowling team.

Mrs. Garvey was the mother of Leo F. Garvey of Woburn, John (Jack) Garvey of Winchester, Richard D. Garvey of Sandwich, Jean E. Garvey of Chesapeake Beach, Md., Anne (Susie) Garvey of Melrose, Mary J. McLaughlin of Tewksbury and the late Patricia McLaughlin. She is also survived by a sister, Zata Trudel of Rochester, N.H., 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held yesterday from Lane Funeral Home with funeral mass celebrated in St. Mary's Church. Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to Winchester Hospital.

Isa M. (Brown) Little, wife of the late John F. Little, died on Sept. 16 in Revere at the age of 93.

Mrs. Little was formerly a resident of Somerville and a member of the Gold Star Mothers of Somerville.

Conrad W. Grad

Conrad W. Grad, 84, died Sept. 13 at Winchester Nursing Home after a long illness.

A resident of Winchester for 45 years, Mr. Grad was born in Hyde Park and had lived in Cambridge and Burlington before moving here. He was a sales representative with the Rusterath Greeting Card Co. of Dedham for 38 years.

Mr. Grad was a former treasurer and president of the Pinewood Lutheran Church in Burlington and a volunteer at Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford.

He is survived by his wife, Elaine R. (Emery), daughter Carol G. Hingston of Reading, stepsons Paul Spedding of North Carolina and David Spedding of Cambridge, sister Edel Endee of Weston, and three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sept. 15 at Lane Funeral Home. The Rev. Mark Marozik of Pinewood Lutheran Church officiated. Burial was at Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

Memorial donations may be made to the Pinewood Lutheran Church, 24 Wilmington rd., Burlington, 01803.

Isa M. Little

She was also a member of Chapter 136, Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Little is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Hazel M. Jones, three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Ivan J. Nash

Ivan J. "Bud" Nash, 94, died in Winchester Hospital on Sept. 15 after a prolonged illness.

A 64-year resident of Winchester, Mr. Nash was born and educated in New Hampshire. He was an employee of the Esso Co. in Everett for 43 years.

Mr. Nash was a veteran who served in the Marine Corps from 1907 to 1911 in Cuba and China and a member of the Towanda Club in Woburn. He was an avid bowler who belonged to the Towanda Club bowling team and several teams at the Woburn Bowladrome until 1974.

Mr. Nash is survived by his sons, John F. Nash of Winchester, Joseph I. Nash of Woburn, and William E. Nash of the Winchester Police Dept.; daughters, Mary E. Kenny and Alice F. Cummings, both of Rhode Island; 17 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church on Tuesday. Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Health Expert To Address Visiting Nurses' Annual Meeting

Leon S. White, assistant vice president for Benefits Administration at Blue Cross of Massachusetts, will be the guest speaker at the Annual Meeting of Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc. The meeting will be held Monday, Sept. 24, Hancock United Church of Christ, Lexington, at 7 p.m. Dr. White's topic will be "The Dilemma of Health Benefits."

The public is invited to attend the annual meeting of the Board of Directors and members of Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc.

Carrier

HEATING & COOLING

HERE'S HOW:

1. Buy a Carrier high-efficiency furnace or residential heat pump between September 1, 1984 and January 1, 1985. Combined with your forced air furnace, it'll get you the most heat for your dollar this winter. And next summer, your heat pump gets twice the cooling efficiency of older air conditioners.
2. We'll guarantee a cold winter or else. If the average outdoor temperature is more than 4 degrees above normal from September 1, 1984 thru April 1, 1985, we'll pay you $500.
3. We'll even buy up your dead or dying central air conditioner. Talk to us about our COLD WEATHER GUARANTEE. We have the complete details. And we'll talk to you about a great deal.

*Normal temperature will be determined by data recorded by the National Weather Service in the county where the equipment is installed. The program is designed by Good Weather, Jericho, N.Y. Offers available from participating dealers to single family homeowners until Jan. 1, 1985. Void where prohibited.

WE BUY-UP OLD, INEFFICIENT FURNACES.

WHEN YOU BUY CARRIER.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE NOTES

Agape Academy

Also last week, the School Committee approved the curriculum for grades five and six at the Agape Christian Academy located in the old Mystic School. Previously, the committee had approved the academy as a private school in Winchester.

The School Dept. is required by state law to review only the curriculum of private schools in town. The board must then report its findings to the State Department of Education.

Well Field

In response to an inquiry from Michael Connolly, a resident of the Lynch district, the administration reviewed the potential school use of the four-acre well field property adjacent to Lynch School presently under control of the Winchester Water Dept.

While an abutter urged preservation of the area for conservation land or as a biological study area, the committee declined to seek authority to have jurisdiction over the field.

Summer School

John Pirani, Summer School director, reported on remedial and enrichment programs offered during the 1984 summer session, reviewed enrollment statistics and costs. He outlined his recommendations, including a parents' advisory committee.

The committee and Pirani discussed the sharp decline in enrollments this year, withdrawal of Lesley College student teachers, and cancellation of some nine offerings including three math and three computer classes.

The committee asked that the schedule be drawn up and available early in the year so that parents can be informed before other summer plans are made.

Recognitions

The School Committee recognized the second place award in the 50th annual yearbook competition sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press

Assoc. of Columbia University to the ABERJONA yearbook. Yearbook advisor Carly Jane Watson and senior Michelle Kupjian were honored with a Best Copy Award at the Gettysburg Yearbook Workshop. They were selected from 263 participants.

Some Tips To Help You Protect Your Home Against The Threat Of Burglaries

Residential burglaries are common occurrences. While that may be disconcerting, there are many steps you can take to avoid becoming a victim.

"The trick is to keep your house from looking like easy pickings," says Michael Jordan, Honeywell manager of home alarm markets.

"Crime experts say that if your protective measures can delay a burglar for just several minutes, he will give up and try another house," Jordan says.

Following are some tips for protecting your house.

STRONG DOORS WITH STRONG LOCKS. Doors are the first place a burglar will try. Outside doors should be solid wood or metal so they can't be kicked in. Don't be careless with keys. Burglars know all the hiding places, such as under doormats, in planters or mailboxes or on top of door frames. Instead, give your keys to a neighbor you trust.

Also, carefully consider lock placement. It's simple, for example, for a burglar to break glass to reach in to a lock. Double locks that require a key on the outside and inside provide greater protection.

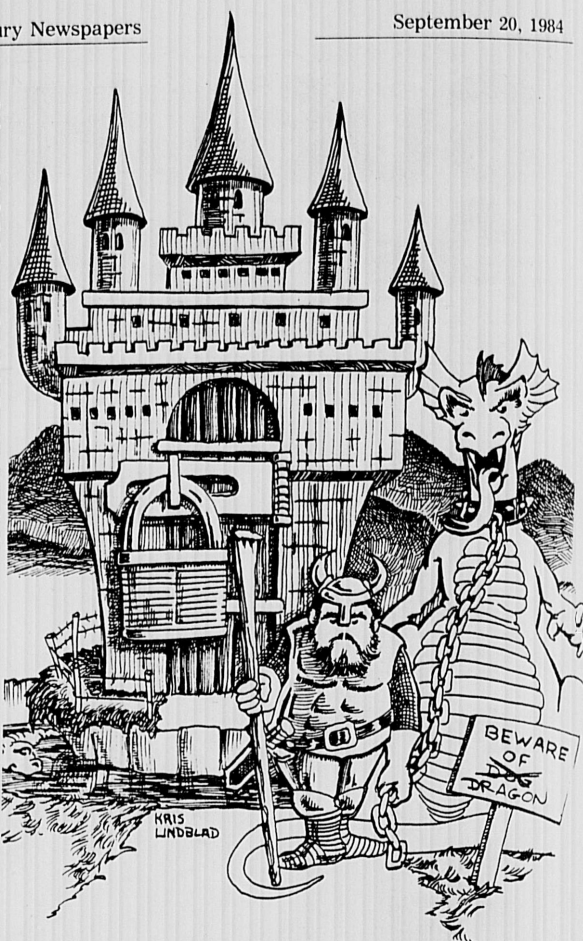

SECURE WINDOWS AND SLIDING DOORS. Window locks that require a key to open are one way to stop a burglar. Another possibility is to insert pins or nails in holes drilled through the window's double frames where they overlap. When you want to open the window, merely pull out the pins. Dowels or a piece of broomstick in the track of a sliding door can make it difficult for anyone to lift the door out of its track.

GOOD LOCKS. Avoid locks with the keyhole in the doorknob. They can be opened with a knife or credit card. Instead, install a lock with a 1-inch throw and a tumbler cylinder with a cylinder guard ring. And be sure to use your locks.

TRIM SHRUBS AND BUSHES. Keep bushes, shrubs and trees trimmed around doorways, windows and basement entries so burglars have no place to hide in the daylight.

AUTOMATIC TIMERS ON INSIDE LIGHTS. When you're away from home, don't rely on one or two lights left on in the house at night. Automatic timers can be programmed to simulate a normal routine. Available at a nominal cost from most department or hardware stores, they're an excellent security investment.

ELECTRONIC SYSTEMS. "New technology in home alarm systems allows the home owner to arm or disarm particular security points in the house with the push of a few computer buttons on a control panel rather than disarming or arming at each point," says Jordan. "This allows home owners to arm the system while leaving selected doors and windows open for routine use allowing for the individual lifestyles

OUTSIDE. No burglar likes to work in a spotlight. Keep outside lights on whether you are at home or away to illuminate darkened areas.

The home owner should take as many precautions as possible to provide household security, Jordan says.

Window Coverings Add Insulation

Glass windows are excellent heat conductors but poor insulators. So while they may direct solar energy into your home to heat it, that heat could become too intense or quickly could escape back through the window.

A solution? Window coverings such as drapes and blinds to block the sun from entering on hot days and to hold in heat on winter days.

Although the sun's light and heat should be obstructed in some windows, it is a good practice to leave other windows unobstructed to vent any excess heat and to collect cooling breezes.

For example, if the afternoon sun is pouring in through western-exposure windows, they should be shut tightly in the summer to prevent heat gain. Windows and their coverings on the other exposures should be opened for cooling ventilation.

In winter, the opposite would be true. Western-exposure windows should be uncovered to admit the sun's heat, while shaded exposures should be closed tightly to prevent heat loss.

Several tests in the window coverings market show that blinds are particularly effective, says a report for the Hunter Douglas Window Products Division. Blinds can cut from 20 to 70 percent of radiated heat gain and also can help reduce energy loss in winter, the report continues. Look for tightly woven fabrics for maximum insulation. A tight weave not only increases insulation abilities but it also reduces drafts.

Installation that allows the least amount of space between the blind and the window is most efficient. When used with draperies, valances, reflective backing or a reflective finish, the blind's efficiency is increased.

Home Improvement Requires Planning

Don't Become A Horror Story

There was the story making the rounds awhile ago about the remodeler who ended up putting the Jacuzzi in the kitchen and the stove in the bedroom.

That created some chuckles about bonehead mistakes that can be made in remodeling.

But there's really nothing funny about the horror stories about residential remodeling mix-ups.

Home owners will spend millions of dollars this year on home improvements.

Based on past performance, a large number of them won't be happy with what they get for their money.

That's why architect Homer Delawie, former 12-year member of the San Diego Planning Commission, has some advice for people who want to have remodeling done.

"I think the consumer can give himself the best protection by using an architect to design the remodeling project, whether it's adding space or just redoing what is already there," he said. "That, I think, is the professional approach."

"And the more professional you are, the more you are protected."

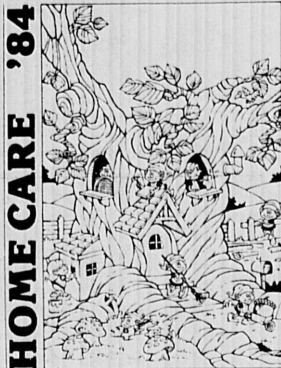

Anyone who wants to remodel can call a local office of the American Institute of Architects and get a list of architects who specialize in remodeling.

"The property owner can then contact the architects and interview them," he said. "He can then select someone he feels comfortable working with."

The home owner should tell the architect exactly what is wanted and let the designer inspect the house and yard.

Hiring an architect, Delawie said, is only the first step in a process that will lead to a professional remodeling job without a rip-off.

"The home owner should find out from the city government how much yard space can be used for expansion," he said. "If it's unincorporated territory, then it's the county government."

The home owner then "should contact different lending institutions to get the best possible loan rate" for remodeling, Delawie said.

Local real estate prices also should be carefully checked through real estate brokers to determine how big the remodeling job should be, he said.

According to Delawie, that step should be taken "because you don't want to create (through the remodeling) a $250,000 house in an area where the prevailing price might be around $80,000. That will make it hard to sell in the future in many cases."

If an architect is retained to draw the plans for the remodeling, the property owner can consult the architect on which contractor actually will do the work.

"The architect can suggest names of reliable people," Delawie said. "And then the home owner can interview the contractors suggested."

He said the home owner should look for a contractor with a good track record over a period of years.

"The home owner also should go out and look at jobs the contractor has done and talk to the people who had the work done," he said. "They can also do this if they employ an architect."

"They can check his work out and talk to people who used the architect. That's the smart thing to do."

Save Energy Now!

— Lower the temperature of your water heater. "The hot water tank is one of the biggest users of energy in the home, accounting for about 15 percent of your bill," Cooper says. Consider setting the temperature between 120 and 130 F, depending upon your hot water needs, he says. "If you feel heat when you touch the tank, add an inexpensive insulation blanket to reduce heat loss. Be sure to insulate hot water pipes in unheated areas. Don't leave a water leak alone — a leak of one drop of hot water every second wastes 5,000 gallons of water and more than $40 in energy per year."

— Make sure furniture is not blocking heat or cooling vents.

— In winter, keep draperies open during the day to let in sunlight. Close at night to maintain household heat.

— Use full loads in dishwashers and washing machines.

— Feel for air cracks around doors, windows and electrical outlets. Seal by weather-stripping or by using a high-quality caulking.

— Consider installing storm windows. They keep cold air out and warm air in and can be made inexpensively with sturdy plastic.

— Check insulation throughout the attic and basement. A reputable insulation dealer or local utility company can determine if there is enough insulation. Look for missing insulation and be sure to insulate spaces around pipes and fixtures connected to the outside.

— In winter, set the thermostat between 65 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit during winter days and 55 to 65 F at night. Each degree less than 70 F represents as much as a 3 percent cost savings in your heating bill.

— Tune and set heating and cooling units properly and operate only when needed.

Energy-Saving Tips

Appliance heat

Electric appliances should not be used to heat the home as they are too expensive to operate for long periods. Open flames should not be used for heat, either, as the fumes stay inside the home unless there is good ventilation from windows. — CNS

Remodel for heat

If you're planning to add a room to your house or remodel some existing area, consider the heating changes before you start work.

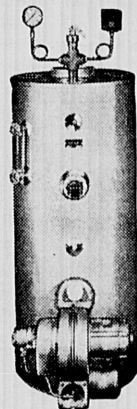

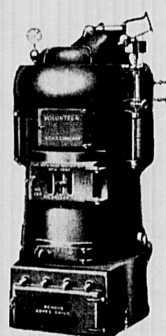

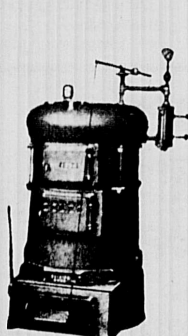

Call in a heating contractor at the beginning, urges the Better Heating-Cooling Council. He can tell you how much additional heat will be needed and the easiest way to install it. — CNS

Water and steam

Hydronics include both steam and hot water heating for homes and for commercial buildings. In recent decades hot water heating for homes has outpaced steam as it is easier to maintain even temperatures and can be cheaper to operate.

If your home has an old two-pipe steam system, ask your heating installer about converting it to forced hot water with a circulator that responds to your thermostat.

Prevent Home Fires!

Could a serious fire happen in your home? Most of us simply don't think about it. But we should — fire departments respond to more than 675,000 residential fires in a year's time in the United States. And almost five out of six fire deaths happen in residential fires.

So preventive measures in the home are worth the effort spent to protect family members and to preserve valued personal possessions.

To begin, install and maintain smoke detectors. Two-thirds of American homes now have at least one detector, but sometimes just one smoke detector isn't enough — especially if it's not maintained or if it gets put into a closet, says the National Fire Protection Association. Ideally you should:

— Install one detector outside each sleeping area.

— Install at least one on every level of the house, including the basement.

— Test smoke detectors each month — according to manufacturer's directions.

— Replace dying batteries. Most battery-powered detectors give off a "chirping" sound when the battery is wearing out.

— Vacuum the outside surface of smoke detectors periodically to clear away dust that can cause malfunction.

You also should have fire extinguishers handy to deal with small fires. It's a good idea to practice using them.

Fire extinguishers are made to combat certain types of fires. Depending on its size and ingredients, an extinguisher is good for only a certain length of time against particular types of fires. Each is labeled as such.

— An "A" fire refers to ordinary combustibles — wood, paper, cloth.

— "B" means a grease fire, like a frying pan of grease catching fire.

— A "C" fire is an electrical fire.

— Multiuse, all-purpose extinguishers are available — labeled "ABC."

Attempt to put out only very small fires. Remember, what looks like a small, easy-to-handle fire can quickly get out of control, so make sure you're between the fire and an exit when approaching a fire with an extinguisher. If the fire turns out to be too big for the extinguisher, you'll have a way out.

Exits should be planned and practiced. Most fatal home fires, according to the NFPA, occur in the middle of the night when everyone's asleep. Plan ahead so that everyone knows what to do if awakened from a sound sleep.

— Diagram a plan and include two escape routes from every room. Practice the plan.

— Designate one place outside where everyone will meet to be accounted for.

Here are techniques to use when you're trying to escape from fire:

— When the detector sounds, roll out of bed and crawl to the bedroom door. Sleeping with the door closed can help keep poisonous smoke out.

— Feel the door. If it's hot, flames and smoke are probably on the other side. Use the second planned exit from the room.

— If the door is cool, open it cautiously.

— If you have to pass through smoke, crawl. The air is cleaner and easier to breathe near the floor because much of the smoke will rise.

— If clothing catches fire, stop right where you are. Drop to the floor and roll over and over until the flames are out. Then get medical attention quickly.

— Once you're out, stay out. When the family is accounted for, call the fire department from a neighbor's house.

Additional preventive home measures:

— Check wood stoves and chimneys for cracks or creosote buildup. If one-fourth inch or more of creosote has accumulated, have chimneys and stovepipes cleaned. If you're using a space heater, make sure there's at least a yard of clear space in all directions around it. And don't leave children alone in a room with a space heater working. Turn heaters off before going to bed or going out.

— Regularly check the electrical cords on appliances. If the cord is splitting or frayed or if the connections at the ends are loose, have a new cord installed. Also, don't run a cord under a rug to keep everyone from tripping over it. The cord continually is stepped on and gradually broken down this way, but we don't see that happening.

Houseplants Need Much TLC

Houseplants, although appreciated as aesthetic additions to a home, too often are neglected. We simply forget that these beautiful accessories require attention and care.

The first step in regaining our houseplants' good graces is to give them a cleaning. Wipe all smooth leaves carefully with a soft, damp cloth, both the upper and under sides. This will help them breathe freely and photosynthesize efficiently. Fuzzy leaves, like those on African violets, can be brushed free of dust with a soft brush or another leaf.

This also is a good time to take care of any necessary repotting. If plant roots are growing out of the pot's drainage holes, that's a sign it needs to expand its quarters. If you are repotting a plant, clean it after it is repotted.

Choose potting soil appropriate to the plant type. There are packaged soil mixes available for cacti, foliage plants and so on.

If you remove a plant from its pot and find it to be root bound, roots wound around a ball of soil, gently tease them away before repotting. Up to one-third of the plant's old roots can be cleanly snipped away before repotting.

Provide a thin drainage layer at the bottom of each new pot — clean pebbles or peat and charcoal. And water the plant into its new home with some transplanting solution to reduce the shock of the move.

Once the plants are repotted, spruce them up, removing any dead leaves. Give humidity lovers — foliage plants, citrus — a light misting and place even the sun lovers in a spot out of the sun for a few days to allow them to adjust and settle in.

Plants already in large pots, or large plants, often will do with just a top dressing of fresh soil. Scratch away the top inch or so and replace it with fresh potting mix.

Once summer's warmth arrives, just about any indoor plant can be placed outdoors for a vacation. But make the move gradual. Even the sun lovers need a slow acclimatization to the outdoor sun. Then, foliage plants can be moved into dappled shade while sun lovers like garden geraniums, citrus and bougainvillea can be moved into sunny spots.

Christmas cactus, kalanchoe, rhipsalis, orchid cactus and orchids grown in the house benefit, too, from a summer out in dappled shade.

Plants can be plunged up to the pot rims in appropriate spots in the garden or sunk in large containers of damp peat on a patio or balcony. Even window boxes can be used to house indoor plants. Here again, damp peat can be placed in between the pots to help keep the plant roots cool and moist.

HOME CARE '84

While your houseplants are outdoors you will notice them gradually plumping up and putting on new growth. This indicates a need for regular fertilizing and good water supplies.

The one kind of houseplant I keep indoors for the summer is the African violet because its foliage does not stand up well to outdoor living.

In the fall, before any danger of frost, our houseplant friends are brought back indoors and suitably spiffed up for the winter ahead. At this point, though, I give them a couple weeks of isolation in the greenhouse — a protected porch or sun room could be used — to ensure there aren't any hitchhiking pests.

You Can't Take Water For Granted Anymore

Save Water And Save $!

Water is a commodity often taken for granted. Most people have no idea how much water they use every day for cleaning, hygiene, cooking and drinking.

Most people do realize, however, that they're paying more for running and heating water than ever before.

If the average family of four had a nickel for every gallon of water wasted in their home, they'd be about $2,300 richer each year, according to a report by Resources Conservation Inc., manufacturer of Incredible brand water-conservation devices.

That doesn't mean they're actually losing that much money on water, sewer and water heating bills. But consumers can cut their water consumption by almost half and save hundreds of dollars by installing simple water-conservation devices, said Michael Wales, president of Resources Conservation Inc.

For example, a conventional toilet uses 5 to 7 gallons per flush, but a water-saving device placed in the tank can reduce that amount by 2 to 3 gallons. A conventional shower head that flows at more than 6 gallons a minute can be replaced with a low-flow shower head that flows at only 2 gallons a minute.

Showering is the single largest use of water in the home, but water-saving shower heads can reduce the amount of water used by as much as 70 percent, Wales said. Because less water flows through, less water has to be heated, resulting in savings in energy bills, as well.

To avoid losing water pressure, look for devices that aerate the water to deliver a strong shower flow.

To save even more money, some shower heads have buttons that can be pushed to reduce the shower flow to a trickle and conserve water while lathering, shampooing or shaving legs. To return the flow to normal, another touch to the buttons is all that is needed.

As for toilets, 40 percent of total water usage in the average household goes to flushing toilets. And most conventional toilets use more water than necessary to complete the action of the flush and bowl refill, Wales said.

Most toilet water-conservation devices work like a dam to reduce the amount of water needed in the tank. When properly installed, the devices will not diminish the force of the flush so toilet performance is not affected. Wales said this device can reduce a family's water bill by as much as 20 percent.

Another fixture crucial to water consumption is the faucet. A normal tap running for two minutes at only medium force uses from 3 to 5 gallons of water — water often wasted while a person is brushing teeth or scrubbing dishes.

While it is simple enough to turn off the faucet when the water isn't actually being used, people often will leave it running while brushing their teeth, shaving or washing dishes simply because of the inconvenience of having to readjust water flow and temperature.

Some devices, however, have on-off levers that allow the water to be shut off and turned back on to the same force and temperature without adjusting knobs.

Most water-conservation devices can be installed in minutes without tools and are available at a variety of stores, Wales said.

Home Improvement Tip

Q. I would like to know how to refinish the chrome legs on my dinette table which have become quite rusted. I would like to paint them black, either enamel or flat finish.

A. First, remove the rust and dull the gloss of the chrome by rubbing with sandpaper. Then clean the metal with turpentine and steel wool.

To reduce the possibility of further rusting, coat the metal with a rust-inhibitive paint that has a zinc or red-lead base.

When thoroughly dry, apply the flat black paint or enamel, whichever is preferred.

Tips To Help Your Bedroom Do Double Duty

These days few of us can afford a house large enough to have rooms used for only one thing. Think about your bedroom — considering your lifestyle, what can it do for you that it's not doing now?

— A quiet corner — a comfortable seating area for reading or relaxing — is perfect in a bedroom. Your hideaway can be limited in scale: a single chaise lounge or easy chair and an ottoman tucked into a corner with a good lamp, your needlework and a stack of best-sellers nearby.

If space permits, you might try something more ambitious: a love seat, two side chairs and a butler's tray table, or a pair of wing chairs with a candle stand between to hold your cappuccino.

— Secluded and intimate dining in your bedroom transforms ordinary stew into beef bourguignon. Just include a small table, flatted table desk or nest of tables in your floor plan. With chairs or a love seat covered in your bedroom fabric, you'll have an alternative to your formal dining area.

— While you may not want a full-blown office in the bedroom, most of us need a spot to balance the checkbook, write letters and plan vacations. You can add a small drop-front secretary to the room plan or position a desk next to your bed to double as a bedside table. Any type of table can be used as a work surface — just have large covered baskets and fabric-covered files and folders on hand in which to sweep your office clutter.

If you're planning to make a wall system part of your bedroom decor, don't forget to include the desk option in one of the units. You can fold it up and out of the way when it's not in use.

— There's certainly no better seat in the house for the late late show than the middle of your bed, but TVs and stereos don't contribute much in the way of a decorative atmosphere.

One way around this dilemma is to install all your electronic paraphernalia inside an armoire to banish tangled wires and unsightly cable boxes from view. Note that armoires also can be filled with spare bed linens, comforters and quilts or clothes.

— Depending on the shape and size of your bedroom, you may be able to use built-ins to add the flexibility you've wanted. If you hinge the top of a banquette or window seat you create instant storage space for seldom-used items like the punch bowl, the fondue pot or just general overflow.

Window seats fit neatly into recessed windows while banquettes can run along the wall or be built into a corner.

— Additional hints for your bedroom: Lined draperies, wall-to-wall carpeting and fabric-covered walls absorb sound for a super-quiet bedroom. If you're easily disturbed by light, have windows fitted with room-darkening shades. For those who want both light and privacy, try double shirring a curtain on the lower window sash and hang a classic swag above to match.

Virginia Carry is the author of "Double Duty Decorating" (Scribner's), a book that tells you how to make one room do the job of two.

Home Improvement Tips

Q. How can I remedy small splits or checks that appear in old or weathered plywood panels?

A. You can give these panels a new surface by rubbing floor filler into the cracks with burlap or other coarse material, working across the grain. Then, when dry and sanded, you'll have a smooth, solid base for a new coat of paint.

Q. How much space is required for a dining arrangement at the end of our living room?

A. Usually about 8 square feet is necessary for a dining space for four persons. This allows 20 to 24 inches of table space for each person. About 3 feet of space is desirable to pull out chairs around a table although you sometimes can skimp on this.

If your space is severely limited, consider a pedestal table for getting more usable space.

Choose Themes, Then Redecorate

Themes in home decorating can be as direct as a child's playroom reflecting only "Star Wars" characters or as subtle and sophisticated as a room done only in black and white.

The range of possibilities reflects the tastes of individual home owners, so these often are personal and unique. Carefully evaluate your tastes and lifestyle and tell an interior designer, if you use one, your preferences before embarking on a decorating adventure. You don't want to end up with a home that makes you feel ill at ease or like you're living in a magazine advertisement.

After evaluating your tastes and lifestyle, consider the architecture of the room. If it seems inappropriate to the themes you like, remodeling is a possibility.

When designer Rena Fortgang took on a redesign of an oversize pantry, she realized that although the dimensions could allow it to be a dining area, it would work better as an adjunct to the large kitchen beyond. Wanting to maintain the architectural details, she set about creating a cozy atmosphere from the long, narrow space with high ceilings.

Since the home is surrounded by gardens and the owners were horticulturists, Fortgang sensed the need for a flower room so she chose a floral theme.

To visually widen the room, white ceramic tiles were installed diagonally, interspersed with pine planks every three rows. A floral pattern was stenciled on the planks. A diminutive posy wallpaper brings the room a sense of intimacy without destroying the oversize cabinets. To complete the floral theme, back-splashes were created from multicolored Italian ceramic tiles.

Designers Douglas Myers and Allen Scruggs brought contrasting textures together to make a bedroom seem like an old-fashioned villa. The walls, imitating the exterior plaster of a water-stained villa, are smooth and cracked, showing shades of terra-cotta and chalk. Exterior Italian ceramic tile with a granular appearance adds to the texture contrasts of the room.

A French-polished birch bed framed by a mesh canopy and strings of softly lit bulbs crisscrossing the room invoke the feeling of a Mediterranean garden in the evening.

In designing his teenage son's bedroom, Gerald Tomlin of the American Society of Interior Designers needed to combine the delicacies of the electronic age with the raw power of the Dallas Cowboys football team, which the 13-year-old admired. Color was the key.

Clean, white tubular shelving and storage cabinets house the study area, computer, stereo system and an array of sports memorabilia. The bed and chaise with electronic and computer controls are surrounded by gray carpeting.

Major walls were covered in silver vinyl perforated to simulate pigskin, while opposite walls, covered in heavy blue nylon twill fabric, provide tackboard surface for posters and pennants. The room functions as a multipurpose study, television, computer, sleeping and display space.

Even if the posters and mementos were removed, the well-known blue-and-white theme — with a touch of silver — would represent the colors of the Dallas sports club.

Thermostats Are Key To Savings

Thermostats are the key to how much energy is used in the home, turning the furnace or air conditioner on and off. If improperly or carelessly adjusted, or if poorly situated and not working efficiently, thermostats can waste a great deal of energy and keep the house much less comfortable than it could be.

If your heating and cooling bills are eating away at your budget, you may be interested in the following tips, which can reduce those bills as much as 35 percent.

The first step is as simple as making sure that the thermostat is mounted where air temperature around it is typical of the entire house. If the thermostat is mounted near a fireplace, heating vent, oven or even a television set, it may not call for heat when the rest of the house is chilly. If mounted near an often-opened window or door, it may call for heat — or cooling — that is not necessary.

Thermostats also are affected by accumulations of dust and lint, so keep them clean. And thermostats tend to lose efficiency as they age. Experts recommend replacing a thermostat that is more than 10 to 15 years old, as it probably is not working as efficiently as it should. Newer models react faster, minimizing overheating or under-heating.

Another way to reduce energy costs is to use your thermostat wisely. Some test results claim that turning the thermostat down by 10 degrees Fahrenheit for eight hours in a 24-hour period, at night, for example, can save 10 to 12 percent in heating costs. Setting it back twice in the same time period will save 17 to 20 percent.

The opportunity for these savings often is missed, however, because people forget to turn down the thermostat. Computerized thermostats can be programmed to make adjustments for you. Most programmable thermostats can be plugged into existing wires.

Programmable thermostats offer the advantage of making adjustments while you sleep or are away from home, which means the house is already at a comfortable temperature when you wake up or return.

Usually, the savings provided by an automatic thermostat in one winter is more than the cost of the unit, say spokesmen for Quad Six Inc., manufacturer of the All-Seasons computerized thermostat.

Color Goes A Long Way Toward Improving Decor

In some cases, interior designers start work before houses are built, joining with architects and owners to create atmospheres suited to the layout of the house and how the room should be used by the people living there.

Most home and apartment dwellers don't have that opportunity.

For many, home may be a modest-size apartment or condominium with homogenized white walls, bland carpet and varying colors and styles of furniture.

It doesn't have to be that way. Color, when properly used, can reveal the style of the owner, say designers whose livelihood is their advice and knowledge of shades and textures tailored to people's desires.

"People just won't accept white walls anymore," said Carol Goldman of Pegasus Architecture and Design in La Jolla, Calif. "Just because you were born with white walls, you don't have to live with them."

Goldman, who has a master's degree in psychology, recommends paint as the cheapest way and one of the best ways to make a statement with color in the home. Painted walls usually are the foundation for the interior design of an apartment or condominium.

Often, the best way to choose a paint for your home or apartment is to take a look at your wardrobe, designers said. The colors you look best wearing — blues, tans, greens, yellows, pinks — often will be the colors you should consider for the interior of your house, they said.

Goldman recommends taking a large patch of paint home — a good paint store will provide a 9-by-12-inch card covered with selected paint — and tacking it to a wall that will be painted. That's the best way to see if the paint that looks good in the store will look good on the walls.

When choosing colors, the following questions should be considered: How will the room be used? Who will be using it? How much time will be spent there?

It's more important to have a cohesive, carefully coordinated color scheme in a small house or apartment than in a sprawling mansion, designers said. A large house can absorb widely varied colors from room to room, Goldman said, while the same color scheme would make a small house appear cluttered and confused.

For a smaller dwelling, Goldman recommended choosing one neutral color to be used throughout the house, with two other colors used to "play off" the central color.

By varying the tones, textures and patterns of those three colors, each room can have its own distinct mood while being a part of the central theme of the entire house.

There are some basic rules.

Frank H. Mahnke of Mahnke and Mahnke Color Consultants of San Diego said scientific tests have shown color can affect our mood, sense of size and time. For example:

— MOODS. Warm colors — oranges, reds, yellows — stimulate cheerfulness, increased activity and alertness.

Cool colors — light greens and blues — are less distracting and encourage the ability to concentrate.

— SIZE OF A ROOM. If you want to make a room appear larger, use light colors. Dark colors make a room seem to shrink.

Warm colors and large patterns also make a room appear smaller, while cool colors and small patterns do the opposite.

— PERCEPTION OF TIME. A warm-colored environment will tend to make an individual overestimate time. These colors would be properly used in areas where the appearance of slow motion would be desirable. Cool colors seem to make time go faster and should be used in areas where monotonous or routine tasks are performed.

— STRENGTH OF COLOR. Strong, brilliant colors tend to become fatiguing and distracting over a period of time. Weak colors give the impression of calmness; strong colors are perceived as exciting.

Tips On Buying A Carpet

Whether you're moving into a new home, refurbishing an older one or just redecorating, shopping for carpet can be a perplexing experience.

"Consumers have so many options in color, style and price that it's easy to get confused," says Marti Hill, fashion director at Galaxy Carpet Mills Inc. "Your lifestyle and pocketbook should provide some guidelines for your purchase.

"What is the room used for? Play? Entertainment? Study? Before a salesperson can assist you, you should have a good idea of your needs and your budget."

It is essential that carpeting be suited to the use and wear it will get. High-use areas, such as family rooms, hallways and stairs, will get more traffic than a sitting room or bedroom. Hill suggests that families with children consider the durability of nylon carpets that have soil, stain and static resistance built into the fiber. With proper care, these carpets will maintain their original appearance despite the wear and tear of an active family.

When discussing your carpet needs with your salesperson be ready, Hill advises, to answer questions like these:

— How many children will be using the room and how often?

— Will pets be allowed in the room?

— Will the family be eating and drinking in the room?

— Will the room or rooms be used for play, entertainment, study or sleep?

— How important is elegance? Maintenance? Cleanup?

— Is the room generally colder than the rest of the house? If so, urethane backing can help take the chill off the floor.

Once you decide what kind of carpeting is needed, the next decision is how much is needed. According to Hill, shoppers can buy more efficiently if they follow these steps:

— Carefully measure the longest dimensions of the room you plan to carpet with a steel tape measure. "Pacing off" a room is never a good way to measure for carpeting.

— A carpet retailer usually can provide a grid on which you can make a scale drawing of the room. Use it! It's an easy way to be accurate.

Do 'Spring' Cleaning Now

It may sound farfetched, but something as simple as spring cleaning can reduce your heating bills — especially if you do your "spring" cleaning during autumn.

According to Joseph J. Kawecki, an award-winning Ohio architect who specializes in passive solar homes, all windows and glass surfaces should be cleaned just as winter arrives rather than during the spring.

The reason: The sun's energy heats a home much more if windows are clean. Kawecki also recommends removing window screens during winter since the combined effects of a dirty window and screen can block out as much as 25 percent of the sun's energy and heat.

Conversely, in the spring, put those dirty screens back on and don't worry about cleaning the windows as this helps to keep the summer sun out and the house cooler.

Another unique way to save on heating costs without spending money is to redecorate with existing furniture, Kawecki says.

Place large chests, dressers, bureaus, wall units and bookcases against exterior walls to add another insulation space between the inside and outside. Also, relocating wall hangings, decorative rugs, framed posters and photos to cold exterior walls reduces the heat flow and keeps heat in longer.

Equally important, hang mirrors on outside walls. Since they reflect heat as well as light, they'll reflect heat back into a room instead of out a window.

One of Kawecki's best bits of advice is the most simple. He says people can save money each day when taking a hot bath, shower or using the sink by leaving the hot water standing until it turns cool. The heat will radiate into the home. More importantly, the escaping moisture will add humidity to dry homes closed for winter.

If you have ceiling and furnace fans, keep them running year-round and you'll actually save money in heating and cooling since they will stabilize inside temperatures by preventing warm air from stratifying on the ceiling, Kawecki says.

As simple as these bits of advice are, the end result will be savings of anywhere from 5 to 20 percent of heating and cooling costs, Kawecki says.

Some additional inexpensive tips to save on fuel costs include:

— Planting evergreens next to the foundation on the east, west and north sides of a home to act as a buffer against winter winds.

— Using a textured or reflective wallpaper on exterior walls to add to the insulation.

— Using rough wood, masonry or stucco both on the inside and outside of exterior walls. Any rough surface reduces the flow of heat.

Bundle Up To Save A Bundle

Winter heating bills can give you the shivers, but a little planning can save a lot of paying. All around the house there are ways to bundle up that don't cost a bundle, like these ideas from the Fiber Information Center:

— Cold bed? Instead of using an electric blanket that can run up your electric bill, put a thermoreflector sheet made of alumin-ized polyester beneath the bottom sheet. It works by bouncing your body heat back to you, creating cozy warmth throughout the night.

— Drafty doors or windows? Make or buy a fabric sausage stuffed with polyester fiberfill and move it from room to room as needed. Lay it along a windowsill or at the bottom of a door.

— Old-fashioned radiators let heat out through walls. Place a reflector shield behind the radiator to reflect heat into the room. It's inexpensive to buy, or you can make one from double-duty aluminum foil over cardboard or thin wood. It slips out of sight.

— Choose lined draperies. Look for backings of foam, nylon tricot, polyester flannel-like fabric or reflective material. They all will save on heating bills. Also, don't remove summer sheer curtains when you hang winter drapes — the extra layer of fabric at the window makes excellent insulation.

— Baby yourself with an adult bunting. Just insert a zipper on the long side of a twin-size bed comforter and sew along the bottom. You can snuggle into your bunting to watch TV. Pull down the zipper partially and your arms are free to read or study. Comforters plump with fiberfill are warm, non-allergenic and easy to wash.

— Thermal underwear is not for ski slopes only. Long underwear made of polypropylene is lightweight, warm and doesn't feel clammy. Wear it around the house under a robe or your clothing and you can keep the thermostat turned down.

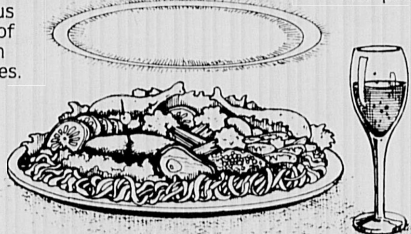

— Let children cuddle up with a hot water bottle covered with washable acrylic fleece in cute animal shapes — make your own from a half-yard of fabric and felt scraps.

At $11.95, our Sunday brunch is a small miracle.

Something very special happens every Sunday from 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM. Some may call it brunch, but you'll discover that it's much more. Not only will you feast to your heart's content on specialties like Steamship Round and Eggs Benedict. And help yourself to unlimited trips to our salad bar. You can also watch as our chef prepares your favorite omelets before your very eyes. For dessert, you'll find a luscious array of French pastries.

Because we know that a brunch like this is a celebration, we'll offer you a complimentary glass of champagne. And while we wine and dine you, our harpist will play music so beautiful, you may forget you're on earth.

You'll agree that for $11.95, our Sunday brunch is a small miracle. And so will your children, because the "little angels" can feast for half price.

Bay State Fall Foliage 1984

It's Almost Time To Hit The Roads To See The Majestic Colors Of Autumn. Here Are The Best Routes In Massachusetts

Massachusetts will soon show its fall foliage colors as the autumn leaves turn to hues of bright red, yellow and orange. This phenomenon of blazing colors occurs in just a few regions in the world and Massachusetts has the perfect climate and abundance of hardwood forests to produce a spectacular display.

Though foliage brilliance and timing are difficult to predict, peak color usually coincides with Columbus Day weekend, depending on how early the mercury dips and how much rainfall has occurred. The most brilliant color appears after cold sunny weather that has shown no prolonged frost, while an early, severe frost or rain can blacken the multi-colored leaves.

The best time for foliage viewing in the Berkshire Hills is usually the first two weeks of October. In eastern Massachusetts, foliage usually crests in mid-October. The foliage cycle takes about three weeks and peak colors last for three to four days. For the most up-to-date information on the percentage of color in various regions of the state, call the Spirit of Massachusetts Foliage Hotline at 1-800-632-8038 (in-state) or 1-800-343-9072 (out-of-state).

Weekends and Columbus Day bring the greatest number of foliage viewers to Massachusetts. To avoid heavy traffic, travel on weekdays, or take the back roads and country lanes on weekends. There are sightseeing buses out of Boston (617) 536-4100 and the Mystic Valley Railway runs a train from Boston west to Pittsfield, with many stops in-between, for those who prefer not to drive (617-361-4445).

The Berkshires

The hills and valleys of the Berkshires offer some of the most spectacular foliage views found anywhere. One can travel by car or by foot to Massachusetts' highest peak, Mt. Greylock, near the town of Adams, or head south to view the fall display from Monument Mountain in Great Barrington where Herman Melville and Nathaniel Hawthorne first met. A hike along the Appalachian Trail to the summit of Mt. Everett will reveal the entire Housatonic Valley.

The south Berkshires offer an unusual variety of visual pleasures — waterfalls like Umpachene in New Marlborough and Bash Bish in Mount Washington, Bartholomew's Cobble in Ashley Falls and Chesterwood, the estate of sculptor Daniel Chester French in Stockbridge.

To celebrate the fall colors, the Berkshire Garden in Stockbridge hosts a Fall Harvest Festival October 6 and the nearby town of Lenox Stages its annual "Apple Squeeze" on the same weekend.

For a mapped guide of six foliage tours and a detailed guide to lodging and restaurants, contact the Berkshire Vacation Bureau, Berkshire Common Plaza Level, 20 Elm St., Pittsfield 01201, 413-443-9186.

The Mohawk Trail

The most famous foliage route in Massachusetts is the Mohawk Trail, that part of Route 2 that runs west from Orange to North Adams. The Trail, the original trade route to Albany and one of the first roads in the country designed for automobile touring, includes the French King Bridge which spans the Connecticut River, the enchanting Bridge of Flowers in Shelbourne Falls and the Bissel Covered Bridge at Charlemont. For more information, on the 100 attractions along the Trail, contact the Mohawk Trail Association, P.O.B. 7, North Adams 01347, 413-663-3205.

Two less-traveled roads, Route 116 and Route 9, wind through the rural villages of Franklin County and the Pioneer Valley.

Franklin County

Route 116 passes through the picturesque towns of Conway (which celebrates its Festival of the Hills September 29-30) and Ashfield (where a Fall Festival welcomes visitors October 6-7). Nearby, the living museum village of Historic Deerfield hosts an annual Fall Craft Fair September 22-23.

On Route 163 in Northfield one can board the Quinnetukut II for a descriptive river tour of the Upper Connecticut River Valley.

For more information, including two "Shunpiking" brochures, contact the Franklin County Chamber of Commerce, P.O.B. 790, Greenfield, 01302, 413-773-5463.

Pioneer Valley

Another less-traveled path is Route 9. Beginning in Pittsfield, Route 9 leads through the village centers of Goshen and Cummington and through the college towns of Northampton and Amherst. Nearby is the Quabbin Reservoir, the country's largest man-made lake used exclusively to store drinking water.

More than eleven miles of winding road along the water's edge in Pelham, Belchertown and Barre offer enticing views of autumnal beauty with convenient parking. On the Quabbin, near New Salem, there is a prime eagle-watching area.

For a foliage map and the listing of the many bed and breakfasts in the area, contact the Pioneer Valley Association, P.O.B. 749, Northampton, 01061, 413-586-0321.

Springfield

For a spectacular autumnal view of the lower Connecticut Valley one can hike or ride the chairlift to the summit of Mt. Tom in Holyoke. Nearby West Springfield holds the Big "E," New England's biggest fair September 12-23 and the "Spirit of Springfield" Triathlon September 30.

Contact the Springfield Convention and Visitor's Bureau, 1500 Main Street, Springfield, 01115, 413-787-1548.

Worcester County

The rolling countryside of central Massachusetts is ablaze with color by the second week in October, a time for biking the byways of the Nashoba Valley's orchard towns. It's a perfect time to sample the harvest at "pick your own" orchards and at farm-stands laden high with pumpkins and apples.

Mt. Wachusett in nearby Princeton provides a sweeping view of this area and can be reached on foot or by car.

Contact the Worcester County Convention and Visitor's Bureau, 350 Mechanics Tower, Worcester, 01608, 617-753-2924.

Greater Boston

To view the visual feast of colorful foliage close to Boston, visit Drumlin Farms Wildlife Sanctuary on Route 117 in Lincoln, the Broadmore/Little Pond Wildlife Sanctuary on Route 16 in South Natick/Sherborn and the Blue Hills Reservation and Trailside Museum on Route 138 in Milton.

Contact the Greater Boston Convention and Tourist Bureau, Prudential Plaza West, P.O.B., 490, Boston, 617-536-4100.

North of Boston

North of Boston, the 2500-acre Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary has meadows, swamps, ponds and islands to delight a foliage audience. Autumn begins on the North Shore with the Topsfield Fair, the oldest county fair in the country, from September 29 to October 8.

World-famous for its witch-lore, Salem hosts "Haunted Happenings," a weeklong celebration that culminates on Halloween night with a Witches Ball.

Contact the North of Boston Tourist Council, P.O.B. 3031, Peabody 01960, Peabody 01960, 617-532-1449.

Southeastern Massachusetts

In southeastern Massachusetts, foliage colors are heightened by the ruby brilliance of cranberry bogs at harvest. A train ride aboard the Edaville Railroad in South Carver circles a bog, giving visitors a glimpse of the fascinating "wet harvesting" process. A special Cranberry festival is held there September 22-23 and 29-30 (617-866-4526).

At nearby Plimouth Plantation, "villagers" abandon their daily chores and welcome visitors to their Harvest Home Celebration, the forerunner of our modern Thanksgiving, October 6-8 (617-746-1622).

Elsewhere in southeastern Massachusetts, Taunton celebrates the 210th anniversary of the raising of the Union Flag on Taunton Green on October 21, and North Easton holds their Harvest Fair October 7.

Contact the Bristol County Development Council, 70 N. Second St., New Bedford 02741, 617-997-1250.

Cape Cod and the Islands

More cranberry bogs can be viewed from aboard the Cape Cod/Hyannis Railway, which links Braintree on the South Shore with towns on the Upper Cape (617-771-1145).

Come September the summer crowds diminish on Cape Cod and the islands, yet days remain sunny and warm well into October and off-season prices prevail. There are Harvest Festivals in Falmouth and Hyannis and a Scallop Festival in Chatham, all on Columbus Day weekend.

For more information, contact the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce, Hyannis 02601, 617-362-3225.

Addendum For Serious "Leaf Peepers"

According to Indian legend, red leaves symbolize the killing of the Great Bear of the Heavens and yellow leaves represent the cooking fires, the scientific explanation is that the colors are already present in the leaves but are hidden by the green chlorophyll which produces summer growth.

Warm sunny days and cool nights of early Fall cause production of a corky substance that blocks the flow of water to the leaves. Without water, chlorophyll breaks down and the sugar that remains in the leaves creates vibrant shades; oak, sumac and black cherry trees turn crimson; the mountain ash varies from yellow to scarlet; the birch wears a golden mantle and sugar maples turn from yellow to orange.

Blackpounder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North South Kirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4 x 4 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

DON'T FORGET CLOSING COSTS

You have saved $20,000 and now want to buy a home or condominium in the $100,000 range because you hear that you'll need a 20% down payment. If that is the last penny of your savings, you had better set your sights a little lower. You do not want to get into a financial bind due to closing costs. You should know exactly what they will be BEFORE you commit all of your savings for the down payment. Closing costs, which include but are not limited to a title search, prepayment of taxes and interest, attorney's fees and documentation preparation, will vary from sale to sale.

Lenders are required to provide you with a good faith estimate of closing costs within three days of your application. Then you'll have a good idea of what the additional expenses will be before passing title.

Although closing expenses cannot be pinpointed to the penny until the actual passing, an experienced Realtor can provide you with a reasonable estimate of such costs for an anticipated purchase at any time.

Why You Should Use Your Local Realtor

First, the owner has the benefit of consistent and intelligent advertising of his property at no cost to him.

Second, the owner has the enthusiastic efforts of our entire sales force concentrating on the sale of his property.

Third, the broker assumes an obligation to look out for the owner's best interests until he has worked out a satisfactory sale.

Keep Your Cool In Laundry Room

Easy-care fabrics of man-made fibers or fiber blends can save energy, time and heat on wash day and get you out of the laundry room faster, according to the Fiber Information Center, a service of the Man-Made Fiber Producers Association.

The biggest cost in doing a load of laundry is heating water, so every degree you lower the temperature saves money. Check labels on clothing, sheets and tablecloths. In most cases, if they are made of nylon, polyester, acrylic or olefin, you can lower your wash temperature to warm or even cold with excellent results.

If you use cooler temperatures, detergents should be added to the washer before the clothing or dissolved in warm or hot water first.

Here are some other ways to save on energy and time when wash day comes around.

- If you live in a hard water area, you can still get a satisfactory wash in warm water if you increase the amount of detergent.

- Save washing until you have a full load. Little loads waste water unless you set the flow to a low level.

- Always rinse in cold water.

Fabrics of man-made fibers and blends also can make drying more energy efficient because they take less time to dry than all-natural fabrics.

- Don't overdry bedding or clothing. Even easy-care garments will need some ironing if they are dried too long. Save money by drying all man-made fiber items first for a short cycle. Remove them, then load up the already warm dryer with more absorbent items such as towels.

- Don't leave acrylic jogging suits in a crumpled heap in the laundry basket after they have been washed and dried. Remove them promptly from a short run in the dryer and place on a hanger. That way they won't wrinkle and won't need ironing.

- Manufacturers often suggest you wash pleated polyester dresses in warm water and then tumble dry at a low temperature for just a few minutes. If you promptly remove the dresses from the dryer, the heat-set pleats will continue to look crisp for years.

- Look for some of the new fibers, like polypropylene, being used for lingerie. You literally can squeeze them dry with your hands.

Here Are Some Decorating Ideas You Can Copy

Much of the charm of a country home begins with architectural details. In the old mill, beautiful weathered beams are left exposed in every room. If your house is long on wallboards and short on woodwork, a trip to the lumberyard is definitely in order. Add beams, picture moldings, chair rails, wainscoting or baseboards, then check the wreckers for a fine old mantelpiece, newel post or any odd piece your house could profit from.

Once architectural details are in place, find furniture that fits. With its historic past, the old mill was tailor-made for traditional furnishings. Its interior, designed by Pennsylvania House Design Director Tom Burak, makes good use of classic styles and mixes oak and pine.

For the living room Burak chose to leave the wide pine plank floor bare and balance it with comfortable pieces upholstered in coordinating country prints.

The dining room features an oak table and ladder-back chairs with rush seats. An Oriental area rug leaves plenty of pretty pine floor in view but helps mute dinnertime din. A china cabinet, also oak, is filled with pewter and crockery and is flanked by a pair of unusual candle sconces.

In the bedroom there's space enough for a queen-size pine mid-poster and armoire as well as a cozy seating group at the foot of the bed. The owner's collection of folk art quilts are on display on the bed and on the brass-and-oak quilt rack.

Once you have the basics, have fun with the easy extras that contribute lots of country atmosphere but aren't necessarily expensive or elaborate.

- Decorate a vine wreath to fit any season with dried statice and baby's breath, bittersweet berries, tiny gourds, Stewart plaid ribbon, miniature cookie cutters, china hearts or little American flags.

- Spatter a floor: Paint it a primary color like blue, then spatter with the room's accent colors — leaf green, buttercup yellow or raspberry. Top with several coats of polyurethane.

- Make your own rag rug from calico remnants. Tear the fabric into strips, sew them together and crochet with a rug-size crochet hook. Finish with fringe.

- Frame old family photos in dime store frames that you've covered with fabric or painted like wood.

A free 240-page book from a local Pennsylvania House dealer will give you even more decorating ideas as well as helpful hints on how to shop for furniture. To find out where to get yours, write to Chris Rantz, Pennsylvania House, Lewisburg, PA 17837.

Home Care Questions And Answers

Q. We are planning some home improvements which include some extensive remodeling and a room addition. We plan to do the work ourselves and with the help of friends.

My question is, on do-it-yourself projects such as this, is it necessary to obtain a building permit?

— Ward H.T.

A. Yes. Definitely so. Too many home owners begin major home improvements before checking their local building codes.

A leading New York regional credit and finance company, which finances a large volume of home improvement loans, has found through experience that the majority of owners are but vaguely aware of strict building codes governing most areas in urban and suburban areas throughout the nation.

A spokesman writes that there is hardly a home project which isn't ruled, one way or another, by local building codes. More likely than not, he says a home owner will need a permit before he or any hired labor can pick up a hammer, nail or trowel.

This spokesman offers the following list of home improvements that almost inevitably require a building permit in most areas of the nation:

- Building a barbecue with chimney more than 6 feet high.
- Walling, attaching a patio or roofing to the house.
- Any home addition estimated to cost more than $100.
- Installation of plumbing or electrical wiring, either inside or outside the house.
- Drilling a well or putting in a lawn sprinkler system.
- Building a pool deeper than 24 inches.
- Adding living quarters to a house that is changed from a single-family dwelling to a multiple dwelling.
- Building a retaining wall more than 4 feet high.
- Building a carport or garage, or changing the use of a garage.

The best advice of all, if one is planning an improvement project, is to check authorities in the building department of your local jurisdiction. They can advise whether or not you need a permit, and fill you in on any other building restrictions. Failing to comply with zoning regulations also often gets home owners into trouble.

One of the most common violations applies to owners deciding to convert a garage into a second family living quarters, or the addition of a second story for such purpose.

The example is cited of an owner who, after spending several thousands of dollars on such a conversion, promptly ran into trouble with local authorities and then was forced to abandon his plan and utilize the space himself. He then had a large house without a garage.

Q. I have been wanting to paint my concrete basement floor but I do not want to use muriatic acid to etch the surface because of the fumes.

In one of your columns, you advised a reader to use concrete stain around a poolside surface. Would that work well on a basement floor? Could it be stained without acid? And can it be stained after a floor is old?

What would the product be called? Do most paint stores have it? — Verona S., New Long, Minn.

A. Today's concrete stains are solutions that react chemically with the lime in concrete to give permanent coloring. They penetrate the concrete, and cannot peel or wear away as a painted surface coat can.

The color choice is limited, however, generally earth shades of red, rust, green, tan, brown and black.

Cleaning the basement floor surface for staining often requires only a good scrubbing with water and trisodium phosphate, which is the best choice, or with water and a detergent to remove dirt, small oil spots or other foreign material.

Old concrete surfaces can be stained after proper cleaning, provided they had not previously been painted.

Stains and paints for concrete are available at building supply stores and masonry supply houses. Be sure to follow container instructions carefully for whatever stain or paint you use.

Q. I have an old dining table with a veneer top. There are two places where the veneer has become loose, making two small raised patches or areas, about 3 inches in diameter. Both areas are near the center of the top. Is there any way of making a repair? —

Amy J.D.

A. As a rule, veneer blisters such as you describe are quite easily repaired by simply cutting through the veneer across the blister with a very sharp knife or a safety razor blade (the type having a single edge). Work carefully to prevent splitting or otherwise damaging the veneer.

Once you get it cut through, pry it carefully apart at the cut and force glue under both halves. Then place about three thicknesses of heavy paper over the area and weight it until dry. You will need a fairly heavy weight, something weighing at least 25 pounds.

After the glue is dry — and allow plenty of time — lift off the weight, and remove adhering portions of the paper with a damp cloth. Sand the surface smooth and refinish to match the balance of the top. Treat both blisters in the same manner.

Q. Regarding your column early in March, you spoke of refurbishing fiberglass panels with "CI Brushable Resurfacer" from Chemiglas Inc. of San Diego.

We have tried unsuccessfully to get a telephone number for Chemiglas Inc. or to locate the product in the Los Angeles area. Could you please provide further assistance in obtaining this information? — John D.

A. Sorry, but this company must have gone out of business. We have had numerous inquiries such as yours, but have been unable to make any contact or find any traces of the company. Our information originally came from a brochure published by the company named above.

We have recently discovered another product called "Gel-Glass, which is a fiberglass cleaner and sealer, but not a new finish. This is manufactured by T.R. Industries, P.O. Box 1533, Lynwood, CA. This product should be available at many paint dealers.

We regret the misleading information previously published.

Q. I put linseed oil on a piece of unfinished furniture I bought recently. The surface is still tacky. What caused this and what can I do about it? — Clay B.

A. There are two things that must be done after the application of linseed oil. All excess should be wiped off after a minute and then vigorous rubbing is necessary to work the oil into the wood.

Did you neglect either or both of these steps? If so, to correct the condition, rub the surface thoroughly with turpentine until the tackiness is gone. Then apply a new coat of linseed oil, mixing two parts of it with one of turpentine.

Wipe off the excess, rub for about 15 minutes and wait 24 hours, then rub it well again.

Q. Can a water stain on a painted plaster ceiling or wall be repainted with interior latex paint? — Bill K.W.

A. Yes, it can, if the ceiling is first treated with shellac or stain sealer made specifically for this purpose. It is available at paint stores. The sealant will keep the stain from creeping through the paint.

Q. I have an aluminum patio chair that leaves a black stain on clothing. A grayish coating covers the metal. What is this and how can I prevent it? — Tex W. W.

A. An oxide coating forms on many metals exposed to the atmosphere, especially aluminum. The only thing you can do about — and it is only a stopgap cure — is clean the metal and coat the "wear" surfaces with a metal lacquer. Any clean finishing material will do, but genuine metal lacquer will give you the best results.

Q. Can hardboard panels be used on walls around a bathtub? — Clare J.H.

A. Yes, but get the kind that have a plastic surface.

Q. In poor judgment, I had parquet wood floor tiles installed in the kitchen. Now I find that water drippings and spilling of liquids make it almost impossible to care for or keep the floor waxed properly.

Can these tiles be varnished or lacquered to retain a shiny look? — G.C.H.

A. After thorough cleaning, the floor can be varnished with a spar or marine type varnish, which is more resistant to water.

If the present finish is in poor shape, I suggest that you first sand the floor before applying any varnish. However, this type of wood floor is never suitable in kitchen or bathroom areas.

Q. I have a 3-by-5-foot mirror in the bathroom over the sink. Water has splashed up under the mirror, I think, and the reflecting agent on the mirror has begun to peel away.

Can this be repaired or must I buy a new mirror? — G.R.M., El Cajon, Calif.

A. It is possible to have a mirror resilvered, but that would probably be more expensive than replacing the mirror.

Resilvering is not a do-it-yourself project as it takes special equipment.

Q. I have a Formica top on my dark wood dining table. It picks up grease spots from handprints.

I washed the table with soapy water, but spots are still there. What can you recommend?

Is there a wax to protect Formica? — Mrs. E.H., Minneapolis, Minn.

A. Best thing to do would be to consult the dealer or manufacturer of the specific laminated plastic you have as to the treatment.

Try cleaning with a liquid cleaner for plastics, available at houseware dealers, following label directions carefully. Or use an auto cleaning wax, in cream or paste form, not liquid, and also carefully follow the manufacturer's directions.

Gel-Gloss cleaner and polish which is used on fiberglass, marble and synthetic marble could be used, which cleans as well as polishes.

Q. Would you please tell me how to remove a lot of built-up wax from the kitchen and porch vinyl tile? — M.N.

A. There are many good strippers for floors in the supermarkets. Choose one for your type of floor. Before using, make sure the floor is thoroughly cleaned and dry. Then you can apply a new coat of wax.

Q. Will any paint regardless of its composition benefit from an undercoat of oil-base primer, particularly acrylics? — William A.L.

A. You should always follow instructions on the paint container you are using. It will tell you whether a primer is needed. Some paints require a primer, some do not.

Computers Go Into Unused Spaces

Computers are turning out to have an unexpected advantage for their owners today in solving a problem that has plagued home owners for years.

The problem is unused or underused spaces, such as alcoves or odd-size rooms. With the growing prevalence of computers in homes, many of these spaces can be transformed into ideal work-places for the budding computer enthusiast or the emerging home business person — provided the home owner knows a few basic considerations in making such a conversion.

One of the primary considerations is having the right furniture. "For the most economical use of space, one of these rooms really should have a desk built especially for use with computers," says Paul Edwards, a business consultant in Sierra Madre, Calif.

"Anybody who is the least bit handy with tools can build one of these desks pretty easily," says Edwards. "or you can buy one for about $100 to $300."

It's important for the desk to have holes in the back for computer wiring, storage spaces for paper and other supplies and special places for computer accessories such as a printer or a telephone modem.

If the space to be converted has a window, the computer should face away from it or be protected by heavy curtains. Direct sunlight can interfere with computer operations.

Personal computers run on standard household electrical current, so they can be installed in any room with an outlet. Also, "computers should be installed in rooms with phone lines or where phone lines can easily be added," advises Scot Edwards, manager of marketing services for Epson America Inc., a manufacturer of computer printers and personal computers. "We've found that many users eventually want to add a modem — a device that lets them transmit and receive data via the phone lines."

While almost any indoor space can be converted to a computer workplace if it is large enough, it's not a good idea to use enclosed porches, breezeways or other areas exposed to the elements.

"Dust and rain are enemies of computers," says Edwards. "Either one can seriously damage the machine."

Static electricity can cause damage, too, so home owners in especially dry areas may want to invest in anti-static carpeting or in anti-static aerosol spray.

Home owners can show great imagination in converting odd spaces into computer rooms — alcoves, closets and nooks of all kinds can be transformed into work spaces.

Such imagination, of course, someday may be unnecessary. If the trend toward conversions continues, architects probably will start designing homes with special computer rooms.

By the time that happens, however, technology no doubt will have created something else that will fit in troublesome spaces.

Tips For Refinishing Wood

Wood lovers have a dilemma to face — how to protect wood from everyday wear and tear without hiding its beauty.

Refinishing natural wood products is economical as it can protect the products from damage and prolong their life. And, according to officials at Minwax Co., a wood-finishing products manufacturer, it is easy to refinish outside or inside wood surfaces without hiding the wood grain or texture.

The first step in refinishing is to choose a finish appropriate for the look you want.

Spar urethane or other extra-tough clear finishes are recommended for outdoor wood surfaces which suffer particularly hard abrasion and abuse, such as patio furniture. These finishes allow the natural beauty of the wood to show through while protecting the surface from chipping, cracking, sun, water, salt and air pollution. This type of preservative also enriches the look of wood grain and allows it to color naturally over the years.

Other options for exterior wood refinishing projects are semitransparent wood finishes, which enrich the look, color and wood grain texture and serve both as a stain and a preservative. Solid color finishes subdue grains but enhance the natural texture of the wood. If you're not sure which exterior finishing product is proper for your particular needs, check with your local hardware dealer.

Before applying an exterior wood finish product, read directions carefully and make sure the wood is clean and dry. Then use either a brush, roller or sprayer, depending on the texture of the surface you're finishing.

Rollers work well on smooth surfaces and brushes are better for shakes and clapboards. If working on a house, start at the top and work your way down. Careful application ensures the wood finish will seal every crack and crevice in the wood.

For any project, leave off at a logical point, such as a corner, where overlapping finish will not show.

For indoor refinishing jobs, an antique refinisher will gently dissolve varnish, shellac, lacquer and

Town Engineer John Ciarcia Named Acting Town Manager

By JILL M. HIGGINS

Selectmen have appointed Town Engineer John H. Ciarcia as acting town manager, to replace Richard J. White, who will leave that post on Oct. 6 for a town government position in Bedford, Mass.

Ciarcia, who joined the Winchester engineer crew on June 15, 1983, as an engineering assistant, has worked in several capacities in the town engineering department. He was named Assistant Town Engineer in 1967 and has been Town Engineer since 1970.

White, who became Acting Town Manager in July after the resignation of Thomas J. Groux, announced his resignation more than three weeks ago. Groux, who left the post after serving since 1975, is now a dean at Middlesex Community College in Burlington. Ciarcia expected to receive a salary of $50,000 per year and will begin his new job by Oct. 6. In other Selectmen's action, the board on Monday appointed James J. Courchaine, 32, of Concord, as Assistant Director of the town Department of Public Works. Courchaine, who has taught at Lowell University and has a private education services business, is expected to begin his job with the town within a few days. He was formerly operations manager for the water and sewer divisions in Concord.

Residents Jam Town Housing Hearing

By JILL HIGGINS and ERIC BLOM

Dungaree-clad teenagers joined forces with angry homeowners on Monday to stage a tough message to town officials: Winchester doesn't want forced low-income housing.

But after a two-hour meeting with the Housing Subcommittee, many residents said they doubt officials really listened to their concerns.

"I came away from the meeting tonight feeling that I am helpless. Big Brother is out there and we can't even control our little town of Winchester," said an angry Marilyn Preston of Highland Ave.

The subcommittee meeting, held Monday night in the town hall auditorium, was designed to inform residents about the town's progress on state-mandated low-income housing plans. However, few residents poked in favor of the plans.

Only hours after the hearing, Selectmen voted 3-2 to designate $30,000 for downtown renovation designs. The downtown project, the subject of many residents' ire at the hearing, is linked through state funding regulations, to the housing issue.

State officials have threatened to hold up a $740,000 downtown renovation grant unless the town comes through with its 1982 promise to provide a comprehensive housing policy.

The $740,000 grant, announced at a public ceremony with state officials in early September, is considered a key element in the rejuvenation of the downtown area.

The state's approval of the town's housing plan may also determine whether Winchester receives further funding for its 10-year water and sewer rehabilitation program, and for other state programs.

Upstairs in the Selectmen's room, where the board continued its regular session after the special hearing, the mood was heated over whether to spend the $30,000 for designs.

Selectman Michael D. Saraco, who voted with Chairman Mark Lombardi against the expenditure, said he doubted the move would reflect the opinion of the majority of townspeople.

"From what I saw of the people tonight," said an upset Saraco, "these people don't want to rush into the downtown project."

"They don't want to compromise on it for the housing. I'll tell you right now that I won't vote for this $30,000 gamble."

At the hearing, numerous residents said they would rather refuse state renovation funds than be forced to implement low-income housing.

Joseph F. Geary Jr., of Ridge St., was one of several people who chided local officials for putting the downtown project ahead of residents' concerns.

"I'm sorry to have to say this — I understand the merchants' situations — but I think we've done enough for downtown," shouted Geary, as the crowd applauded and cheered.

"You have the bright lights and the bricks and all that there. Now they want us to pretty up downtown — and rush into this low-income housing

FBI Probes Phony Video Game Racket

By JILL M. HIGGINS

An undercover FBI sting in which a 25-year-old Winchester man was arrested on Thursday is part of a major, nationwide crackdown on the sales of phony video games, according to a federal official.

Charles Roistacher, Assistant U.S. Attorney in Washington, D.C., said late Tuesday that the arrest of Farhad Soltani, owner of Fun Time Inc. of 400 Main St., is the result of an ongoing probe into video piracy.

Roistacher declined to elaborate, saying revealing plans of other investigations "would be to compromise a situation that could be dangerous."

Roistacher further refused to say whether there are any other suspects in or around Winchester. "I don't even know where Winchester is. Is that near Boston?"

Roistacher said Soltani will probably be indicted on charges of interstate transport of stolen goods "within a month or so."

Roistacher said Soltani, who was arrested in the simultaneous nationwide foisting Thursday after nearly a year of federal investigation, faces up to 10 years in jail and a $10,000 fine if convicted.

Debra Ramirez, of the U.S. Attorney's office in Boston, said that Soltani, one of five people arrested during simultaneous stings, is the only Massachusetts person arrested so far.

According to Ramirez, Boston Magistrate Robert DeGiacomo ordered a $50,000 non-surety (no cash) bail for Soltani, who was free late Thursday. Soltani, allegedly sold $5,700 worth of stolen video games to undercover agents Kevin Vincintis and Thomas Homan.

Ramirez refused to specify what items were confiscated in the raid and would not estimate the dollar value, saying "that information is not part of public record at this time."

However, she said, material allegedly sold to the FBI agents included an imitation of the game "Elevator Action," a product made by Taito America Corp.

According to Roistacher, the phony video market "is especially lucrative and costs legitimate companies millions of dollars every year."

It is a very profitable counterfeiting business," Roistacher added that the origin of the games linked to the Winchester case is uncertain at this point, but that often video kit material is illegally smuggled from Japan.

Chief Denies Charge

Phantom Letter Charges Drunk Driver Got Favor

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

An anonymous letter sent to the Selectmen this week accused Police Chief John McHugh of fixing the results of a breathalyzer test, and releasing a driver (whom the writer claimed was "definitely in a drunken condition") without any drunk driving charges.

The letter charged that on Aug. 25, the driver, Donald Connors of Woburn, "was arrested, and booked and was about to be bailed out by the Chief Clerk of Court in Woburn when Chief McHugh called his Sgt. and told him to administer a breathalyzer test and make sure that the driver walks out of the Police station with no drunk driving charge against him."

Selectmen took the matter under

Travel Expert Says Business Isn't A 'Flight Of Fancy'

By JILL HIGGINS

Pedro Patino leaned on ring-studded hands as he tried to describe his success in the travel business. The words came slowly, as he struggles to overcome the confines of his native Cuban accent.

"Let me try . . . to see if I can figure this one out," he says pensively. With the help of a friend, he recalls how his success began with a government loan that enabled him to open Colonial Travel Agency in Acton.

Last week, Patino held the grand opening of his new branch office on Main St. in downtown Winchester. As champagne bottles were uncorked in the crowded, classy office, Patino recalls how he fled Cuba after the U.S.

"It's important to look at each person's trip as if it were your own."

Ex-Teacher Makes Debut As Clothier

By JILL HIGGINS

Calista Clunan doesn't miss teaching one bit. After 13 years at Belmont High School, she's eager to explore the world of fashion beyond blue jeans.

As owner of the new Calista's clothing store on Thompson St., Clunan now totes up on Jones of New York instead of John Paul Jones.

In her shop filled with piles of argyles and rich wool suits, the sharp businesswoman easily advises customers on smart fashion coordinates.

A former Winchester resident, Clunan says that she can easily choose which clothes are likely to be popular here. She says much of her knowledge about clothes stems from observing local women's dress habits. The rest, she says, is just good old-fashioned advice from mom.

- Calista Clunan

"Classic clothing is always a good investment," she says. "I learned a lot about dressing well from my mother. She always chose my clothes for me when I was growing up, and although I often balked at it, I soon realized she was right. The basics — simple lines and colors that can be matched with numerous outfits — are still the best buy."

Thus, her simple, elegant style pervades the new shop in the heart of the newly renovated downtown area. Dressy, azure blue sweaters are neatly displayed alongside earthy, chalk-colored slacks. Crisp checkered fall skirts hang beside matching jackets; nearby are belts and accessories to complete the look.

As far as the shop's decor is concerned, Clunan spared nothing to create what she calls "the country look." She spent the summer combing antique barns throughout Maine and Connecticut for authentic relics of the garment industry.

In the middle of the shop sits a waist-high spool chest apparently used by seamstresses many years ago. Inside the aged, blonde wooden cabinet are tiny cubicles that once housed spool upon spool of precious thread.

"See," Clunan says, as she proudly displays her treasured antique. "There are labels here to mark the colors of thread stored here. I really thought this would be an interesting piece of furniture for this shop."

She explains that just as versatility is crucial to smart dressing, it also plays an important role in business sense.

(From Page 1)

against some of my employees; and I protect the town's interest, so people don't walk away with the store."

So, McHugh reasoned, he could expect some people in town to be unhappy with him. But he wasn't worried about the allegations. "You would think, if I had something to hide, that I'd make sure there was no public record," he said.

"Usually, if you're accused of something, there's a court and a trial," he added.

The public records — the incident card for the arrest, and the report to go with it — were readily available to the public when The Star checked Tuesday before speaking to the Chief.

According to the report in the file, Officer John Guarente responded to a radio call at 11:45 p.m. on Aug. 24, to investigate "a loud noise and possible accident" on Kenwin rd.

"On the evening of Aug. 25, late in the evening, I was walking my dog in the area of Kenwin rd.," the letter-writer said. "While walking the dog a car narrowly missed hitting me and my dog, but did hit and damage a sign post. The driver shouted some obscenities at me and then sped off."

Officer Guarente found a stop sign knocked down, but no car in sight, so Guarente wrote that he rounded the corner to Highland ave. and found a man — Connors, 26 — trying to change a flat tire.

Guarente reported "there was an odor of liquor on his (Connors') breath, and he was unsteady on his feet."

After some conversation with the man, Guarente determined that he had struck the sign and that he was driving under the influence of alcohol. Connors also could not find his license or registration when the officer asked for them.

Connors was arrested, charged with driving under the influence, and without his license and registration in his possession, and with knowingly leaving the scene of an accident in which property damage occurred.

He was brought to the station by Sgt. Alford and Officer Hesse, according to Guarente's report, and booked. Connors asked to use the phone.

Connors was then offered the breathalyzer test, which he agreed to take. (According to McHugh, "You lose either way — if you refuse the test, your license is suspended for 90 days; if you take it, the results can be used in court against you.")

Sgt. Culhane administered the test. "Donald had a result of .03 (percent blood alcohol content)" the report noted.

"Under .05 percent, the law assumes you are not drunk," McHugh said. "From .05 to .10 is a gray area — it calls for judgment by the officers. From .10 on up, you are considered drunk."

"The test was given and it was found that the driver, who I know from my own observation was definitely in a drunken condition, received a reading low enough to allow him (to) be released and have the drunk driving charge dropped," the letter-writer charged. "I also learned that he was then driven to the Woburn-Winchester line, and taken home via a Woburn Police car."

McHugh, who said he had not looked back at the report, did not remember specifics of the incident of fraud or whether the person was escorted home.

"What was that — a month ago?" he commented. He said the person's abilities might well have been affected by something other than alcohol, such as medication or other drugs that would make him act as if he were drunk.

"But to hold them because of drugs, we have to have some evidence," McHugh said. He did not know if Connors had been driven to the Woburn line by a cruiser.

"We have no legal obligation to bring people home; usually, we have someone pick them up," McHugh said. "But if their car is wrecked, or they have no ride, we sometimes help them out — we're good people."

(The letter-writer signed himself, "A concerned (lifelong) resident," after noting, "I always sign my name when writing you gentlemen (the Selectmen) and when writing The Star, but in this case I will decline for fear of retribution. I repeat, I don't want to believe that Chief McHugh would do such a thing — because we all know he wouldn't.")

Honors Announced

Six Are Named National Merit Semifinalists

Six seniors at Winchester High School have been named Semifinalists by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Michael Ault of 26 Mystic Valley pkwy., starts the list. He has an interest in the field of communications.

David A. Holt of 1 Legdewood rd. is a member of the swim team and volunteers his time at the Museum of Science and the New England Aquarium.

David J. Koffman of 8 Madison ave. west is active in sports as a member of the baseball, football and basketball teams.

Elizabeth K. Lee received the Wellesley and Smith College Awards as well as social studies and math awards in her junior year.

David J. O'Connor of 4 Sargent rd. is a pianist with an interest in sports that has been curtailed due to an injury.

Ravi K. Sharma of 37 Sargent rd. is active in the school radio station and plays the guitar.

The names of some 15,000 high school seniors representing all 50 states are being released today as Semifinalists in the 30th annual Merit Program, which is conducted by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). According to NMSC Principal Vincent E. Larooco, NMSC is publicly recognizing students in this select group as a means of spotlighting their academic talents and broadening their higher education opportunities. These semifinalists must advance to Finalist standing in order to continue in the competition for about 5,500 Merit Scholarships, valued at over 120 million, to be awarded in the spring.

The 1985 competition began last fall when over one million juniors attending some 18,000 secondary schools throughout the nation took the qualifying test, the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. The top scorers in each state, representing about half of one percent of the state's high school graduating class, are named Semifinalists.

To be considered for Merit Scholarships, Semifinalists must become Finalists by documenting high academic performance throughout high school, receiving the unqualified recommendation and endorsement of their principals, and confirming their earlier PSAT/NMSQT scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test; they also must provide information about themselves, including school and community activities and achievements, interests, and goals.

Over 13,500 of the Semifinalists are expected to meet the rigorous standards required to become Finalists, and about 40 percent of the distinguished Finalists will be offered Merit Scholarships.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of eastern Middlesex County staff has visited each of the some 63 sites in the 10 towns served by RSVP. To find the following volunteer opportunities listed at the RSVP office.

Greenhouse Advisor — Assist staff with year round operation of greenhouse on nursing home grounds — Lexington.

Aides/Assistants — athletic teams, Boys and Girls Club, Arlington; waiting room, Diagnostic and Research Center, Waltham; mail room, Diagnostic and Research Center, Waltham; vocational workshop, Arlington; food co-op, Cambridge.

Receptionists — Boys and Girls Club, Arlington; Senior Center, Cambridge, Watertown; Diagnostic and Research Center, Waltham.

Craftsmen, dress a Christmas doll,

Waltham; create special Christmas stockings for the blind, Belmont.

Community newspaper — all phases of production, Somerville.

Teachers/trainers — English language literacy program — Somerville; Crafts-train staff nursing home — Lexington; First Aid, CPR-Red Cross; Waltham, Burlington; Friendly Visitors; Nursing homes, Winchester, Woburn, Watertown, Lexington; Bridge players, nursing homes, all communities.

These listings are only a small part of all of the opportunities that exist. In addition, individuals may have a skill and interest which they wish to share. A call to 491-4533, Elaine Bloom or Harold Bejcek, can put an individual in touch with a preferred program or activity.

RSVP serves Arlington, Belmont, Winchester and seven other communities.

ABC Record Hop Is Set For Saturday

Three new students have joined the residents at the ABC House on Dix st. for the school year — Reinaldo Bustamante, Jermaine Jones and Hector Rios, all of the Bronx, N.Y.

With their arrival, there are 10 teenaged boys living in the ABC House as a family, while they attend Winchester High School through the ABC program.

ABC — A Better Chance — is a national program designed to provide academically talented minority students with better educational opportunities.

Winchester's students, all boys, live at 2 Dix st. with houseparents. (Other communities have ABC programs for girls.) Local families "adopt" the students, and take part in fund-raising efforts to support the ABC house activities.

The first fundraiser of the year is the "Kick-Off Record Hop" scheduled for Saturday night, 7:30-12, at St.

Eulalia's.

Music will be provided by "The Good Stuff," a team of disc jockeys with a collection of more than 4,000 recordings. A hot and cold buffet will be served.

Tickets for the event are available, in advance, at Craddock's Apothecary, or by calling Linda Sullivan or Jane d'Entremont.

Job Bank Offers Leaf Rakers, Cleaners

It's that time of year again; time for fall cleaning, raking the leaves, cleaning the yard, housecleaning, and other odd jobs. The Winchester Recreation Dept. Job Bank has junior high and high school employees who are willing to do the above jobs.

In addition, the job bank has registered high school students that are willing to commit themselves to a part-time job.

The job bank is a job referral service that matches students from the ages of 13-18 with prospective employers. Jobs are matched by the needs of the employer and the experiences of the potential employee. In addition, proximity of the employee to the job is taken into account as well as employer and employee's schedules before placement is fulfilled.

Jobs usually take place after school, nights, and weekends. For more information, call the job bank coordinators — Darcy Fitzgerald and Tricia Intravia at 729-7390.

To register, visit the Youth Center in the McCall Junior High School, 458 Main st. on Tuesdays 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Fridays 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Shopping For Voters

PUTTING IN THEIR TWO CENTS — Mary Ann McCall-Taylor (l) and William A. Wilder Jr. (r.) were two of the volunteers who staffed the League of Women Voters/Board of Registrars combined effort to reach out to residents and get them to register to vote. The day-long drive was held at Purity Supreme market on Main st. on Saturday.

Fall Drama Workshop For Grades 4-6
Is Set To Begin This Week At WHS

The fall session of the Winchester Recreation Dept.'s Drama Workshop is being offered this year to elementary grade students in Grades 4 to 6. Students enrolled in Grade 3 who are interested in this program, may call the Recreation Dept. to find out about enrollment possibilities.

Parents may come down to the Recreation Dept. to register their child or children during the regular registration hours listed in the fall/winter brochure.

The Drama Workshop Program will run for 10 weeks, starting this week, from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m. at Winchester High School, in the social studies open area. A final demonstration will be held on Dec. 5 at 7 p.m.

The program will feature experimental and expressive creative drama including Hatha Yoga, sensory awareness exercises, movement, theater games and original scenes.

This program has a registration fee of $10, and is financially sponsored in part by the Winchester Rotary. Individuals indicating a financial need may apply for tuition assistance.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

New Grapefruit
'Super Pill' Gives
Fast Weight Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want
Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special) — An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work" According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucomannan' Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucomannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. W14, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard, and Amer. Express OK. (Send card number, expiration date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call toll free 1-(800)-862-6262, ext. W14. Copyright 1984.

Art Assn. Show This Weekend

The Winchester Art Assn.'s Annual Prize Show will be held at the Town Hall Saturday, Sept. 29, from 12 to 5 and Sunday, Sept. 30, from 12 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend and view the latest works by members and join in the voting for the popular prize. There is no admission fee.

This promises to be a varied and interesting exhibit with new members joining the association and expanding the media range to include photography, sculpture, wall hangings, stained glass and pottery as well as paintings.

Three judges will award first, second, and third prizes as well as several honorable mention ribbons. The judges this year are Roberta Thresher from Melrose, Bill Velmore from Wakefield and Joyce Erickson-Rylander of Watertown.

Thresher is a watercolorist with a long list of awards to her credit. She is a member of the Salmagundi Club, N.E. Watercolor Society, The Copley Society and the Reading Art Assn. among others. She teaches watercolor painting at her studio and is a well known demonstrator.

Velmore paints in watercolor, acrylics and oils. He is a former graphic design supervisor for Honeywell Corp. with extensive experience in illustration and commercial art. His renderings of animals done while on safari in Africa are well known. An avid traveler, Velmore leads many artist safaris to China, India, the Amazon, Antarctica and Africa. He conducts classes at the Boston and Cambridge Adult Education Centers as well as in his Stoneham studio.

Joyce Erickson-Rylander is a freelance commercial photographer who specializes in custom color printing. She prepares two- and three-dimensional slides of works of art to be used in artists' presentations and portfolios. She is also an exhibiting photographer working with special process color and using light and color to create vivid and very original abstract photographs. Erickson-Rylander is affiliated with the Cambridge Art Assn. and was that organization's director in 1981 and 1982.

The Winchester Star POLICE LOG

Police reports this week were full of incidents of vandalism, and included several accidents and larcenies as well.

There were also several incidents of annoying telephone calls reported around town during the week, ranging from false reports of an abduction to inquiries about a resident's security system.

Monday, Sept. 24
— Police apprehended two 13-year-old boys who were throwing rocks at a Main st. store from the railroad tracks behind the shop. The storeowner did not pursue the matter, but asked the officers to speak with the youths.

— Two bicycles, a girl's blue Ross 10-speed and a chrome BMX dirt bike were stolen from an unlocked Highland ave. garage sometime between Friday and Monday. The bicycles were valued at about $350.

— A Berkshire dr. resident reported his home broken into and entered through a broken window pane in the rear of the house. The living room, dining room and bedrooms were ransacked, and two boxes of silverware were taken, along with coins, a Hitachi video camera, a Rolex watch, and eight blank checks.

— A 22-year-old Forest st. man was arrested in the Knights of Columbus lot on an outstanding warrant from the Cambridge District Court for traffic and speeding violations.

— The driver's window on a 1971 Chevrolet was smashed at about 2 a.m.; stereo equipment in the car was untouched.

— Officers arrested a 26-year-old Berkshire dr. man on an outstanding Medford warrant for traffic violations, and for driving while his license was revoked.

Just before 6 p.m., officer Eric Benson spotted the man driving a brown Nissan pickup truck, and recognized the driver, who had outstanding charges. Benson pulled the man over at Main and Lake sts., arrested him and took the driver to the Lynch station for booking. He was bailed pending a court appearance.

Sunday, Sept. 23
— An Edgehill rd. resident reported that unknown person(s) released the emergency brake on his 1951 Plymouth two-door sedan, causing the car to roll across the street. A front turn signal was broken in the incident. The roof of the car was dented, apparently by a log when the vandals apparently tried to smash the windshield.

— A Highland ave. resident reported a suspicious phone call from a man calling himself "Scott Gordon." The caller questioned the resident on his home security provisions, and when asked for his address, offered Main st., but no number of telephone number.

Sometime Saturday evening or night vandals damaged the windshield of a Volvo station wagon belonging to a Willow st. resident. Police said it appeared a BB gun or rock was used.

— A Woburn woman reported her purse and wallet, containing $40 and several credit cards, was either lost or stolen while she was shopping at Purity Supreme on Friday. By noon Saturday, a Cross st. resident called the police station to say he'd found the purse.

— A Fenwick rd. resident reported the theft of two yellow-and-orange lawn chairs, worth about $25 apiece, from the front porch of his home during the day Saturday.

— A Ridge st. resident called police twice Saturday night to report youths bombarding his home with tomatoes and eggs from the parking lot of St. Eulalia's Church. Police responded to both calls, but found no suspects on their patrols of the area.

— A Woburn man was arrested for speeding and not having his license in his possession after officers on patrol clocked him on Cambridge st., and observed him throwing "an unidentified object" out the driver's window as he passed the police car, a little past 11 p.m.

— Two vehicles collided on Forest st. when an out-of-area driver failed to follow the curve of the road, and entered Brookside ave. in the oncoming-traffic lane. The 1976 Plymouth sedan, driven by a 27-year-old North Dighton man, collided with the 1980 Olds sedan driven by a 21-year-old Forest st. man. The front end of the Plymouth was heavily damaged, and the left front and driver's door of the Olds sedan were damaged. No charges were filed.

Saturday, Sept. 22

— Church st. residents reported the windshield on their white Volkswagen sedan smashed, and the antenna damaged while the car was parked on the street overnight. Damages were estimated at over $200.

— A Highland terr. car owner reported the windshield of her 1980 Datsun sedan smashed. She told police she saw a man get out of a small car, and hit it with an object she could not identify — but was unable to give any better description of the car or man.

— A Cambridge st. family reported an apparent break-in when they returned home just after noon and discovered the doors all secure, but the alarm system activated. The downstairs and upstairs were ransacked, and money, jewelry and silverware had been taken.

— A 1975 Datsun wagon going south on Washington st. just after noon was struck in the driver's side by a 1973 Volkswagen wagon making a left turn into Tufts st. The 54-year-old Forest st. woman driving the Volkswagen turned into the path of the Datsun, and could not avoid the collision, police said. Neither she nor the 38-year-old Sylvester ave. woman driving the Datsun were injured, and no citations were issued.

Friday, Sept. 21
— A Cross st. resident reported that someone broke out the left rear window of his Plymouth Duster, and removed two Jensen speakers and some other stereo equipment worth more than $90, sometime between 8 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 Friday morning.

— A Grove st. resident reported receiving a phone call from an unidentified male who claimed he had her husband and would harm or kill him if the resident did not follow specific directions, including disrobing.

The resident tried to get the caller to use her husband's name, and the caller hung up. Phone company officials have been notified.

Oriental Dinner To Be Held At St. Eulalia's Oct. 12

An Oriental dinner, prepared and served by the resettled members of the Vietnamese community living in the Winchester and Arlington communities, will be held on Friday evening, Oct. 12, in Marion Hall at St. Eulalia's Church.

The menu will include barbecued spare ribs, spring egg roll, chicken and broccoli in sauce, fried rice, jasmine tea, fruit ambrosia, plus soup and dessert. Refreshments will also be available.

Friends of Refugees Inc. believes, this is a wonderful opportunity for two cultures to meet, and to share the enjoyment of a beautifully prepared dinner.

The dinner is also an important fund raising event for the St. Eulalia-based group, which helps to resettle refugee families and helps them adjust to life here in a variety of ways.

The displaced refugees are often victims of repression, imprisonment and torture in their former homelands.

Friends of Refugees Inc. invites residents to this special event, now in its fourth year. For reservations and tickets, call Cathy Green at 729-1955 or St. Eulalia's.

A Dozen Local Families Can Get Free Child Care At WHS Study Lab

Winchester parents are invited to register their 3-5 year-old in the free Child Study Lab in the Home Economics Dept. at Winchester High School. Registration will be held Tuesday, Oct. 2, from 9-10 a.m. in the Home Economics Dept.

High School juniors and seniors enrolled in the Early Childhood course will plan youngsters' activities under the supervision of teacher Virginia D. Laats. The lab is designed to give students experience in car-

Sunday Strolls

Winchester Trails Sets Woodland Walks Schedule

This fall, Winchester Trails is continuing the Sunday afternoon strolls in the town's woodlands. Residents are invited to bring the family and enjoy the color and feel of fall without a long drive.

Each walk will begin at 1:30 at the parking lot of the Jenks Senior Center. On Sept. 30, Maggie Howard will lead the group to Locke Farm, a wooded wetland, that will be vivid with asters, goldenrod and autumn leaves.

For a view of a drier forest with huge old hemlocks and oaks, join Betty Vanderbilt at the Town Forest on Oct. 14. Fran VerPlanck will take the group to the Winchester Reservoir on Oct. 21, provided the reservoir is open to the public then. This area of the Middlesex Fells is traditionally open once a year at the peak of fall foliage.

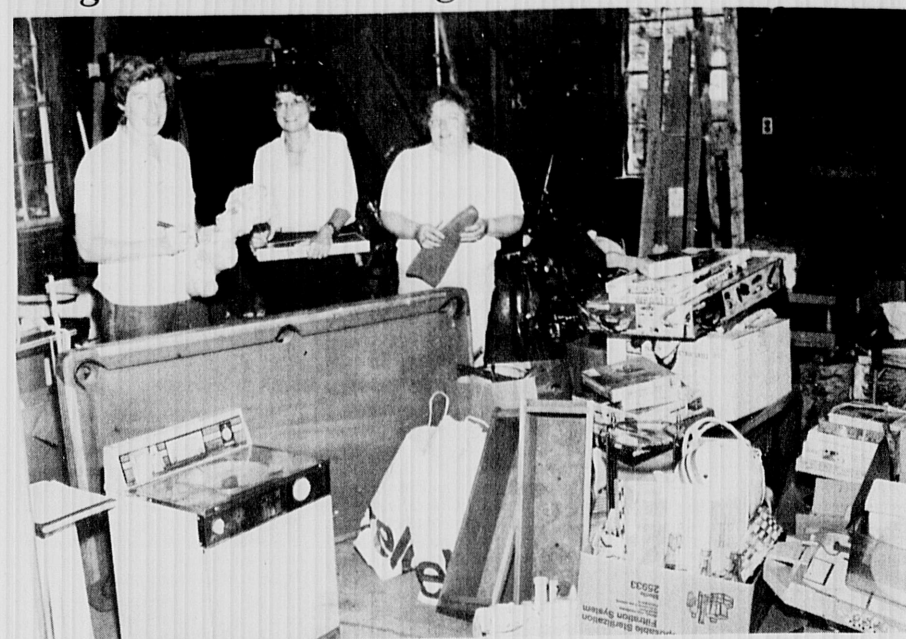

Library To Show Tolkien Classic 'Lord Of The Rings'

The 1978 color film "The Lord of the Rings", an animated adaptation of J.R.R. Tolkien's fantasy epic, will be shown free on Saturday, Oct. 6 at 2 p.m. in the meeting room of the Winchester Public Library. It runs for 131 minutes.

Jackson Award

Camie Jackson, corporate exhibit manager for LTX Corporation and a resident of Vine St. was one of 24 awarded the Certified Exhibit Specialist (CES) designation by the International Exhibitors Association (IEA) at its annual conference in San Antonio, Texas, on Aug. 13.

The CES program was established to offer exhibit professionals a means for obtaining official recognition for their skills and expertise. The CES designation is awarded to applicants who have demonstrated a high level of competency in their programs of trade show participation. Besides experience, they are also judged by five active IEA members, on education, public speaking, writing, IEA participation, contributions to the industry as well as to the individual's company.

Ms. Jackson has been in the trade show industry for eight years. For the past three years she has been the exhibits manager for LTX Corporation.

Ms. Jackson is also the exhibits chairman for the International Test Conference '84, a yearly conference which is known as the premier technical meeting of advanced test hardware and software for integrated circuits, components and assemblies. Prior to coordinating trade shows for LTX, Ms. Jackson spent five years handling similar responsibilities with Adar Associates. In addition, she has been a participant of IEA for three years including positions held in the Boston Hub Chapter: secretary, membership chairman, treasurer and program chairman.

Originally from Boston, Ms. Jackson is a graduate of Somerville High School. She holds her B.S. in business administration/marketing from Northeastern University.

Parker Trains

Marine Pfc. John R. Parker, son of George R. and Gloria J. Parker of Allen rd., has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in Parris Island, S. C.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment, and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

Parker participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

Hamilton Elected

Robert R. Hamilton of Atherton rd., was recently elected to the Careers for Later Years Inc. Board of Directors, and to the position of deputy director of its Executive Service Corps of Boston division.

Careers for Later years, an affiliate of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, is a non-profit organization committed to providing business assistance to non-profit groups from its Executive Service Corps retired executive consultant staff. It also provides expanded employment opportunities to older individuals through its ABLE Division (Ability Based on Long Experience.)

Vittiglio Degree

A local senior was among the 285 students awarded degrees and certificates at the summer commencement exercises of Wentworth Institute of Technology.

Ferdinando J. Vittiglio, 2 Wickham rd. was in the building construction engineering technology program and got his B.S. degree in engineering technology.

Dr. Joyce Haggerty

Dr. Joyce Haggerty of Winchester was recently promoted from associate professor to professor at Framingham State College. Dr. Haggerty is a professor in the modern languages department.

Sure. We have account numbers at Federal Heating because we believe in accuracy. But our customers are never known by a number. We've been serving them so many years, we're almost part of the family.

Just as important — they know us. They know they can always talk to a member of our family — Al, Marj, Tom, Brian or Steve LaPointe. When you operate a family business, you understand the importance of personal service.

Some people may think we're a little old-fashioned. Could be. But caring for our customers is one important reason why we've been in business for so long.

If you would like your fuel oil dealer to take a personal interest in the comfort of your family, just pick-up the telephone and call Federal Heating. The only thing you've got to lose is your account number.

COMMENT

On The Strange Metamorphosis Of Boy To Man

By TERRY MAROTTA

When I go to the local pizza shop on a Friday night, I am equipped with an order that taxes the patience, not to say the ingenuity, of even the most experienced veteran of the order-taking profession.

We need some pizzas with LOTS of extra cheese, and some with no cheese at all. One small member of my delegation tries for a peanut butter pizza and another member, not a bit small, wants the works - the peppers, the onion skins, the little dead fish with their heads cut off, the tomato cores - whatever they happen to sweep up off the floor, basically.

As a result, I am sometimes there for quite a while, awaiting my order.

It was like that the other night. And as I sat and waited, I watched two boys, both about 14, who had come to the store, as I had come, alone.

One sat eating in a booth by himself. His counterpart sat waiting to eat several yards away.

They were very different in appearance, and yet in an odd way, they were very much alike.

They both looked sort of like girls. Now it may be that all 14-year-old boys look sort of like girls, only I had never noticed it before.

Fourteen-year-old boys have a kind of eerie beauty. They don't shave, as a general rule, and most of them have not yet been clubbed with the wallop of acne. They've begun to get some growth; they're no longer the midgets in blue blazers who graduated from 6th grade next to girls a foot taller. Their eyes are clear, and their features still delicate and childlike. In this way, they look almost feminine.

I thought of the Vienna Boys Choir, and the altar boys I remember knowing in junior high. Boys this age have a tendency, strangely enough, to resemble young angels.

These two boys both shared that characteristic. Only one was evidently comfortable with his androgyny, and the other wasn't.

The first sat munching pizza in a cutaway T-shirt. Now once upon a time, only girls exposed their midriffs this way, but those days are over. This boy sat with his flat stomach on display, his hair carefully blown dry, and then carefully tousled for just the right effect. He wore a bracelet and, by all the evidence, a touch of cologne. He looked like Mick Jagger, with the same pouty and sensual expression at the mouth.

His contemporary at the other booth had an entirely different look. For him androgyny had taken another course altogether. He looked like a girl not because of jewelry and hairstyle, but simply because he didn't look quite like a boy yet.

His cheeks were downy, and a bit of baby fat hugged him at the tummy. He wore a baggy flannel shirt and the sort of pants you picture a person washing the dog in. The baby fat embarrassed him, and so he held his hands clasped in front, the way old and patient ladies might do while waiting for the train.

While his counterpart at the other table chomped away, oblivious to his surroundings, this boy watched everyone, as if for cues as to what he should do next. His gaze settled at last on a fluff of young girls who waited in the door just then, and he regarded them with looks of awe and pure admiration. It seemed to me he was thinking of all the conversations he could start up with them once he had become at last wholly male.

My pizzas came and I wheeled them out in a small hand-truck.

I didn't get to see any more of my 14-year-olds. But I've been thinking of them, all the same.

It looks like nature stirs up a complicated cocktail of hormones when she makes a human being. We all share doses of the opposite sex's kind, they say, and I guess in a boy this age, the female ones rise to the top momentarily before all that testosterone starts to surge, and he becomes a man. In another year these two will have it all - the heavier features, the deeper voice, and the bristle of whiskers.

It was interesting to observe the differing degrees of ease with which they endured this interim stage. One almost advertised it, and did in fact project the feel of a Mick Jagger - as if to say, I am neither male nor female, and therefore dangerous. The other seemed more reticent about it, and projected the feel of a Michael Jackson - as if to say, I am neither male nor female, and therefore safe.

What this all means is very much beyond me. All I can conclude is it isn't easy to get to be who you are. Never mind knowing what you'll want on your pizza.

"Of course, you never quite forget you're one of the deadly sins."

To the Residents of Winchester:
Dear Friends,

I want to thank, from the bottom of my heart, the hundreds of you who worked so hard for our victory at the polls. Your friendship, your faith and your willingness to work for what you believe, will be treasured by me years into the future.

In addition, my deepest thanks go to the hundreds of you who honored me with your votes on election day. I will be working as hard as I can, as honestly as I can, as effectively as I can, to continue to earn the great trust you have shown. A special thanks goes to those thousands of you who welcomed me at your doors and in your homes during the campaign. Your hospitality, your warmth and your concerns have made an indelible impression on me.

Finally, congratulations must go to Alan Macdonald and all those who labored so hard for his election. Yours was a tough, vigorous and principled campaign of which you should be very proud. I look forward to working constructively with you in the interests of the Fourth Middlesex District during the coming years.

Sincerely,
Richard A. Kraus
State Senator

Macdonald Thanks His Supporters

Dear Voters:

Thank you very much for the kindness which you extended so generously to me during my campaign this year for State Senator. I am very grateful for the courtesy and for the hospitality which I received throughout the campaign, and I am especially grateful to the many voters who supported my candidacy by voting for me on Primary Day.

It is a tremendous privilege to be considered for election to any public office in this country, but I feel particularly honored to have been considered on your behalf at the state level.

I greatly enjoyed our discussions of the many state issues which are important to our future. Even more, I greatly enjoyed the special moments of friendship that occurred so often during those discussions.

I truly appreciate the lasting memories you gave to me during this extremely busy year, and I hope I will be able to express those thoughts to you in a more individual and personal way as time goes by.

In the meantime, I want you to know that I am forever grateful for the generous reception which you gave to me and to my campaign.

Sincerely,
Alan Macdonald

A Girl Scout's Gratitude

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This past summer I had the opportunity to participate in a Girl Scout Wider Opportunity called "On Stage in the Poconos," held at East Stroudsburg University in East Stroudsburg, Pa.

Along with 90 other girls from all over the United States, we learned about the arts of dance and acting. I would like to thank my leaders and fellow scouts of Cadette Troop No. 1742 for their encouragement and financial help.

I would also like to thank the EnKa Society and the Girl Scouts of Winchester for their financial support that enabled me to participate in this great experience.

Sincerely,
Ann Mueller

Antonelli Says Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to the voters of Winchester for their support of my candidacy to retrieve the Middlesex County Treasurer's position.

Regardless of the controversy surrounding my bid for re-election, I received the largest number of Democratic votes in our town, although I was rejected elsewhere. I have completed over 20 years of public service and it is an honor to have your neighbors recognize your accomplishments.

With sincere appreciation,
Rocco J. Antonelli, C.P.A.

Commentary On Coverage

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Many thanks for the recent feature that Ann Marie Reidy wrote about me. We came to know each other from several months of telephone interviews.

She was able to piece together a fairly accurate capsule version of my life, including highlights of my ongoing battle with multiple sclerosis and the bureaucracy.

I sincerely thank you for the generous amount of space given to the continuing perils of Maureen.

Sincerely,

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

The House and Senate continue to meet in informal sessions following the primary election. Formal sessions and roll call votes are expected to begin again Oct. 1.

The battle over who will be Speaker of the House and the clash on rules reform have been underlying factors during the 1984 House session. The two issues also continue to be key questions in the 1984 House races. Candidates are being asked whether they will support present Speaker Tom McGee or former Majority Leader George Keverian when a speaker is elected in January 1985. Incumbent legislators' voting records on past rules changes roll calls are being examined and challengers are being asked how they would vote on these proposals.

Adding to the controversy, a group of legislators known as the Legislative Coalition for Rules Reform, recently released four new proposals it plans to introduce into the House. Sponsors are uncertain whether they will introduce the package during this year's session or wait until the 1985 session begins. House rules require a two-thirds vote to adopt the changes at this late date in the 1984 session, while it would only require a simple majority vote for passage in early 1985.

The obvious advantage to waiting is the need for only a majority vote in 1985, but a case can also be made for bringing up the proposals in the next few weeks. Supporters note that many incumbent representatives have opposition in November and are more likely to respond to the need for rules reform when they are up for re-election rather than in early 1985, when, if re-elected, a representative would be safe for two years.

Sponsors of the four changes say they have more than the required 81 members necessary to gain a majority vote for passage. They are not sure whether they have the necessary two-thirds vote for passage this year. If they wait until January, the makeup of the House will change because of retired and defeated incumbents.

This week's report examines the group's proposals.

CARRYOVER — This change, which would need Senate approval as well, provides that any bill not defeated during the first year of a legislative session would automatically be carried over in the same position in the legislative process it was in at the end of the first year. It also provides that every bill, except the ones that are carried over, would be guaranteed a hearing.

Supporters say the carryover change would streamline the legislative process without sacrificing democracy. They note there is no current guarantee that every bill receive a hearing, and claim it is important to require one. Opponents say it is fairer to start action on each bill from scratch every year so that the public can monitor a bill's progress.

PERSONNEL AND OFFICE SPACE — This change creates a new 11-member Committee on Personnel and Administration which would develop a plan to insure that all rank and file members receive equal allocation of office space, equipment, and secretarial help. The committee, including both Democrats and Republicans, would also establish staffing levels for committees. The plans would be subject to House approval.

The change also provides that committee staff persons be chosen by committee chairpersons and ratified by members of the committee to which they are assigned. Currently, the Speaker controls all office space, equipment, secretarial help, and staffing levels and there is no requirement for ratification of a chairperson's choice of staff members.

Supporters say the changes will make the operation and resources of the House fair and equitable and prevent the leadership from favoring certain members. They claim the changes will also insure the hiring of qualified committee staff and would help eliminate patronage jobs. Opponents say the Speaker should retain his current powers and claim the system of a centralized speakership has worked well on these matters. They note the Speaker is elected by the members and can be removed if he does an unfair job. Some claim the proposal is too complicated and unwieldy.

OVERSIGHT — This change, which would need Senate approval, empowers committees to oversee the implementation of laws and programs by state agencies as well as hold hearings on subjects within their jurisdiction and investigate the appropriateness of new legislation.

Supporters say it is modeled after the U.S. Congress system and establishes a formal system for committees to monitor action of agencies and how new laws are working. They say it is not enough for the legislature to just pass laws and drop the ball. Opponents say the Post Audit Committee already performs some of these functions and claim committees already do many of these things in an informal way.

SCHEDULING — This last change would prohibit committee hearings and executive sessions from being scheduled at the same time as formal sessions of the House. It would also create a committee scheduling system to eliminate scheduling conflicts of committee members.

Supporters say it is unfair when legislators are forced to choose between an important committee hearing and action on the House floor. They argue that hearings could begin in the morning and formal sessions could be held in the afternoon, resulting in only an occasional overlap. Opponents say the change is too restrictive and argue there is too much going on in the State House to avoid all conflicts. They say many conflicts can be avoided under the current system and note that members can leave hearings briefly to go vote in the House chamber.

Winchester's state Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh is not listed as one of the 82 reform package sponsors.

★ Runners

"Every year is a building year in high school track, it seems, but I don't think we have the kind of runners this year that we've had the past two or three years," Cantillon explained.

"In the past years, we've had at least one runner on both the boys' and girls' teams we were assured would come in first," he said, referring to graduates Laurie Glynn, Barry Sirchis, and Bill Derry. "But on both the boys' and girls' teams, I think there is great potential to run together as a team."

"You can have one good runner on a cross country team and still lose a meet," Cantillon said. "You need five good runners who finish close to each other, running competitively enough to beat the other teams on the cumulative score." (Cross country track meets are scored by adding the times of the first five finishers on each team — low score wins.)

Cantillon and his assistant coach, Lorin Maloney, both high school social studies teachers, coach boys' and girls' varsity and junior varsity programs for each of their 31 runners. It's sometimes more like coaching 31 teams than one, Cantillon agreed.

"All three seasons of track are non-cut sports," Cantillon added. "It's nice, because I don't have to decide who plays — everyone runs, and there are no bench warmers."

Returning as co-captains of the boys' squad are Brian Pothier and Jim Whitehead, both seniors. Other returnees on the squad include Tim Conley, Lou Sampson, both seniors, and sophomore Jason Boone. "He had a varsity letter last year — that's unusual for a freshman," Cantillon commented. "We think he has a great deal of potential."

Among the newcomers, Cantillon added, he sees great potential, as well.

"Bob Feldman, a middle-distance runner who is a veteran of spring track, has joined cross country for the first time as a senior," he said. "We hope he's going to help us quite a bit."

"And a large group of freshman have joined the team: Mike Aldrich, David Walsh, Chris Leydon, Todd Delvecchio, Hank Askew, Brian McCarthy and Andy Hunter," Cantillon added.

"This may be just a year to acclimate them to the kind of practices that will develop their potential. I really don't have expectations for them; they'll run as many meets as the rest of the team, and learn to develop the skills they need."

Among the girls, the most experienced runners are co-captains Diane Aronson and Beth Nowell. (Nowell is also a championship speed-skater.)

"Junior Heather Innis and sophomores Sandra Riley, Lauren Chabot and Kristen Pywell are returning letter-winners," Cantillon noted. "Another sophomore, Jean Cullen, ran track last year, but this is her first year of cross country."

"Other first-timers are senior Elizabeth Lee and junior Betsy Ellis," he added. "And we have sophomores Cindy Whitehead and Ann Walsh, and freshmen Amy Burdock and Patty Mahoney."

There are two brother-sister combinations — the Walsh and Whitehead siblings — and others on the team have had brothers or sisters on the team before them, Cantillon noted.

"It's funny — we get all kinds of runners," he observed. "I think the essential ingredients to be a good cross country runner are self-discipline and motivation to succeed — how good does the person want to be, and are they willing to make the commitment to reach that goal?"

He thinks this year's team does have that kind of commitment, though he's reluctant to compare such a novice group with last year's teams — the 1983-84 boys' team won the league championship with a 9-0 record, and the girls tied for second with a 6-2 scoreboard.

"But the boys have already had one meet, against Watertown — and we took one-two-three-four," Cantillon said, just a hint of expectation creeping into his voice. "It wasn't that important that it was 1-2-3-4, but that they finished so close together — Brian Pothier was first, at 16:30 (minutes for the three-mile course), Tim Conley, Jason Boone and Jim Whitehead all came in between 17 minutes and 17:10."

Watertown has no girls' team, so the girls ran only for experience. Their first meet will be tomorrow, when both teams face Burlington, on home turf around Horn Pond. And the coaches are looking forward to seeing what all their runners can do.

Deadline On Housing Policy Set By State For Dec. 15

By Eric W. Blom

At Monday night's special hearing of the Subcommittee on Housing, Selectman Wade Welch said the "critical situation" which brought about the meeting "came up very suddenly". The issue of state mandated low- and moderate-income housing, however, has faced Winchester since 1982.

In the Spring of 1982, Gov. Edward King signed Executive Order 215. This order empowered the Executive Office of Community Development (EOCD) to review state grants to Massachusetts cities and towns, contingent upon their applying for "scattered site" housing units.

On Dec. 15, 1982, the heads of the local Board of Selectmen, Planning Board, and Housing Authority signed a joint agreement with the EOCD stating that Winchester would come up with a comprehensive housing policy within the next reviewing cycle. As a result of this agreement, the state gave Winchester $331,000, representing phase I of the downtown redevelopment project.

In October of 1983, Winchester failed to meet the requirements it had agreed to in 1982, despite reminders that they do so by the EOCD.

On Sept. 12, 1984, Selectmen received a letter from the EOCD, stating that phase II of the redevelopment project — involving $740,000 — would be endangered if Winchester did not take "identifiable steps toward achievement of the goals set out in that (the 1982) policy statement. Meanwhile, a public ceremony was held announcing the town's $740,000 possible windfall.

On Sept. 20, 1984, the Subcommittee on Housing met with the EOCD to discuss a time frame and conditions for meeting the state's requirements. A Dec. 15, 1984, deadline has been established by the EOCD for the approval of a housing policy and a corresponding plan of action.

★ Housing

thing — all for a couple of bricks?" said a red-faced, angry Geary.

Other residents were concerned that low-income housing may bring undesirable residents into town. Many claimed that low-income habits, whether clustered in a section of town or spread out in two-story homes throughout town, would unleash a rash of crime here.

"I don't want to have to worry about carrying around a baseball bat all the time because of the projects," said 17-year-old Steve Philas. "All right, we heard tonight that they may not be 'projects' as such, but I live right near one of the spots that supposedly may be considered for the housing. I just don't think it's what should be here in Winchester," he said.

Philas and several of his teenage friends said they came to Monday night's hearing to find out further if such housing is seriously being considered for sites near their neighborhood.

They said they stayed for most of the meeting to hear others' comments on the issue. Taking time out to attend was no sacrifice, they said, for an issue as important to the town.

NOBODY BEATS OUR VALUE TO NEW YORK.

We've just lowered our fares to New York nearly 50%. To just $19, coach, Friday to Sunday. Monday to Thursday it's only $25.

That's the best travel value going, peak or off-peak. And when you bring the kids along, you'll save even more—children under 12 go for half price.

But money is just part of the reason for taking Amtrak. You see, the train actually makes travel a pleasant experience. Our spacious, reclining seats are like no others.

And where else can you find aisles wide enough for a leisurely stroll?

Not to mention our Amcafe, where you can get a sandwich, snack or beverage, whenever you like.

Oh, there's one more thing. On Amtrak, you can go from downtown Boston or the Route 128 Station to midtown Manhattan, Newark, or suburban Amtrak stations.

So the next time you're headed to the Big Apple, call your travel agent or call Amtrak at 1-800-USA-RAIL. And ask about a fare and a travel experience that can't be beat.

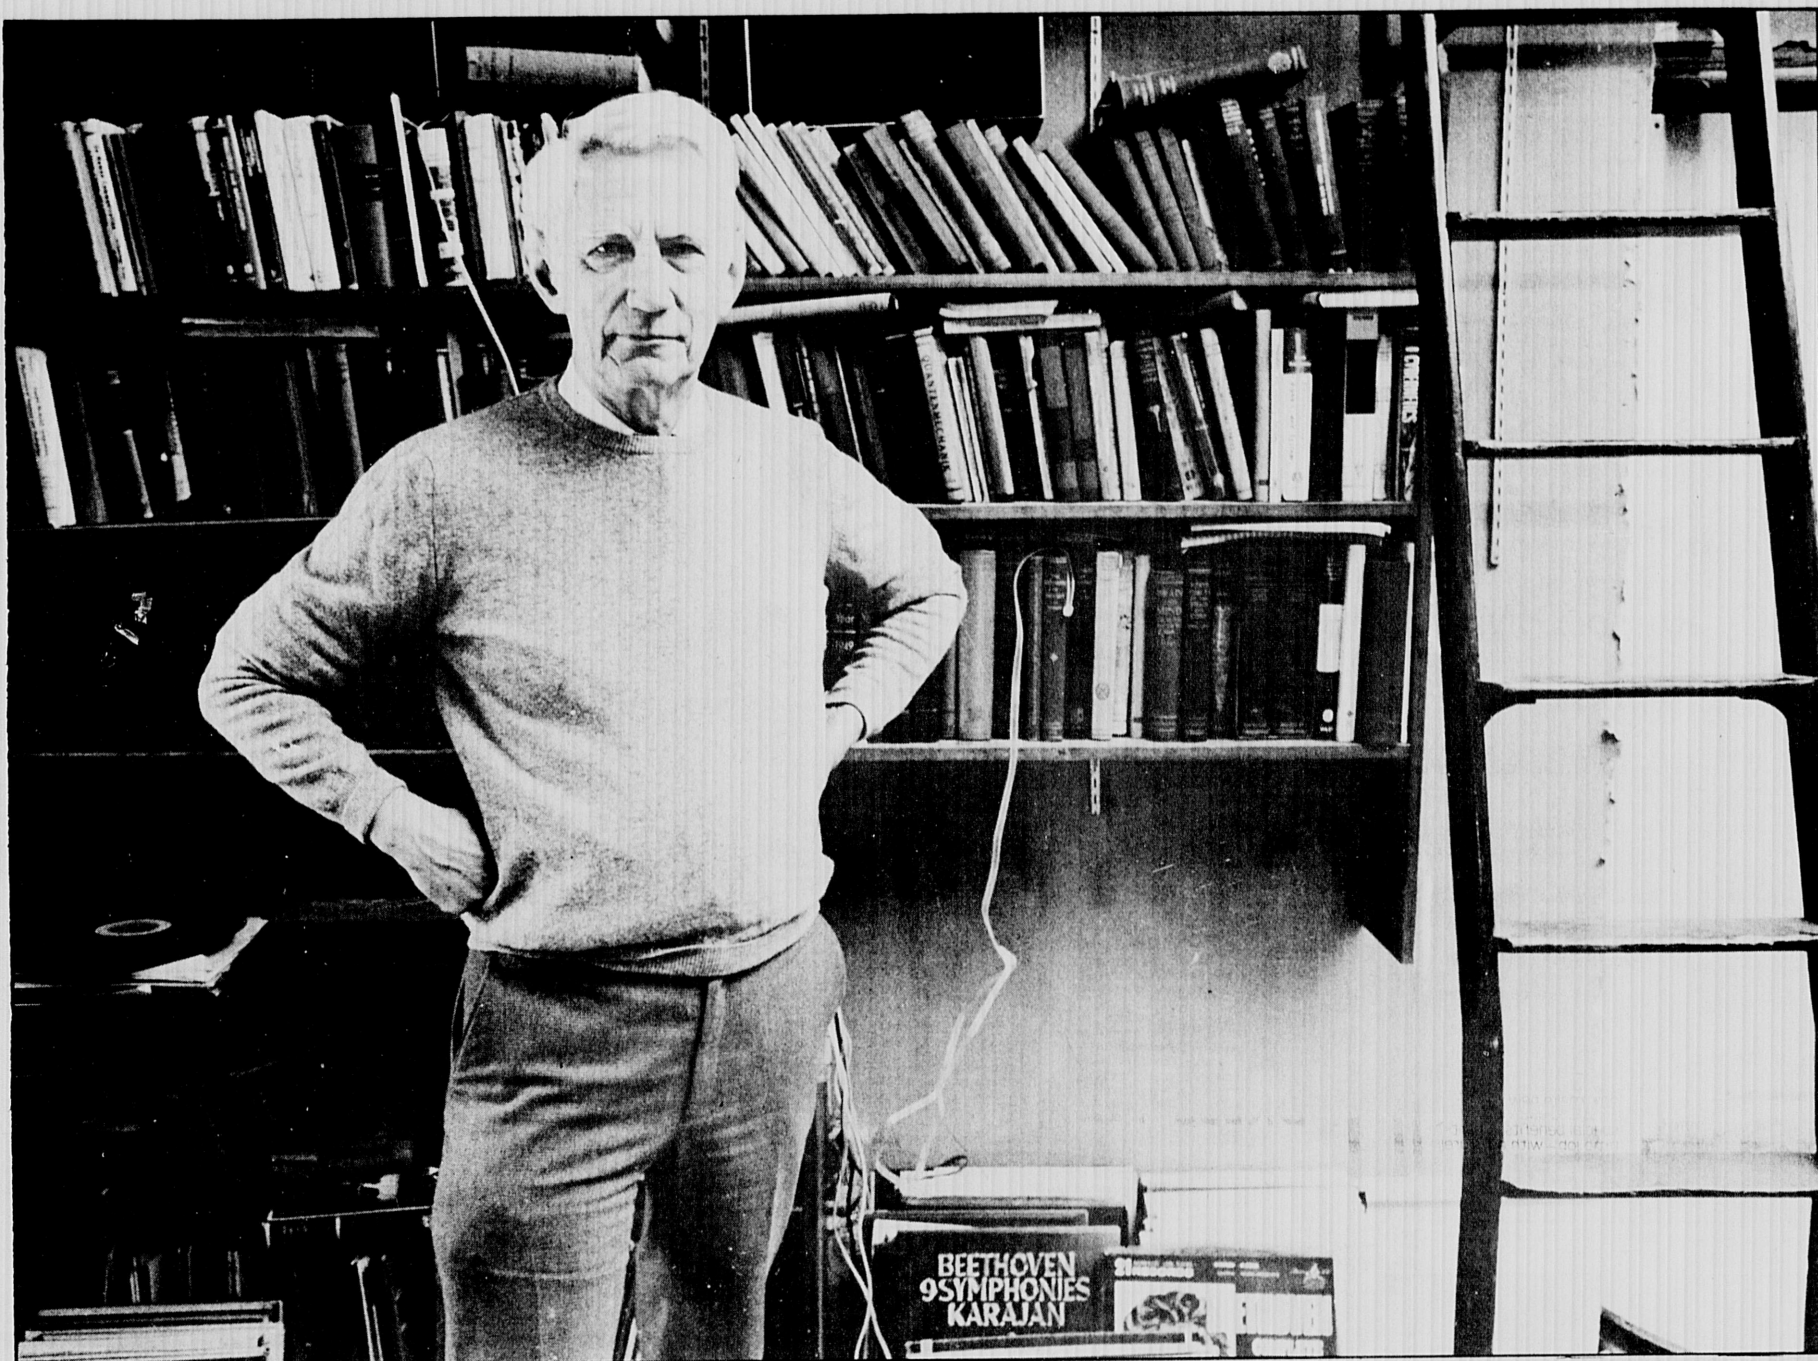

Certain holiday restrictions may apply.

Tops In His Field

'The Father Of Information Theory' Is In Good Company With His Who's Who Award

By JILL M. HIGGINS

As a curious child in his native Michigan, Claude E. Shannon made radio-controlled model boats and a telegraph system that linked him to a friend's house a half mile away. Shannon, 68, has come a long way since those days.

Known by science experts as "The Father of Information Theory," Shannon has made the history books by discovering complicated mathematical concepts that have paved the road for computer technology.

Now retired, the 26-year Winchester resident, who taught for many years at MIT, recently received the Who's Who In America Achievement Award for his efforts.

"It's a beauty contest of sorts," quips Shannon, as he sits happily in his living room with his wife and co-scientist Betty. They speak proudly of each other's accomplishments and assets — but are modest when discussing their own personal attributes.

"It's the first year the awards have been given, you know. They (his peers) apparently thought I was tops in my field. Imagine that, here I'm a beauty contest winner and I never even had to dance," he says with a smile.

Of course, the $10,000 prize money is a nice, little bonus, he admits, but it's hardly the first time the local math wizard has been honored.

He's in pretty upscale company as one of the five honored by Who's Who. Among the winners are Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca, who was honored for his entrepreneurship, and Dr. Maclyn McCarty, a pioneering discoverer of crucial theories on heredity.

Just a glance at Shannon's plaque-laden library wall proves that he is no stranger to recognition. For there amid his automated juggling clowns, (a hobby), are more than a dozen framed honors, degrees and awards touting his mathematical expertise.

He received the National Medal of Science in 1966, a particularly prestigious honor that was presented to him by President Lyndon Johnson. In 1972, the president of Israel awarded Shannon that country's coveted Harvey Prize.

He has been the subject of extensive Soviet study for his innovative work in computer theory. In 1963, he learned that Russian experts had translated his scientific papers and bound them into an 830-page hard-back resource book.

After a visit there several years later, at the invitation of Soviet scientists and officials, he received copies of the book, which now sit amid his massive library collection.

The Shannons' home is a veritable treasure chest of gadgets and gizmos, all part of projects in various states of completion, which are found in nearly every room. A brief tour of the place makes one wonder if he's stumbled onto the home of a fantastic, modern-day Santa Claus.

Juggling, an art form Shannon has been interested in since he was young, is the focus of many of his projects. He has made several automated juggling toys, mostly constructed of ordinary household odds and ends.

In the library, he proudly points out his miniature theater that features three tiny clown figurines. From pieces of a discarded tape player, wooden slats, a black light and cake decorations, he has created a whimsical juggling machine that

Work Noted

A Winchester High School senior, Michelle D. Kupjian, 16, won an award for the best copy written at a workshop conference on yearbooks in Gettysburg, Pa., this summer. The award was presented by Herff Jones Yearbooks, based in Gettysburg.

Kupjian, the daughter of John and Mary Kupjian of Leslie rd., attended the workshop with Carly Jane Watson, the high school yearbook advisor, and other members of the Aberjona staff.

Kupjian captured the award with an overall "excellent" rating on her workshop copywriting assignments, which ranged from writing features based on class interviews to designing creative yearbook layouts. She competed against 263 other workshop participants.

Stolow Enrolls

Michelle B. Stolow, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Stolow, entered Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., this fall. She is a graduate of Winchester High School.

Two Hear Pope

Two local students were among 40 from Montrose School in Brookline who traveled by bus to Montreal, Canada, to attend the outdoor mass celebrated by Pope John II in Jarry Park. After the mass, undaunted by the rain, the students participated in the Papal Youth Rally in Montreal's Olympic Stadium where John Paul II addressed over 60,000 young people between the ages of 15 and 25.

Going to Montreal were Jennifer Jordan and Ana Maria Arena.

Club Seeks Volunteers

Two local women, both active members of the Winchester Women's Republican Clubs are co-chairing the Winchester committee to help re-elect President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush in November. Marcia Saltmarsh and June Cannon were asked to take this position by David Locke, the state coordinator of the Reagan/Bush committee. They would appreciate volunteers.

Meet The Authors

St. James' Armenian Church in Watertown is hosting a "Meet the Authors" night on Sunday at 7 p.m. in the church hall on Mount Auburn st.

Among the half-dozen authors of Armenian heritage will be Winchester resident Robert Mirak who recently published a book, "Torn Between Two Lands," the story of an ethnic group torn between its desire to create a homeland in historic Armenia, and its adopted homeland, America.

Armenian Studies

The 30th annual assembly of the National Assn. for Armenian Studies and Research will be held Nov. 9-11 in Cambridge, with a banquet, lectures, a luncheon and reception.

Winchester resident Dr. Nishian Goudsouzian is a member of the NAASR National Board of Directors. The group has funded university chairs (endowed professorships) in Mirak holds degrees from Williams College, Oxford University and Harvard University, where he completed a dissertation on the Armenian community through 1915.

He and the other authors will each give a brief presentation, and then a question-and-answer period will follow. Audience members can meet the authors afterward at a brief reception. Admission is free.

Armenian studies at both Harvard University and UCLA, and supported such studies at many other universities across the country.

They have also helped developed a highly-acclaimed curriculum on genocide, "Facing History and Ourselves," and this April will co-sponsor a conference on Genocide and Human Rights with Bentley College.

47th Anniversary

Canterbury rd. residents Harold J. and Dorothy M. McCarthy celebrated their 47th wedding anniversary on Sept. 18 with a quiet family dinner held at their son's home in Medford.

The couple, Winchester residents since 1949, were joined by their son, Richard J. McCarthy, their daughter-in-law, Patricia Ann, and their grandchildren, Brian, 16, Amy, 15, and Danny, 9. Harold McCarthy is a retired sales manager for H.J. Heinz Co.

Enge Named

Kjell I. Enge, has been appointed an assistant professor of anthropology at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

Enge received his bachelor's degree at Northeastern University and his Ph.D. degree from Boston University. He is the son of Harold and Grete Enge, 26 Prince ave.

A pre-Revolutionary War school founded in 1773, Dickinson is an independent and coeducational college with approximately 1,800 students.

NEW KIDS IN TOWN — Three new students have joined the seven veterans at the ABC House on Dix st. Reinaldo Bustamante, Jermaine Jones and Hector Rios have all come from the Bronx to study and live in Winchester through the nationwide ABC (A Better Chance) program.

Obituaries

Margaret Hood

Margaret Allan Hood, 83, of Everett ave., passed away at the Winchester Hospital on Sept. 19 after a short illness.

Mrs. Hood was born in Chicago, Ill., the daughter of John and Florence B. Allan. Her father was president of the Chalmers Co. which provided the water supply for its World's Fair of 1903.

Mrs. Hood attended school in Oak Park, Ill., and then graduated from Smith College, Class of 1923. Her mother founded the Chicago Art and Travel Club, and as a result mother and daughter traveled extensively in the United States and Europe.

In 1928 Mrs. Hood married Gilbert H. Hood Jr. of Boston and came East to set up a home in West Medford. In 1941 she and the family moved to Winchester.

She was a member of Winchester's First Congregational Church for over 50 years, and an associate member of the Moorings Presbyterian Church in Naples, Fla. where she and her husband wintered in more recent years.

Mrs. Hood became interested in the Winchester Hospital where her husband continues active on its board. With the help of her friends in the Winton Club, she started one of the earliest hospital coffee shops, specializing in home-cooked food and "triple shakes."

She was a long-time member of the board for the Medford Home for the Aged, now a part of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Hood served as secretary of the "Mother's Milk project at the Boston Lying-In Hospital for many years. This organization was involved in collecting mothers' milk from many contributing mothers and making it available to those mothers who needed breast milk for their own babies but were unable to supply it.

As a resident of Winchester, Mrs. Hood was an active member of the Winton Club, Friends of the Winchester Hospital and the Winchester Smith College Club for many years.

Mrs. Hood leaves her husband, Gilbert, retired chairman of H. P. Hood Inc., two daughters, Emily C. Hood of Boston and Elizabeth H. Wilson of Sherborn, and three grandchildren, David Hood Wilson, Anne Cheryl Wilson and Carolyn Elizabeth Wilson.

A memorial service will be held at The First Congregational Church, 10 Dix st., on Saturday at 2 p.m. conducted by a personal friend, The Rev. Dr. Charles S. Webster of Naples, Fla. Burial will be private at Mt. Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge.

Memorial donations may be sent to the "Eye Research Institute of the Retina Foundation," 20 Stanford st., Boston, 02114.

Arrangements are being made by the Lane Funeral Home.

Dorothy Worthen

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. on Wednesday in the First Congregational Church of Winchester for Dorothy B. (Bullard) Worthen, who passed away Sept. 21 at her Winchester home.

Born in Arlington in 1891, the daughter of Henry W. and Mary P. Bullard, she attended Arlington public schools. A 1912 graduate of Wellesley College, Mrs. Worthen taught geology and geography at the college for three years. She also was active as an officer of the Wellesley Alumnae Assn.

In 1915, she moved to Concord, N.H., upon marrying Atty. Joseph W. Worthen. In 1919, the Worthens settled in Winchester, where Mrs. Worthen actively supported the local hospital through the Winton Club, of which she was past president.

Mrs. Worthen was a member of the Friends of Winchester Hospital and participated in numerous Winton Club Cabarets. She also was a soprano soloist in the First Congregational Church.

Mrs. Worthen, an avid sportswoman who preached and practiced "friendly competition," was a member of the Winchester Country Club. She and her husband, a former Winchester Town Moderator and Selectman, won numerous awards in the sport of curling. "At golf, she literally tore up the course, but loved the sport nevertheless," said her son Thomas.

Her ashes will be interred beside those of her husband at their summer home on Lake Memphrenag in Canada.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Lawrence (Mary) Tobey of Wenham and Mrs. Richard J. (Joanne) Latta of Marblehead; and two sons, Palmer B. Worthen of Marblehead and Thomas Worthen of Winchester. She also leaves sisters Mary B. Hewins and Susan B. Brown of Winchester and Barbara B. Colby of Nokomis, Fla. Also surviving are 12 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

or to take any other, alternative or further action in regard thereto. Purpose of this amendment would be to change land that presently permits 1 & 2 family use to now allow 3 or more dwelling units.

ARTICLE
To see if the Town will vote to amend the Zoning By-law and the Map incorporated therein and made a part thereof by changing a portion of land located on the northeasterly corner of Washington and Bridge Streets from a General Residence District (RG-6.5) to a General Business District (GBD-1.0), said land being the greater portion of Lot C, containing approximately 4700 sq. ft., and a smaller portion of Lot B, containing approximately 90 sq. ft., and bounded as follows:

Southwesterly by Bridge Street 41.52'; Northwesterly by dividing boundary line of the GBD and RG district and land now or formerly Robert E. Jr. and Elizabeth Maher and Heirs of Frances G. Maher 112';

Northeasterly by land now or formerly No. 175 Washington Street, Inc. 39.57'; and Southeasterly by adjoining property line of land now or formerly Paul M. & Patricia H. Colletta 115.71';

Purpose of this amendment would be to change the existing portion of land of about 4700 sq. ft. that presently only allows single and two-family residences to now permit uses designated in the Zoning By-law in the General Business District.

Prior to the hearing information relative to these amendments may be obtained at the Planning Board/Engineering Department Office, Basement, Town Hall.

The Sachems Clobbered Belmont 41-0 To Go 2-0 On The Season. For Story And Pictures, See Page 17.

Swimmers Split First Two Meets

Someone said "everybody into the pool, then there was a record turnout." The Winchester High girl's swimming team opened its season last week with a split of two meets; a win over Melrose, 40-36 and a loss to a non-league team.

The girls this year are enjoying new practice hours which changed from 5 in the morning to 5 in the afternoon. Due to this change the team is three times as large as last year's team.

The Sachemettes are led by tri-captains Mary Krusell, Daphne Zervoglos and Maura Dobbins.

New coach Carol Minutoli greeted senior returnees Jame Duda, Dara Fitzgerald, Mary Krusell and Daphne Zervoglos. Junior returnees include: Kathy McGee and Maura Dobbins. The returning sophomores are Lisa Tonazuck, Alison Cogliani and Kim Byron.

New to the team are: seniors; Michelle Bearce and Deanne Cronin. Juniors: Lisa Hasson, Christine Garino and Debbie Doherty. Sophomores: Lindsay Caulfield, Tracey Collum, Gwen Latta, Dendra Skahan, Carolyn Nash, Maura Looney and Maura Nagle. Freshmen include: Katherine Martinelli, Valerie Fleck, Sandi Powers, Kathy McGillicuddy, Betty Borsody, Judy Borsody, Liz McCann, Wendy Boerner, Joni Gigante, Lisa White, Genevieve Conlin, Donna Ray, Heather Graves, Patty Belding, Patty Adelsburger and Ali Meuler.

In the meet against Melrose last Wednesday, the group of Liz McCann, Betty Borsody, Lisa Tonazuck and Maura Dobbins took a first in the 200 yard medley relay. Sandi Powers won the 200 yard freestyle with a time of 2:06.

Liz McCann was second in the 200 yard individual medley and first in the 100 yard butterfly and Dara Fitzgerald took second.

The Sachemettes took second place with Lisa Tonazuck and third place with Maura Dobbins. Lisa Tonazuck was second in the 100 yard freestyle and Lindsay Caulfield was third.

In the 500 freestyle, Sandi Powers won by a large margin. Judy Borsody nabbed second in the 100 yard backstroke. Winchester's Kathy McGillicuddy captured first in the 100 yard breast stroke and Betty Borsody was third.

Finally the group of Sandi Powers, Kathy McGillicuddy, Mary Krusell and Maura Dobbins were second.

The Sachemettes of 1984 are anticipating a victorious season. As coach Carol Minutoli put it "we're going to win meets."

Field Hockey Hopes High With 2-3 Start

The field hockey team had a tough season last year, losing more games than they won.

And the season's had a rocky beginning, with two wins and three losses in the first five games they've played.

But coach Mary Brown is optimistic about the rest of the season for her girls.

"I've got a lot of confidence in the team," said Brown, who's spending her first year as coach of the team. "If we do 500 (win half the games), I'll be very happy — and I hope we can do better. I'm pretty sure we can."

It's not half-heartedness on the coach's part when Brown says she's looking at a 500; it's a move to build the girls' confidence without putting pressure on them.

"The thing we have to do now is build up their confidence after three losses in a row," she said matter-of-factly. "But I think they'll measure up to the task. They just need a little more confidence in themselves, and to get a little more aggressive."

Brown has a veteran team to work with: co-captains Liz Doherty, a center forward, and Sharon Fitzgerald, a fullback, are both seniors and returnees.

Seniors on the squad include Amy Hurley and Leslee Carlson, both fullbacks and Sheila Mawn and Mary Ellen Sullivan, coming back to the forward line.

Among the juniors, Dawn Brown returns as left wing, and Diane Yamane and Lucy Shawcross as halfbacks.

"Kim Grano will sub in as both a wing and a halfback," Brown said. "She's a good, versatile player."

Juniors Missy Valtaggio and Kerri Doherty will both play goalie, and Linda Guild will substitute as a halfback, Brown added.

Junior Monique McClearn joins the team as a halfback, and Penny Kapanika, who's been injured, should be back on the field soon, the coach said.

The 17 varsity players are joined by a large junior varsity squad.

Brown says she can make good use of all 40 girls who turned out for field hockey this year, because of rules adaptations in the last few years, which have made field hockey a much faster-paced game, and allows for substitutions in the field of 11 players during both of the 30-minute halves.

Junior varsity players include: Tricia Farrell, Hannah Abrams, Heather Barlow, Tricia Brackon, Kathy Coughlin, Adrienne Ehler, Julie Guilderson, Alex Levin, Shannon McDonough, Tracy Johnson;

Lisa Dickenson, Jenn Matrundola, Kathy Mawn, Loreto Serrano, Lisa Spencer and Naquel McClearn; Colleen O'Connor, Eileen O'Connor, Katie O'Connor, Lesley Padulla, Laura Rutherford, and Tammy Berman.

So far, the two squad have played Belmont, winning 1-0; Burlington, winning 4-3; Stoneham, losing 2-0; Watertown, losing 3-0; and Wakefield, on Tuesday afternoon, sinking 6 to 1.

"Wakefield is a pretty good team," Brown said Tuesday night. "The Middlesex League is a good league — they play tough, competitive hockey."

"I look for big games coming up against Lexington, Woburn, and Melrose," Brown said. "We should have some fantastic competition."

JV Gridders Emulate Elders, Smashing Belmont 27-0

By RANDY HESS
Following in the footsteps of the undefeated varsity squad, the J.V. Sachem gridders opened their season in a big way, clobbering Belmont 27-0.

Let by sophomore quarterback John DeMarco, the Sachems established their powerful running game early in the first quarter. Strong blocking by the offensive line generated a sustained drive culminating in a touchdown for Winchester. Co-captain Derek Binding set up the touchdown with a 30-yard run and an apparent touchdown, but a penalty brought the ball back to the Belmont 40. Half-back Darin Cromwell then broke loose on a similar play, racing into the end zone to put the Sachems on the scoreboard.

After forcing Belmont to punt,

Winchester marched once again into Belmont territory, where DeMarco connected with split end Glen Dorsam for 35 yards and another TD.

When the Sachem defense stifled Belmont's offense yet again, the Red and Black rushing machine took over where it left off, with tough inside runs from fullbacks Nicky Genaris and John Serika setting up a one-yard touchdown drive by Mike Murray to close out the half.

The Sachems came out shooting in the second half, driving down inside the Belmont 10-yard line with a combination of quick passes and option plays. DeMarco then kept the ball on an option, displaying remarkable speed and agility in a twisting, darting dash into the end zone. This proved to be Winchester's final some who thought that the Warriorettes, who had scored 31 goals in their first five games, might be able to knock off the defending champs.

This is, after all, supposed to be something of a rebuilding year for Winchester.

Some rebuilding year. The only rebuilding required Tuesday was for the egos of the Wakefield players who came into the match harboring thoughts of victory.

Even the Wakefield coach recognized the Sachemettes' superiority. "We were overmatched, absolutely no question about it," said Noel Higgins. "Winchester is an excellent team."

No kidding. At 6-0 on the season with Wakefield (4-2) their nearest competitor, Winchester is in the catbird seat.

The game was scoreless for the first fifteen minutes and that was as close as Wakefield would get. Julie Guarnotta got Winchester started, scoring on a pass from Katy Binding.

Minutes later, Winchester's All-Scholastic duo teamed up for the second goal. On an indirect kick, Paula Russo tipped the ball to Mitch Powers, who put it into the goal for a 2-0 lead.

At 26 minutes, Carey McDonald intercepted the ball and put a nice shot into the goal for a 3-0 score.

Winchester continued to dominate the game in the second half, keeping Wakefield bottled up in their own end and adding two more goals by Julie Conley and Tara Gurry.

The Sachemettes' victory came on the heels of two other overwhelming wins, a 3-0 shut-out of Arlington Saturday and an 8-1 destruction of Burlington Tuesday, Sept. 18.

In the Arlington match, Mitch Powers, Paula Russo and Ellen Donahoe scored while Katy Binding got an assist.

In that game, the coaches saw what they called a different Arlington team than the one they had scouted. "It seems that every team we play plays inspired soccer against us," said coach Chris Scanlon.

If Burlington was playing inspired soccer when they lost to Winchester 8-1, their fans would hate to see them slack off.

The Sachemettes scored three goals in just the first ten minutes on their way to the 8-1 massacre. Four different players scored goals and Julie Guarnotta herself scored three and added an assist. Tara Gurry and Michelle Powers scored twice and Paula Russo scored once.

Carey MacDonald helped out with four assists and coach Scanlon cited the play of Kate Binding, Leslie Strazola, Charlotte Reece, Debbie Nowell, Debbie Maida and Theresa Ducharme.

If Winchester keeps winning with margins of three to seven goals, coach Scanlon will spend half his games keeping his regulars in shape and the second half training his bench for next year and the years after than.

All of which adds up to a lot of bad news for the rest of the teams in the Middlesex League. Now and in the future.

Looking Like A Dynasty!

Girls Nail Wakefield

If there were any lingering doubts about the quality of the Sachemette soccer team, they were soundly, completely, definitively, emphatically destroyed Tuesday when Winchester clobbered second place Wakefield, 5-0.

Going into the game, there were

Boys Take Two Before Falling To Wakefield

By Paul Ferullo

The Winchester High boys' soccer team took control of the game from the outset, in their 5-2 victory over the Stoneham Spartans before the game was forfeited by Stoneham. Then the Sachems beat Watertown 2-0 and lost to Wakefield.

As a new rule put in their year, if a head coach gets ejected from a game then his team has to forfeit even if he has an assistant coach on the sidelines. Well this is what happens to the Spartans as a result of their coach being ejected.

The Sachems came out strong and scored a quick goal in the opening minutes of play. Al Serrano netted a pass from halfback Rick Sovak. Serrano also scored the next goal on an unassisted shot from the left corner.

After Serrano's second goal of the game the Spartans came back to make the score 2-1. The Spartans then controlled the game for a very short time as the Sachems regrouped and then let loose.

The Sachems' third goal came from Jame Campo as he was sent in alone by Rob Anderson. This sparked the Sachems as they scored two more goals in a matter of minutes. Rick Suvak put a perfect pass to the center of the field and James Campo capitalized as he lunged for his second goal. Campo would end up with a hat trick as he scored the Sachems' fifth and last goal.

The Spartans would get one more goal before their coach got ejected. The Sachems would come out on top 5-2.

On Saturday morning the Sachems took the field against a physical Watertown team. The Sachems came out slow but would end up over the Red Raiders.

The entire game was played in the Watertown end as the Sachems only gave up one shot the entire game. The Sachems' goals come from right winger David Swanson as his hustle paid off as he netted a beautiful goal. The Sachems had many scoring opportunities but couldn't put the ball in the net.

Through the Sachems' relentless attack they came up with second goal of the game James Campo, the Sachems' highest scorer so far, put home a nice pass from Al Serrano. This would be all the Sachems needed to beat Watertown, as the Sachems won 2-0.

The Sachems came out on the short end as they lost a tough game as Wakefield 1-0. The play in the first half was relatively even, except for a goal scored by Denis Melanson of Wakefield.

In the second half the ball was continually down in the Wakefield end of the field but the Sachems could not finish off with a goal.

tense, now directed by Dan Costello, was unable to convert these opportunities into points. Costello's pinpoint passing and punishing rushes could not overcome the swarm of penalties that plagued the Sachems.

No Predictions For Cross Country

By ANNE MARIE REIDY
He's lost three of his best runners to college, and other teams in town may have a head start on them in experience, but Winchester High School cross country coach Joe Cantillon is looking forward to a strong season for his team this year.

"I won't make any predictions," he warned. "The problem we run into is there isn't an awful lot of experience on either team: none of the guys have run more than one season in cross country, and for the girls, only the two co-captains have more than one season's experience."

"We don't have any sort of feeder program — everyone starts out as a high school freshman," he explained. Other school systems have track and field in younger grades, Cantillon said. "And a lot of the other sports in town start early — they begin playing soccer when they're 5."

The slow start in training his runners is compounded by the competition for the top athletes, Cantillon added. High schoolers can only play one sport per season, he pointed out. But, while Cantillon hasn't discovered any individual superstars this year, he's confident he has a strong bread-and-butter team.

Hospice Helps Individuals & Families Cope With Death

By Malcolm Campbell

There are a great many euphemisms for it, but no matter what it is called, death is a hard subject to talk about.

"Death is a taboo subject," explains Rabbi Earl Grollman of Belmont, an internationally renowned authority on death, dying, and bereavement. "It is a subject that people don't want to talk about."

"Death is still the great mystery," says Grollman. "We know all about the beginnings of life, but nobody really knows what happens after. We can theorize and speculate about the world to come, but even if we knew, it's still hard to say goodbye."

Grollman believes religion, no matter what the religion, may not provide solace and comfort even though it may offer an explanation of what the future holds. "Whatever the intimations of immortality, death hurts; death is a rupture," says Grollman.

To help individuals and families cope with the trauma of terminal illness, there has been a growing movement among health-care professionals to provide a much needed service. This service is called hospice.

Symmes Hospital has been home to hospice since 1978 when the Rev. Kenneth Wentzel moved to Arlington from Rhode Island to become pastor of the Pleasant Street Congregational Church. Wentzel was instrumental in establishing a hospice in his former parish of Kingston following his introduction to hospice at St. Christopher's Hospice (named for the patron saint of all travelers) in London.

Wentzel describes hospice as an umbrella organization encompassing a wide variety of health-care providers. He says it was never meant to be an independent organization that would simply add another layer to the myriad of present institutions.

Arlington Hospice director Ed Dolan concurs with Wentzel. "We provide coordination and training for health-care professionals and community people," says Dolan. Yet Dolan feels that the cornerstone of the Arlington Hospice is its volunteerism.

"We have about 20 trained community residents, called hospice support workers," says Dolan. "They are really the centerpiece of what we do for people. They provide emotional support, or they may do simple tasks, not so much as to be in control but to help the family."

Hospice is a relative newcomer to the American healthcare scene. Only recently has hospice been sanctioned to receive Medicare and Medicaid payments by the government. Still, few people are aware of hospice and, among those, there abounds great misconceptions about what hospice is and does.

Wentzel sees the most common misconception about hospice stems from a belief that hospice is "A whole bunch of people descending on the family and taking over."

Wentzel says that there is a fine line between helping and hurting in healthcare, but with hospice, the needs of the family are paramount. Thus, both Dolan and Wentzel assert that hospice is not for everyone.

But when a person's illness is pronounced incurable, and the family decides to contact a hospice, the doctors, nurses, social workers, and volunteers of the hospice approach the family with caring and understanding. Nothing is imposed and nothing is held back.

Hospice care-givers operate according to a philosophy which holds that as each life is unique and, so is each death. "The way a person dies is the way he dies," pronounces Wentzel in his book "For Those Who Need It Most... Hospice Means Hope."

Attempts to pigeonhole the process of dying, says Wentzel, no matter how well intentioned, serve only to dehumanize the person.

This is a major problem with health-care in this country today, says Wentzel. He feels that hospice is an attempt to make medicine more humane.

"Despite our technological brilliance (which Wentzel says he is glad to have), it is the disease that medical science is concerned with, not the patient," explains Wentzel. "Our doctor makes house calls."

"The health-care community is concerned with prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and cure," says Wentzel in his book. "But it has more often than not indifferently turned its back upon people for whom there is no more treatment, no more cure, no more rehabilitation."

Wentzel's book is replete with horror stories told by hospital patients. Well-intentioned, and not-so-well-intentioned acts by hospital staff can be extremely upsetting to people in the midst of a crisis.

Wentzel is not trying to indict the entire health-care profession with these testimonies. Rather he is attempting to demonstrate the objectives of professional medicine as well as the need for the sensitivity and humanity presented by hospice.

Wentzel says that in hospice the terminally ill are not treated as people who are going to die but as living human beings with all the needs and wants and likes and dislikes as anyone else.

On this point Rabbi Grollman agrees most emphatically. Grollman, who has developed "The Dying Person's Bill of Rights," believes that all too often relatives of the terminally ill treat that person as if he were already dead, a "Premortem death" as Grollman puts it. Grollman feels that this is another expression of society's general unwillingness to acknowledge death.

Among the 10 rights propounded by Grollman, number six, the right to be free from pain, is one of the major goals of hospice. Both Dolan and Wentzel agree that the medical establishment often overmedicates the terminally ill in treating pain to the point where the patient becomes unconscious.

In controlling the chronic pain which usually accompanies cancer victims, the majority of hospice clients, hospice care-givers believe in employing any substance or procedure which will lessen the pain.

A particularly effective mixture, known as "Brompton's Cocktail," consisting of heroin, cocaine, alcohol, and an elixir is frequently used. Since possible addiction is not a consideration in treating pain, Brompton's has proven itself without rendering the patient unconscious.

Like the patient who has only his disease treated, the family of the terminally ill is most often left to themselves, feeling angry, confused, and hurt.

"There is a great need for psycho-social support; death is a social occurrence," says Wentzel. "The families are often in great need, not just the dying. But society just drops them. Who cares what the widow feels?"

Wentzel says that hospice is there for the families too, to help them cope with their crisis and come to terms with their feelings. Grollman, echoing Wentzel, says that he helps people most when he tells them that what they are going through is a normal grief response and that whatever they are feeling is ok. Hospice adopts Grollman's position of trying to be as supportive as possible without interfering with the family.

The family who staff the Arlington Hospice, whether they are on the board of directors, are paid administrators, part-time social workers, or volunteer support workers, are special people.

They know that the end of life is an important as the first. They work tirelessly to transform what we all must face and most of us fear, from a cold and bleak expectation to a compassionate and enriching experience for both the dying and their survivors.

It is significant that Wentzel devotes several pages of his book distinguishing between two Greek words for time: chronos and kaïros. It characterizes the outlook of hospice.

"Chronos is objective time. The dispassionate ticking of the clock," explains Wentzel. "Kaïros is qualitative time, subjective time, time unique to each person. Kaïros involves accomplishment, fulfillment, emotion, and richness."

"Hospice care assists people in making whatever time is left to them qualitative time — in filling whatever chronos remains with as much kaïros as possible — with the patients and their families deciding what is kaïros to them."

Residents interested in volunteering or who think they could benefit from Arlington Hospice's services can contact Ed Dolan at 648-3172. Tax deductible donations are also readily accepted. Correspondence can be sent to Hospice Care Inc., 39 Hospital rd.

HOSPICE . . . AN OLD WORD WITH A NEW MEANING.

In earlier times, a hospice was a place of shelter for weary travelers. Today, hospice is a way of caring for the terminally ill and their families through a blend of professional and volunteer support, whether the patient be at home or in a health facility.

Concern for the whole family helps make hospice care different from traditional forms of health care. The hospice team helps the family face their problems and concentrate on achieving quality in the dying person's remaining lifetime.

Hospice Care, Inc. is endorsed by health care agencies and institutions of the towns served.

Local Republicans Gear Up For The Fall Election

Many of Winchester's Republicans and their friends spent an enjoyable evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Culver, 1 Everett ave. at the annual cocktail party sponsored jointly by the Republican Town Committee and the Winchester Women's Republican Club.

An unusually high number of candidates for political office were present. One of the primary candidates for the U. S. Senate, Elliot Richardson, attended the party. His opponent, Ray Shemie, who was ultimately successful in the primary election, sent a friend, Rick Borros, to represent him.

The Republican candidate for the 7th Congressional seat, Lester Ralph, who will be running against the winner of the Democratic primary contest, Ed Markey of Malden, was present at the party. Ralph is hoping that some moderate Democrats who had been supporters of Winchester's Sam Rotondi in the primary election will be voting for him in November. Winchester's state Representative Sherman W. Saltmarsh was present, as was Ed Young, a candidate for treasurer of Middlesex County. Nicholas Polio, who is hoping to become Middlesex County Commissioner, also attended. William Robinson, who is coordinating the Reagan/Bush campaign in Massachusetts was present.

The chairman of the Republican Town Committee, Rushton Harwood, and the president of Winchester Women's Republican Club, Phyllis Johansen, each introduced some of the candidates to the group.

The arrangements for the party were made by Ann Blackham and Martha Finamore. Dawn Whelan and Holly Johansen cordially served food that so many people had provided.

The party raised a healthy amount of money to help with the coming election and inspired many of those who attended to volunteer their help

Seniors Get Opportunity To Question Candidates Candidates To Address Issues

Older people of the Minuteman Home Care Corporation (MHCC) 16-town area, which includes Winchester and Arlington will be gathering on Tuesday, Oct. 2, to find out how the candidates running for Congressional seats feel about decent and affordable health care. Some of the issues include funding for Medicare and Medicaid, national solutions for long term care and how to control rising health care costs.

Special guests will include candidates running from the 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 8th Congressional districts: Elsie Frank, Board Member of the Massachusetts Society of Older Americans; and Susan Sherry, Coordinator of the Mass Health Action Alliance.

The event is being underwritten by a grant from the Villers Foundation and is being co-sponsored by more than 21 community organizations. It is being held from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Heritage Hall, 177 Bedford st. in Lexington. Box lunches may be reserved at one of MHCC's ten Eating Together locations by Sept. 28. A donation of 75¢ is requested from those age 60 or over. For those under age 60, lunches will cost $2.

Transportation for wheelchair participants is available by calling event organizer for MHCC, Terry Dolan at 862-6200 or 263-8720 by Sept. 28. A list of Eating Together Locations can also be obtained by calling the same number.

"The Speak Out is a rare opportunity to be heard by the government decision makers who determine how federal programs are delivered and what they will cost. I look forward to a great attendance and thank the Villers Foundation for its generosity in making this event possible," says Dolan.

MHCC served the elderly in the 16 towns of Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Littleton, Lincoln, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn.

Seniors To See Musical Next Month

On Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 24, the Winchester Seniors Assn. have scheduled a trip to see the popular musical, "42nd Street."

This is an opportunity for those who were unable to get reservations on the first trip this summer to enjoy an afternoon at the theater.

Make reservations immediately by calling the Jenks Senior Center.

The two buses will leave the parking lot at 12:30 to attend the matinee. The cut-off date for reservations is Sept. 28, since final arrangements must be completed with the theater by Oct. 1. At press time, at least 40 seats were available for the door-to-door trip.

"We do not rush a job. We are careful in every detail and when we finish, we end up with a most satisfied customer."

Stormtite, located at 170 Belmont st. in Watertown, was started in 1953 by Harry Karnik as a manufacturer of aluminum windows and doors. After completing college, John Karnik joined his father in the business. Over the years, the siding division has played an increasing role in Stormtite's business.

A unique customer relationship has continued throughout the company's existence. Customer referrals play an important part in Stormtite's sales, and customer satisfaction is so evident that payment for work is generally accompanied by a "thank-you" note.

The operation of siding installation is a total and complete process. Stormtite employs seven siding crews, one roofing crew, two window installers, two door installers and one painter. Each installation is carefully planned and supervised.

Last year, Stormtite had its best year in history. "Our work is of top quality," said John Karnik. "Our mechanics know their business. Either my father or I make periodic checks. Our customers trust us and we do everything possible to retain this trust. Each house is handled as if it were one of our own."

"The homeowners in our working community want something more than a low price," he added. "They want to be secure in knowing that they will be receiving quality workmanship. In this business, as in others, the customer usually gets what he pays for. We do not rush a job. We are careful in every detail and when we finish, we end up with a most satisfied customer. It's always a pleasure to receive letters of appreciation from our customers."

The primary area served by Stormtite includes such historic towns as Arlington, Belmont and Lexington.

The company can be reached by calling 924-2254 or 484-8353.

Sachems Slaughter Belmont, By 41

By DAVID LEECO

There's a tremendous temptation to get carried away after Saturday's 41-0 pulverization of Belmont.

Visions of championships and Super Bowls dance in the head after the Sachems' second straight massacre.

It's not that the hallucinations of greatness are unmerited. Consider the following: After only two games, the Sachems have

- Not allowed a single point to be scored against them.
- Scored almost at will, racking up a total of 75 points despite playing reserves much of both games.
- Picked up 774 yards in total offense, an amazing 375 yard per game average.
- Held their two opponents to a grand total of just 65 yards rushing and 77 yards passing.
- Allowed their opponents only five first downs in two games, one for Somerville, four for Belmont.
- Punted only twice — never against Belmont, twice against Somerville.

Sounds like a juggernaut or at least a scoring machine.

But caution is in order. First of all, the massacres have come against teams who are not known for their football programs. Belmont has scored only once in two games while giving up 62 points.

Secondly, the Sachems have done this to us in the past — started out like gangbusters only to fold when the going gets tough.

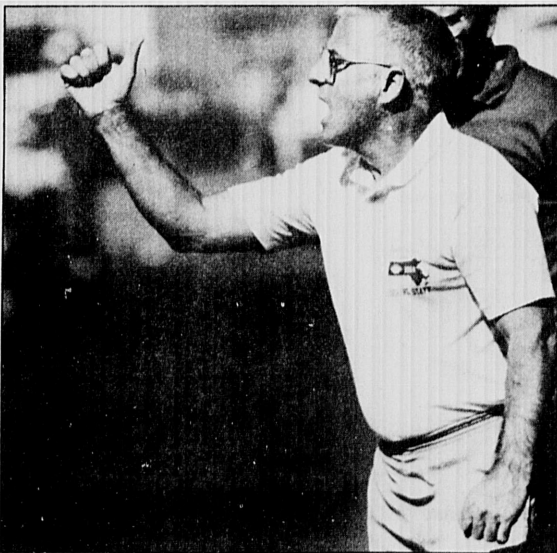

But this squad seems different. There's a spirit on this team that says the "el foldu" won't happen this time, a spirit that says anyone who doesn't take the 1984 Sachems seriously will pay for their error.

Lord knows Belmont did.

For 100 Years

Historical Society Has Been Preserving Town's Past

By Malcolm Campbell

A local equivalent of Trivial Pursuits might include the question: What do the names Waterfield, South Medford, and Winchester have in common?

The answer: they are the names of the same town (Winchester is the most current).

The history of Winchester is full of all sorts of such fascinating tidbits. A crafty Winchester inventor named Goddu is credited with creating the first paperclip. As a tribute to his ingenuity, the town named Goddu ave. after him.

And speaking of roadways, what is today known as Main st. was at one time a well-trod footpath. Over 300 years ago it served as The Highway for Native Americans traveling between what we call New England and Canada. As they had no horses, and the airplane had yet to be invented, these aboriginal people would walk all the way.

For fans of paleontology, Winchester is home to a peculiar pre-glacial plant not found anywhere else for a thousand miles around. It is called the Scirpus Halli and is so rare that it has no common name.

Taken individually, these kinds of fun facts make unusual anecdotes at cocktail parties. But together they are not just interesting facts. Rather, they represent the memory of Winchester, a chronicle of the people, the values, and the forces which have given shape to the Winchester of today.

Yet, without the Winchester Historical Society, it is likely that a knowledge and understanding of Winchester's past would have been lost—buried beneath the sands of time.

For 100 years now, the Historical Society has been preserving precious records and artifacts of Winchester, past and present. Some of the records in the society's archives date back to the 1600s when Myles Standish first explored the area. Others date to the 1960s.

The history of the society is a tale fluence development decisions in town and what would be lost if the society were to become "a little historical society stuck in some building, run by little old ladies in tennis shoes."

Keats says that she is not sure what should be done with the archives. Yet she emphasizes the importance of keeping the archives accessible.

"I'm a great believer in getting where you're going from knowing where you've been," Keats explains. "The most important thing in planning for the future is that you've got to understand how people made decisions about what is there now. You have to have a sense of the past, otherwise you are working in a vacuum."

History is perpetually in the making, and the Historical Society has spent a century preserving the memory of Winchester so that we may learn of our past. Perhaps, in another hundred years or so, future generations of Winchester residents will look back on the late 20th century to gain an understanding of their time. They will be able to do this because the Historical Society knew they would want to.

Anyone interested in joining the Winchester Historical Society may contact Dorothy Wadsworth, membership chairman. The society meets monthly. Dues are $5 a year, $10 per family, or $100 for life membership. The archives at 15 High st. will be open every Wednesday from 1 to 5 after the summer break.

Dancing for UCP

Students and instructors in the fall session of Jacki Sorensen's Aerobic Dancing classes held locally are getting ready for Danceathon '84 for United Cerebral Palsy on Oct. 13 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Reading Field House.

This Boston area Danceathon is one of 50 being held nationally this fall by the Jacki Sorensen Aerobic Lifestyle Program to benefit UCP. The 3-hour danceathon will have between 600 to 1,000 people dancing simultaneously from 54 Boston area towns, including Winchester.

Jacki Sorensen will be on hand to conduct one hour of the danceathon, and Sean Casey of WROR will act as emcee. All spectators are welcome and there is no charge for admission.

Pledges for each dance performed will be collected by the students and instructors and a participation fee will all be donated to United Cerebral Palsy.

features clowns representing the world's most famous jugglers.

When activated by a switch in the back, the clowns, which glow against the black light backdrop, juggle hoops, balls and bowling pins. For the complete effect, bubbly circus tunes rise up from behind the stage, while the clowns merrily juggle in time with the music.

In yet another workshop area, Shannon fiddles with an automated juggling toy made from a small drum, a digital timing device and weighing scale parts.

"It's only up to juggling three balls so far," he explains almost apologetically. "I'm working on getting it up to six or seven eventually," he added determinedly.

Meals Given High Rating

Minuteman Home Care Corp. (MHCC), a non-profit agency serving the elderly in the 16 towns including Arlington and Winchester provides the weekday delivery of meals by volunteers to elderly homebound persons in 11 of these communities.

A recent survey of the recipients of these meals was conducted by Eileen Morabito, MHCC Home Delivery Meals Coordinator, to learn how the meals were rated. A majority (68 percent) of the meal recipients responded to the survey. Respondents largely approved the variety (75 percent), quantity (83 percent), and taste (70 percent) of the meals.

Ten percent of respondents queried participate in a modified form of the program that includes once-weekly delivery of frozen meals.

"It means a little more work in preparing one's meal, but has had positive effects as well," said Morabito. "About half of the

After flicking the switch and waiting for the timer to indicate that the contraption see-sawing at the proper speed, Shannon plops a small metal ball onto the basket atop the drum. The basket automatically releases the ball to fall on the drum head below, giving off a resounding thud.

As he adds more metal balls, they bounce methodically off the drum head and into the baskets. Over and over again, they beat out a rhythm like an amateur drummer practicing his first lesson plan.

Over the comical din, Shannon jokes that there doesn't seem to be any practical purpose for the machine. "But it's fun, anyhow," he says with a smile.

The Sachems scored the first six times they had the ball and failed to score only twice in the entire game. Once they fumbled at the Belmont eight and the other time the clock ran out or they probably would have made the score even more embarrassing.

It was a group effort — 17 players gained a total of 417 yards for the Sachems. Scott Binding led the way in rushing with 83 yards followed by Brian Carroll with 52. Quarterback Bob Palmer threw for 70 yards with 3 completions out of six attempts. Dave Manganaro caught two passes for 60 yards.

The first drive gave Belmont a good indication of what they were in for.

In just three plays, Winchester was in the end zone. Binding ran for three yards (his shortest carry of the day), Carroll picked up 26 on a pitch from Palmer and Manganaro pulled in a pass for a 46-yard touchdown.

Winchester gave the ball to Belmont for the requisite four downs and then started the process all over again — this time on the ground. In eight plays covering 73 yards, the Sachems made it 13-0.

Hospice Volunteers To Train

On October 9, Hospice Care will begin its fifth training program for volunteers interested in working with people who have a terminal illness and with their families.

Training will include examination of personal thoughts and beliefs about life and dying; dynamic issues of a life-threatening illness; listening and counseling skills; aspects of a helping relationship; and bereavement and grief resolution.

From previous training programs Hospice Care has 20 active support workers. Each works with one family at a time and continues to assist the family during bereavement. Support workers receive regular consultation and are involved in a continuing education program.

The training program will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 9, and continue weekly on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m. for 12 sessions. A commitment

Belmont did the old three-plays-and-punt routine and the Sachems did the old down-the-field-and-score routine again. From their own 14, Binding gobbled up 31 yards and before Belmont knew it, the Winchester wishbone was knocking on the door again.

On third and goal from the Belmont nine, Palmer faked a pitch and waltzed into the endzone untouched. Chris Costello converted his second of three extra point attempts to make it 20-0.

After Belmont turned the ball back to the Sachems, Manganaro picked up 16 yards on a reverse from the Winchester 49 and another 14 on a pass from Palmer.

Binding then picked up another ten and, with Palmer out after taking a hard shot, Mike White came in and hit Binding with a 16-yard TD pass. Score: 27-0.

At this point, it was getting ludicrous. Carroll ran back a punt 67 yards for a touchdown and Pete DelVecchio scored another TD on a two-yard run.

End of slaughter, end of game. Bring on Wakefield.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE NOTESStudent Union

School Committee members praised the report offered by Student Advisory Committee representative Suzanne Prolich on the initial activities of the Student Union at the high school.

Prolich reported that a luau dance held Saturday night grossed $1,100, netting $700 for the Student Union fund. Student Union officials are also discussing the possibility of running a Homecoming dance at the end of the football season.

Student Union members have been active in setting up a new coffee shop in the cafeteria, offering coffee, tea and pastries from school's opening until lunch — a success with the student body, Prolich said.

They are also deep in discussions with Food Services personnel about updating the school lunch program to include innovations like a salad bar, in hopes of keeping students at school for lunch.

Funds raised by the Student Union go to support school activities. Groups can apply for funds for special activities, such as the band's proposed trip to the Peach Bowl this winter.

School Committee chairman Dr. Michael Ronayne praised the report, as did several other members. "Let's let them take over the budget," offered Supt. Charles Mitsakos, with a broad smile.

Bus Added

Supt. Charles Mitsakos informed School Committee members that a seventh bus has been added to the school bus routes, and that seems to have solved persistent lateness on some runs.

"We can now operate within the estimated time frames," Dr. Mitsakos informed the board. "The cut last year from nine buses to six was a bit drastic; we cut a little leaner than we needed to get the job done."

Mitsakos added that he had looked into comments by some School Committee members that Lexington has seat belts on its school buses.

"I called them, and they don't have any on their regular transportation," he reported. "And according to three contacts I've made, no one in Massachusetts has any in their regular vehicles. In New York state, there is one community that has them, and I'll check with them."

"The Registry (of Motor Vehicles) is working with the Dept. of Education and trying to come up with specifications — so would you like to wait until those are developed, or pursue this?" Mitsakos asked the board.

"How long will that be?" asked Dr. Roger Bauman, a committee member. Mitsakos said state officials couldn't say how long.

"Why don't you keep track of it and keep us informed?" suggested Bauman. Board members agreed to it.

Student Honors

A beaming Supt. Charles Mitsakos told School Committee members he had good news for them on several fronts.

Two high school students, Kathy Shao and Elizabeth Lee, were among 850 students nationwide to receive awards for achievement in writing from the National Council of Teachers of English.

The high school had six semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition, and 27 additional students who won commendations — an increase over last year's 21 students, and 24 the year before.

And, Mitsakos added happily, SAT scores had risen significantly for the high school, to an average score of 513 in the math (compared to a national average of 471) and 480 in the verbal.

Mitsakos was especially happy with the verbal scores, which represented an increase of 13 points over Winchester's average score last year.

"We feel this is directly related to the programs our staff and teachers have developed," he told board members, adding with a grin that he would of course deny any direct relationship had the scores dropped 13 points.

Mitsakos promised board members more details on the SAT scores when they become available.

Refurbishing

Winchester's school yards will get a freshening up and some much-needed renovation if a plan put together by Supt. Charles Mitsakos, Acting Town Manager Rick White and Town Engineer John Ciarcia is approved by Town Meeting for a fall study and first-phase funding in the spring.

"We've been studying the major repairs needed for the buildings, and a new dimension of that are the grounds around the schools," Mitsakos explained.

"Dick Young, the principal at Muraco, and Ralph Johnson, a resident whose business is landscaping, have looked at all the grounds around town, and met with all the town agencies — and the playing field study committee — to incorporate all their concerns."

As a result, the Town Engineer has drawn up initial drafts of the work we need done, ranging from tree work to new irrigation systems for some of the playing fields," Mitsakos said, rolling out sketches made by Ciarcia. "I believe the intent was to submit the overall proposal to the fall Town Meeting, to study the proposal, and have the study recommendations ready for the spring session."

The program to update the grounds would be expensive and long term, Mitsakos said, but necessary.

Fall, Winter Events Outlined

At the board meeting of Church Women United, President Diane Geoghegan outlined the programs which would take place during the fall and winter months.

For November the annual sale of United Cards hosted by the Baptist and St. Mary's Churches with headquarters at Swanson Associates, Realtors, and Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nursery will take place.

The annual meeting and luncheon has been set for Feb. 12, 1985, at 12:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church.

World Day of Prayer, current theme of Peace Through Prayer and Action, will be observed on March 1, hosted by St. Mary's Church. The speaker will be Mary Hennessey, RC, Director of Ministerial Studies, and at the Harvard Divinity School.

Volunteers for Meals on Wheels was finalized to the end of the year. Mrs. Jennette Dugley, Chairman of the Meditation Room at the Winchester Hospital, announced that there will be a dedication sometime in the fall. The public will be invited.

Area Special Needs Studied

The Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn. Inc., in conjunction with the Alternative Leisure Co. Inc., is conducting a study to assess the need for special needs recreation/leisure programs for area residents. The recreational courses/programs will be offered, if need is determined, this fall for pre-school children, school-age children, young adults, and adults in Winchester, Arlington, Burlington, Lexington and Wilmington.

The courses and programs will be in six- to eight-week segments and include such areas as Nautilus-fitness, horseback riding, ice skating, soccer, swimming, basketball, cooking, music, racquetball, creative movement, play art and more.

For more information, contact the Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn. in Lexington or the Alternative Leisure Co. Inc. in Bedford.

Teen Talk

The Teen Talk column welcomes questions for teens, their families and friends about concerns and problems. Questions should be sent to Teen Talk, in care of The Arlington Advocate, P.O. Box 129, Arlington, 02174. Letters need not be signed. All questions will be treated confidentially.

The responses will be formulated under the direction of Patsy Kraemer, director of the Arlington Youth Consultation Center, with the assistance of area counselors, teachers, recreation leaders and clergymen.

Q. Can you explain to me what Boy George is all about? Why would a man want to look like that? I'm confused.

Boy George wants to look like that because he makes a lot of money. A friend of mine recently visited England and related to me her feeling that stars like Boy George and the "punk look" are a reflection of the alienation felt by the youth in that country. Boy George is very different to say the least and can be seen as a symbol for kids being different from the "adult culture."

Q. Our 14-year-old boy was always well behaved and polite. Lately he has been moody and disrespectful to his father and I. What could make a boy change like this?

Your son has entered adolescence. A very important goal of adolescence is the separation of child from parent — paving the way of adulthood. But the road is often rocky! Many, many parents describe their teenage as Jekyll and Hyde. Moodiness is a normal hallmark of adolescence.

Disrespect also often appears during adolescence. It's a way to "push off" from you and your husband — a way to break away and "not need you so much anymore". It's sometimes easier to break away from important people by being angry at them and that is where the disrespect may come from.

Watch out that the disrespect doesn't get out of hand. You are still the bosses in the house and need to let him know that.

Q. Since my son entered Junior High School he has started spending time with older boys and I am afraid they might be getting into trouble. He has started sassing me around and it is always a struggle now to get him to help out at home. What should I do?

You need to carefully assess what is really going on with your son. Sassing you around and resisting household chores are often normal, though unpleasant signs of adolescence. Spending time with older boys may also be perfectly harmless — meeting a desire on your son's part to be more grown-up.

However, do watch for any signs of budding trouble, such as breaking curfew, skipping school, coming home "out-of-it," secretiveness. Try to talk with your son in a concerned, but non-accusative way to let him know you want him to grow up, but you want him to do it safely and wisely.

You might also check with the school and ask for a report on his behavior and academic performance. And lastly, you might look for some support for yourself — someone you trust to talk to about the trials, tribulations, and questions about being the parent of an adolescent.

Q. My wife and I have been having problems and are thinking of separating. We have two children, ages 12 and 14. How can we talk about this with them and when is the best time?

The best time is now to let your children know their lives may change drastically. Kids know something is amiss at home even when it's unspoken. It's helpful to them to get the unspoken out on the table; otherwise their fantasies go wild and they often think they are to blame.

In talking with them make sure you don't ask — even in subtle ways — for them to choose up sides. Don't "bad mouth" each other in front of them. Do let them ask questions and answer honestly.

Don't hesitate to consider professional help during this time. It is one of the most traumatic things all of you will go through.

Best wishes.

Q. My daughter wants to go live with her father (my ex-husband) now that she is going into the eighth grade. I don't know if I should let her go or not. Why does she want to go now? Will she feel abandoned by me if I let her?

That is a really hard decision to make. It is important to assess what is happening between you and your daughter right now. If leaving you is a way to avoid important growing up issues (the grass is greener with father) then it is not such a good idea to make a change until the issues have been addressed between you two.

But if things between you are in a reasonably good place and your daughter simply wants to know her father better then it is important for her to have that chance.

This is a time when good communication between you is essential so there aren't feelings of abandonment and rejection for both of you. If you need help discussing such a sensitive issue, ask an outsider you both trust — a family friend, minister, counselor — to help get everything out in the open.

MAKE A SAFE, LONG-BURNING FIRE-STARTER, FROM FIREPLACE ASHES PLUS KEROSENE OR DISTILLATE. IN A LARGE CONTAINER (LIKE A 3 LB. COFFEE CAN WITH A PLASTIC LID), GRADUALLY MIX A BIG BROWN BAG OF ASHES WITH ABOUT 20 OUNCES OF LIQUID, STIRRING UNTIL LIQUID IS ABSORBED. MIX SHOULD BE MOIST BUT NOT MUDDY WET. STORE IT SAFELY, WITH A TIGHT LID. THIS STARTER LIGHTS SOFTLY, WITH NO FLASHY BANG. BUT IT MUST BE USED WITH CARE, LIKE ANY FLAMMABLE.

Cooking CornerParadise Island Does Exist

"Supernatural Cool breeze ... Buddha's paradise Must be thataway." — Issa

By Toni Griffin
Copley News Service

Fantasy Island exists. Nestled in the gentle curving of a San Marcos, Calif., hillside, The Golden Door Spa presents a serene, ordered place of relaxation to its guests, with particular attention to the balance of beauty, sane eating and a healthy lifestyle.

A staff of more than 100 attends to the 35 weekly guests, making the place an idyllic locale for physical or psychological renewal.

Perhaps more than the exercise programs, massages and beauty programs, the key to the success of the $2,500-a-week spa is the cuisine of the brilliant chef Michel Stroot. In his low-calorie, no-salt, no-sugar regimen, he nearly eliminates the use of butter and cream, creating no-guilt feasts delightful to eye and palate. By doing so, and adding his own creative genius, Stroot designs 700-, 900- and 1,100-calorie menus for lavishly pampered guests.

To break mid-morning hunger, Stroot oversaw the creation of a mammoth arrangement of fresh vegetables, which he calls an "appetite spoiler." The object is to take the edge off a keen appetite and then follow it with a light, appealing meal.

Stroot prefers to serve fruits and vegetables "as close to raw as possible," with only slight steaming or stir-frying as the typical methods of heating foods.

With all the healthy food choices available, what's "out" for Chef Stroot? "Prime rib, hamburger, fried chicken ... and certainly soft yogurt with chocolate sauce!"

There is no question — while under the spell of communication with health and serenity, thoughts of fatty foods melt away in the Golden Door quest for revitalization.

Following are some of Michel Stroot's recipes from The Golden Door Spa. Recipes are taken from "Golden Door Cookbook, The Greening of American Cuisine," by Deborah Szekely with Chef Michel Stroot (Golden Door Inc., P.O. Box 1567, Escondido, CA 92025, $24.75), with the exception of the California Gold Salad, which Stroot recently created.

CHICKEN BREAST IN LIME WITH TOMATILLO SAUCE

- 2 chicken breasts, halved, boned, skinned and fat removed, cut in 1-inch pieces (3 oz. each serving)
- 2 tbsps. lime juice
- Dash of cayenne
- 1 tbsp. sesame oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 large Anaheim pepper, seeds removed and sliced thin
- 4 green onions, cut 1-inch long

- 6-8 tomatillos, peeled, seeded and diced
- 2 large tomatoes, peeled, seeded and diced
- 2 tps. arrowroot or potato starch, dissolved in water
- 2 tbsps. coarsely chopped cilantro
- Lime and finely grated carrot (garnish)

Marinate chicken in lime juice with dash of cayenne for 2 hours. In non-stick skillet, saute chicken in few drops of sesame oil, stir with wooden spatula until almost done, cover and set aside.

In separate skillet, saute garlic, Anaheim pepper and green onions in remaining sesame oil, until soft. Add tomatillos and cook 4 to 5 minutes. Add diced tomato to heat, pour this tomatillo sauce over cooked chicken and let bubble, thicken with arrowroot, sprinkle cilantro and serve on 4 separate plates. Garnish with lime and grated carrot.

Served with the whole crayfish perched on the edge of a square plate, this salad is a visual as well as gustatory pleasure.

CALIFORNIA GOLD SALAD

- 1 Arugula Salad
- 1 large head Romaine lettuce washed and torn by hand
- 1 cup sunflower sprouts
- 1 cup buckwheat sprouts
- ¼ cup of lemon dressing
- 2 tbsps. toasted sesame seeds
- 8 thin sliced avocados
- 8 wedges of grapefruit
- 8 red onion rings
- 4 steamed California crayfish
- 4 large slices yellow zucchini
- Olive oil
- 1 thin slice chevre cheese, slightly melted
- Sprinkling of fresh oregano

Line four salad plates with Arugula leaves. Toss together Romaine lettuce, sunflower sprouts, buckwheat sprouts and lemon dressing. Divide on four lined plates. Sprinkle salads with toasted sesame seeds. Garnish with avocado slices, grapefruit wedges, onion rings and crayfish. Top with zucchini brushed with olive oil, slice of slightly melted chevre cheese and oregano.

This broth is served daily to provide potassium balance.

POTASSIUM BROTH

- 3 cups vegetable trimmings (celery, carrot, parsley, zucchini, mushrooms, lettuce, spinach, etc.)
- 8-10 fresh tomatoes, liquefied in blender
- 1 onion, diced
- ½ tsp. ground sweet basil
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 garlic bud
- 2 cups liquid from steamed vegetables (if available), or water

Place all ingredients in stockpot; boil 20 minutes. Strain through sieve or colander, and serve hot or cold. If desired, next day reheat broth with fresh vegetable trimmings. There are 35 calories per serving.

HERBED VEGETABLE RICE

- 2 cups water
- 1 cup short-grain brown rice, rinsed
- ½ tsp. anise seeds
- 2 tps. olive oil
- 2 tps. garlic, minced
- ½ cup celery, diced
- ½ cup red or green bell pepper, diced
- ½ cup walnuts chopped
- ½ cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 2 tps. curry powder
- 2 tbsps. soy sauce (low sodium)
- 1 tsp. lemon zest, grated
- Dash of vegetable seasoning
- ½ cup scallions, diced (garnish)

For 30 minutes, gently boil rice and anise seeds, covered. Set aside, still covered, for 15 minutes to let rice swell. While rice cooks, prepare remaining ingredients. In skillet, heat oil and gently saute garlic. Add celery, bell pepper, walnuts, mushrooms. Sprinkle curry, and cook briefly.

Add vegetables to cooked rice, and fluff mixture together. Season with soy sauce, lemon zest and vegetable seasoning. Garnish and serve.

Serve as vegetarian main course, or as a side dish with chicken, fish or veal. Other vegetables such as zucchini, kohlrabi, cauliflower, broccoli, etc. can be added.

PEAR AND ZUCCHINI WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

- 1 ripe pear, cored, quartered and thinly sliced
- Zucchini, grated (enough to make 2 cups when combined with pear)
- ¾ cup walnuts, freshly chopped
- 1½ cups sesame seed or safflower oil
- 1¼ cups honey
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- ¾ tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. sea salt
- 1 tsp. ground cloves
- 3 cups whole wheat pastry flour
- 2 eggs
- 1 tbsp. grated lemon peel

Preheat oven to 325 F. Combine pear and zucchini with walnuts; set this bowl aside.

In food processor, mix oil and honey; add baking powder, baking soda, sea salt and cloves. Combine. Add ½ of flour and process well. Add eggs, and whirl in lemon peel and balance of flour. Pour mixture into zucchini-pear bowl, and mix well with spatula.

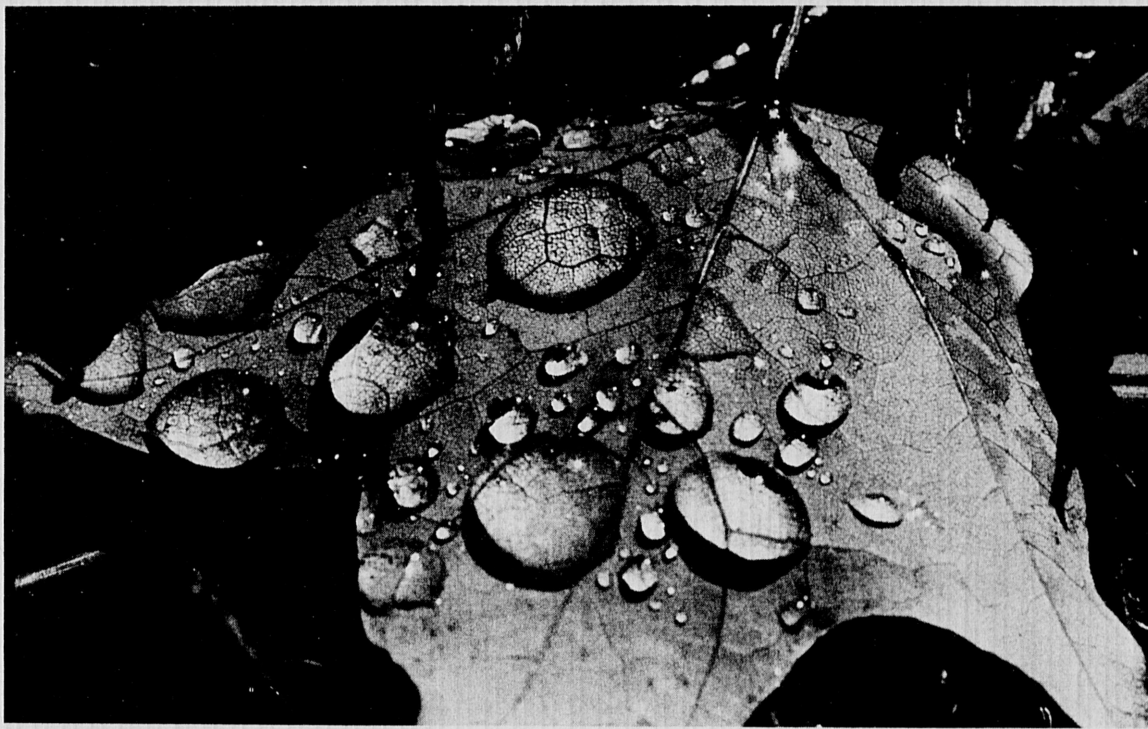

Oil two 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pans; line bottoms with waxed paper. Divide mixture into two baking dishes. Bake 1 hour and 20 minutes, or until tester comes out dry and middle of cake bounces back to touch. Freezes well.

Makes 32 slices.

Taking A Closer Look

Winchester photographer Robert Cummings captured a bee's eye view of a Plantain lily and a maple leaf recently using a 55 mm Micro Nikon lens on a Nikon camera and Tri-X film (ASA 400) with the subject back-lighted. The water droplets on the maple leaf act as magnifying lenses, revealing the leaf's vein structure. Century Newspapers welcomes readers' photographs. Here's How

Q. We have foul odor coming from the kitchen sink drain on the garbage disposer side. It happens several times a month from that drain, but nowhere else in the house.

The garbage disposer is used only occasionally. I have taken it apart and I've also checked the hose from the dishwasher, looking for decaying material. There was none in either place.

I have scrubbed the garbage disposer cavity, replaced the rubber collar and stopper for the sink drain, and have tried certain other treatments. Nothing helps.

Do you think the foul odor could be coming up from the sewer? If so, what should be done? If not, what else do you think? — E.R.P.

A. The trap may have gone dry because of evaporation of water that should close it, or a crack in a waste or vent pipe, or a loosened joint in the waste line.

The U-trap is designed so that there should always be water in it. This water prevents sewer gases from backing up into the house. These gases are toxic and sometimes inflammable. That is why, when it is necessary for any reason to drain the water from the pipes, that some water be kept in the traps.

Incidentally, when the trap under the kitchen sink gets clogged every year or so, it usually means that someone is permitting non-liquid substances to go down the drain instead of removing them from the sink.

Heavy grease can also coat the wall of the trap and cause trouble. When such grease cannot effectively be prevented from entering the drain, it is a good idea to turn on the hot water for a few minutes to flush away the grease before it has a chance to settle in the trap.

If it is a case that the trap has gone dry, pour a pail of water into the drain. If you cannot find the trouble after probing all these possibilities, I strongly suggest you call a competent plumber for a thorough inspection. A qualified plumber should be able to determine what is wrong.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF you think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 38 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-833-3102 for further information.

Old Rifles Wanted

OLD RIFLES, carbines, early cartridge made before 1898 such as 45-70 trapdoor Springfield, Remington rolling block single shots, certain lever action Winchester and old muzzleloaders wanted. Especially a short barreled gun. Fair market price paid depending on condition. Call Mr. Jorgensen, publisher, Century Publications Inc. to arrange appraisal. 729-8100.

LOOKING FOR BUILDING LOT?

Not everyone wants to buy an existing home. Some prefer to buy land and build their dream house on it. If you are worried about building lot availability - don't.
There is land to build on nationally and locally.

Want to talk big figures? The total land area in the United States amounts to 2.26
BILLION acres. This can be broken down into 703 million acres of forest, 587 million acres of grassland and ranges, 471 million acres of farmland and 345 million acres of urban land, deserts and swamps. Sixty percent of all the land is privately owned, 33% is owned by the federal government and 7% by state and local governments. Of all this land, only 5% is devoted to housing, manufacturing, shopping and transportation.

Even though our population has tripled since 1900, 95% of all the available land is still undeveloped.
That's a lot of land.

If you are looking for a building lot in this area, we may have fine lots available in various price ranges. Let's talk about it.

Backyard Gardener

Vacation's End For Houseplants

By Patrick Denton
Copley News Service

In many areas it's just about roundup time in the houseplant corral — time to begin the move indoors of those potted specimens still presently vacationing on our patios and balconies, and in garden beds.

Most of our flowering houseplants will have fattened considerably in a location with bright light and some protection from the afternoon sun. Kept pinched, fed and watered during the summer, they'll be attractively bushy and ready to begin their gradual move toward the indoors.

Even a scraggly and exhausted poinsettia plant by summer's end will have taken on new life. My own poinsettias were given to us last Christmas in beautiful full red bloom — three plants in the pot. But by winter's end, sad to say, they were a sorry sight indeed.

But cut back quite severely, and repotted individually and summered outdoors, they've exhibited a most gratifying resurrection as lovely bushes. Now comes the quandary. Shall I be happy with them as excellent, easy-care foliage plants, or shall I give one or all of them the special care they need to bloom for Christmas?

This care involves giving the plants total darkness for 14 hours each night for a period of 10 weeks beginning Oct. 1. And unless you have a room in which no light is ever turned on from 5 p.m. to 7 a.m., this will mean setting it in a totally dark closet or covering it with a large cardboard box every night. Once the top leaves are showing color, around Dec. 1, this darkness control can be discontinued, as household light at night will no longer affect it.

To decide which route to take with your poinsettia plants, scrutinize carefully the facilities in your own home, to see how difficult or easy this dark treatment would be.

During the day, your poinsettias will need to be in good natural light near a window, and protected from dry air and all drafts, cold and heat. Temperatures between 50 F at night and 72 F during the day are just right.

As we continue ambling through our houseplant collection, we'll find in a similar protected spot with dappled shade or filtered sun the succulent plants such as kalanchoe, Christmas cactus and orchid cactus. These are among the last I begin moving indoors, because it seems to me that a touch of cold (no frost though) toughens and hardens them for good indoor bloom.

These plants also should be receiving reduced water now, again to harden them a bit for their life indoors. Kalanchoes should begin blooming in December if they're given no artificial light after dark once they're back indoors.

Christmas cactus are still another kind of plant whose blooms are triggered by long nights — they need 10 weeks of 10-hour totally dark nights to set buds, OR a cool spot around 50 F for at least a month. Either condition will induce flower production.

Many houseplant buffs think their Christmas cactuses have gone crazy when flowers appear in spring or during the fall. But actually they've not gone off track at all; they're just revealing their true type.

There are actually three types of "Christmas" cactus — Thanksgiving cactus, with sharp teeth along the edges of each segment of stem, usually begins blooming in October; Christmas cactus has more rounded, scalloped edges and blooms from November to January; Easter cactus blooms in spring and has more elongated stem segments that are smooth and toothless.

Chevre A Trendy Base For Recipes

By Toni Griffin
Copley News Service

You've seen them in trendy grocery markets and cheese stores. Perhaps you have wondered how those cylinders, patties, drums, and pyramids of cheese — some dusted with gray ashes — could possibly be the forms of the "darling" cheese of the day.

The pure white chevre, as the goat's milk cheese is named, is a relatively new food on the American market, and many have not learned its tangy, distinctive flavor. Nor do they realize that the cheese is a delicious base for numerous recipes, as millions of French cheese lovers have known for centuries.

Yet the cheese is catching on. In fact, according to Jan Stuebing of Food and Wines from France, Inc., consumption of the cheese is booming. "In 1980, 117 tons of goat's milk cheese were imported for the entire year; now, with statistics for only the first six months of 1984, 148.8 tons have been brought over."

And California chevre-maker Laura Chenel says, "Once discovered and appreciated, chevre will become part of American foods. Chevre is the brie of the '80s."

She should know. Since the early '80s, the quiet young woman has successfully spearheaded production growth of domestic goat's milk cheeses, resulting in a nationwide interest.

Her company is an indication of the growing popularity of the locally-created goat cheese. From the tiny beginnings of her California Chevre company in 1981, Chenel expects to create 60,000 pounds of the cheese for 1984 consumption.

Chenel takes more than her goat cheese company seriously. Last year, she decided to further the education of the American palate by writing a cookbook and teaching about the product. The result is "Chevre! The Goat Cheese Cookbook," which Chenel co-authored with Linda Siegfried.

Here are some hints on cooking with chevre (pronounced "chev"): — For best results in incorporating goat cheese with other ingredients, crumble the cheese, rather than puree or smash it.

— Although heat sensitive, chevre freezes well, most successfully in small pieces.

— Wines which complement chevre well include full-bodied chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, cabernet sauvignon, zinfandel or pinot noir.

— Goat cheese must be added to hot sauces and soups at the last minute or the cheese will become grainy and separate. If a soup or sauce becomes too runny due to cheese breaking down, do not reduce it. Add some cornstarch to a little cream and add that to the soup or sauce to thicken it.

kled on top, or with goat cheese croutons. Can make in advance. Reheat slowly and carefully. Makes 6 servings.

To make croutons, use this simple recipe:

GOAT CHEESE CROUTONS

$\frac{2}{3}$ cup flour
3 tbsps. butter
5 ozs. chevre, crumbled
3 tbsps. sour cream or fromage blanc
1 egg white, lightly beaten
Coarse sea salt

Roll flour, butter, cheese and sour cream into logs about as thick as quarter. Chill, wrapped in waxed paper, at least 1 hour. Cut logs into coil shapes about $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick. Prick with fork and brush with egg white. Sprinkle with sea salt. Bake 12-15 minutes in 350 F oven until lightly browned. Cool and serve.

BROCCOLI WITH WALNUT-CHEVRE SAUCE

2 tbsps. butter or walnut oil
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
4 ozs. chevre (chablis, pyramide, taupiniere), crumbled
6 tbsps. heavy cream
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fresh parsley, chopped
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fresh chives, chopped
1 tsp. fresh oregano, chopped or 1 tsp. dried
1 lb. fresh broccoli

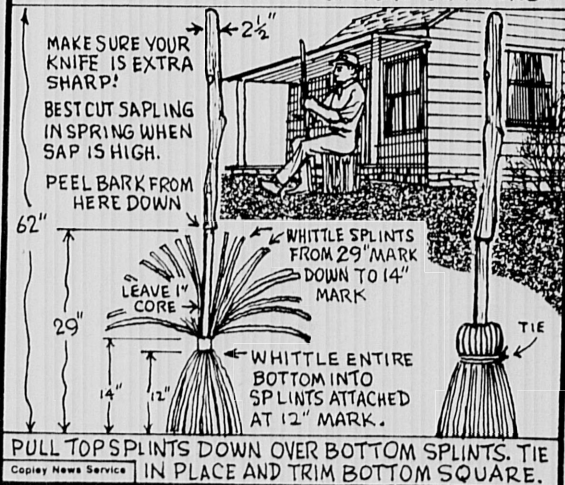

In medium saucepan, melt butter or walnut oil. Add and saute walnuts. When nuts are lightly toasted, add chevre, heavy cream, parsley, chives and oregano to saucepan. Stir until thoroughly mixed and cheese is melted. Keep warm. Wash and trim broccoli ends and cut into spears. Steam broccoli approximately 5 minutes until fork tender. Arrange broccoli spears on serving plate. Pour walnut-chevre sauce over broccoli and serve hot.

Makes 6 servings.

Your Social Security

Income Benefit May Be Taxable

Copley News Service

Q. If one-half of Social Security benefits received in 1984 are taxed, will the taxes paid on this amount go into the Social Security Trust Funds? — C.R.

A. Yes.

Beginning this year, a portion of a person's Social Security benefit will be included in his or her taxable income if the person's adjusted gross income, plus non-taxable interest income and half of his or her Social Security benefits, is more than a base amount.

The base amount for an individual is $25,000; for a couple filing jointly it is $32,000; for a couple filing separately it is zero.

Q. My Social Security benefit is somewhat less than I thought it would be as the record shows I paid less than the maximum during several years in the 1950s.

Would this be because I was self-employed at the time? I had more than adequate income to pay the maximum. C.R.

A. As a self-employed person you should have paid Social Security taxes on your net profit. You, therefore, would have been in a position to control the amount reported.

Self-employment records established in the 1950s can now only be corrected if the original record was established fraudulently.

Here's How

Refinishing Salad Bowls

Q. I am interested in refinishing my wooden salad bowls, but have been unable to find instructions.

A. Years ago I did refinish some and had fine results, but only remember that I used fine sandpaper or steel wool first and then it took a lot of rubbing with some kind of oil. Some kind of finish was also used, but I just can't remember which came first and what was used.

I am sure others would like this information. — Mrs. A.L.E., Chula Vista, Calif.

A. Steel wool or sand off the balance of the present finish.

To remove any oil stains, coat with dry corn meal or any absorbent material to draw up the oil. When this becomes saturated, brush off and place fresh material on any stains.

Quickly wash the bowls in warm, mild soapsuds, rinse in clear water and wipe dry.

When the wood is completely dry, I recommend an oil finish. Apply a couple of soaking coats of pure, clean raw linseed oil, which is available in sealed containers. Allow the oil to soak for an hour, then wipe off excess.

Apply a second coat a week later, repeating the process.

Q. There is a leak in our garden hose. It is made of rubber, not plastic. How can it be repaired or can it? — John K.E.

A. If it is a tiny, almost invisible opening that is causing the leak, wait until the damaged area is thoroughly dry, then coat it generously with rubber-based cement. Apply a second coat about 15 minutes later.

Wind rubber, plastic or electrical tape around the section and do not use the hose for at least 24 hours.

There is also a special paste that hardens into rubber. It can be used in place of the rubber-based cement.

If the opening is more than just a crack or pinhole, the damaged portion must be cut away with a sharp knife. The two ends can then be joined together with a metal splicer or mending tube with a flexible clamp.

In buying the splicer or mending tube, be sure to specify that you are using it on a rubber hose. There is a different type for plastic.

Q. The paper across the back of an old framed print is brittle and torn. Is there any special technique to replace the paper back? — C.A.D.

A. Completely remove the present paper back. Then cut a piece of heavy brown wrapping paper, slightly larger than the frame, and moisten with water until limp. Blot off any surplus water.

Apply a liquid glue to the back of the picture frame and lay the paper smoothly across.

In drying, the paper will shrink and become very tight-fitting. Trim off excess paper with razor blade.

Q. The glass in our windows has some scratches on it. Is there anything to help cover them? — A.W.

A. Sorry to say, but there is no way to cover scratches in glass panes or to remove the scratches. Sometimes, to fill small holes in window glass, clear nail polish can be used. Replacement of the panes is the only solution for eliminating the scratched glass, if you don't want to live with it.

Q. A year or so ago, I remember seeing an article on preserving iron bars.

I have solid-core iron bars installed on my doors and windows and they are starting to rust. Can you recommend a cleaner and a good acrylic paint to use for years of maintenance-free care?

I believe your column included the use of an applied varnish. — J.P.

A. Wash the iron bars with a detergent and water solution to remove any dirt or grease, then let the bars dry.

Sand the surfaces lightly so that paint will adhere well, concentrating on smoothing out rusting areas. Prime the bare metal with a primer recommended for the paint you choose.

One of the recommended brands is Rustoleum Speedy Dry Automotive primer. Two recommended rust-resistant paints are De-Rusto and Rustoleum. However, you can paint with one or two coats of a gloss or semigloss enamel that is especially made for wrought iron.

For your choice of an acrylic paint, I suggest you be guided by the advice of your paint dealer. One thing is sure — whichever paint you choose, follow carefully the manufacturer's instructions on the container.

Q. In one of your past columns, you answered a question about removing stains from marble. My problem is somewhat on the same line, but a little different.

We have a beautiful marble coffee table that is highly polished. Members of the family placed the square-bottom type vinegar bottle on the table while eating fish and chips. Now, in all the places the vinegar touched the table, there are spots and square marks, not stains, but white marks that are dull in an otherwise polished surface.

I purchased a marble polish from a dealer which did not do a thing, and the dealer has no other suggestions. I now have to keep a cover on the top of this beautiful table, as it looks so bad. Can you help me? — Marjorie G.T., St. Catharines, Ont., Canada.

A. Small scratches or acid etching from fruit juices, vinegar, iodine or other acid substances can be removed by a light wet sanding with No. 100 sandpaper. Use it with parallel strokes.

Then polish with a marble hand-polishing powder (supplied by marble dealers) on a damp cloth to remove the etching.

A clear marble sealer recommended by the marble supplier will protect the surface from water spotting or stains that might etch the polish. A coat of hard white spray wax or rubbing wax on top of the sealer will give added protection.

Q. What do you recommend using to prevent tarnish on copper and brass products? Are shellac or spar varnish the only solutions? — A.L.V., Pauma Valley, Calif.

A. Lacquer is the product most often used on brass or copper surfaces to prevent tarnishing. After thorough cleaning, this can be applied. Waxing will also help.
